BRUENING RULE IS FORCED OUT BY HINDENBURG

Hitler Has Talk with President.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, May 30.—Chancellor Heinrich Bruening and his 2 year old cabinet resigned today after President Paul von Hindenburg had refused to indorse the program which the republican chancellor had mapped out to save the country from a further financial breakdown and provide work for the jobless. The president was believed to have acted under pressure of militarists and Junkers [landed aristocrats].

Nazis May Assume Power.

It is almost a certainty that if Hitler does not immediately cash in on his recent state victories he will at least insist upon a chancellor whom his Nazis will tolerate. After President von Hindenburg accepted the resignation of the government, the aged field marshal began the task of forming a new cabinet.

There was some talk today that the Nazis might assume power after the Lausanne conference on reparations and war debts on June 16, but authorities agreed this was "another question."

The novelty of the present situation lies in the fact that the president disregarded parliamentary prerogatives and precedents. Bruening less than three weeks ago was given a vote of confidence in the reichstag by a decisive majority.

Two Courses to Follow.

Von Hindenburg has two courses. To figure out a combination supported or at least tolerated by the majority in the reichstag, unless he is willing to order new elections, or execute a coup d'état and establish a dictatorship.

The latter course seems unlikely as the president has been a stickler for constitutionality.

This was indicated today when he followed the customary procedure of summoning the heads of the reichstag parties in the order of their numerical strength, receiving first Paul Loebe, chairman of the reichstag and powerful figure in the ranks of the Socialists or Social Democrats.

Observers regarded it as highly significant that Von Hindenburg gave most of his time to Hitler, who broke off his election campaign in Mecklenburg to come to Berlin. The Nazi chieftain and his aid spent an hour and a half with the president in the executive palace. Outside stood a cheering crowd. It first assembled to watch sailors take over the guard as is the custom on the anniversary of the battle of Jutland. Then they stayed to watch for Hitler.

Hitler Cheered by Crowd.

His followers cheered him, gave the Fascist salute and shouted, "Germany, awake!"

"I was most satisfied with the conference," Hitler said with a smile as he emerged.

These conferences will be continued tomorrow when President von Hindenburg will be forced to decide whether the present party lineup of the reichstag holds out a promise of construeting a workable parliamentary cabinet to conform with his views. If he fails a so-called nonpartisan ministry will be installed.

The Catholic Centrist party, of which Bruening was a member, was flabbergasted by the turn of events. Centrist leaders announced today that Bruening will not figure as a candidate for chancellor or any other cabinet post, or participate in the present conferences over the formation of a new government.

Political Chaos Feared.

Leaders of the republican parties today declared that Germany is facing a desperate political situation. They point to the fact that only seven weeks ago Von Hindenburg was reelected to the presidency with a huge majority on a republican platform over Hitler, avowed enemy of the republican constitution. The president's change in attitude, they feel, may result in political chaos.

The break between the chancellor and Von Hindenburg, who had con-

MAYOR AROUSED BY VANDALISM; STOPS DRIVE

Puts Enforcement Up to Council.

Mayor Cermak acted yesterday to halt police enforcement of the ordinance prohibiting all-night parking, after receiving reports that automobile tires have been punctured and tacks strewn along curbs, apparently as coercive measures to force motorists to store their cars in garages.

ALD. JOHN A. MASSEN.

The campaign of vandalism, the mayor said, will not be tolerated. He said he would request Commissioner of Police Allman today to hold up the enforcement of the ordinance until the city council decides whether the measure should be repealed or continued in force.

Repealer Before Council.

A repealer drawn by attorneys for the Chicago Motor club will be submitted to the council tomorrow, and Ald. John A. Massen [48th], chairman of the council traffic committee, has promised to call a meeting the following day to consider it.

"If the hoodlums are interested in enforcement of this ordinance," said the mayor, "and are puncturing tires and committing other acts of vandalism to force automobiles into garages, that presents another angle to this situation. I'm going to ask Commissioner Allman to suspend enforcement pending council action.

Insurance Rates Up.

"Although more stolen automobiles are being recovered now than formerly, the theft insurance rates have been increased. It was thought that by reducing thefts the motorists would benefit from reduced rates. However, it is for the council to decide whether this ordinance shall be retained and enforced."

The ordinance prohibits automobile parking in the streets for more than an hour between 2 a. m. and 6 a. m. Enforcement of it was started eight days ago, and during that time 119 specially detailed policemen have attached warning stickers to 25,008 automobiles.

Seek to Curb Auto Strippers.

Another method of attack on automobile thieves is being considered by the mayor. This plan would compel dealers in second hand automobile parts to keep records of their purchases, as is done by pawnbrokers. The mayor believes such an ordinance would discourage the stealing of automobile parts for sale.

Drafting of an ordinance providing fines of $10 to $200 for persons arrested for puncturing tires or otherwise molesting cars will be started Attorney W. W. O'Brien announced yesterday, at a meeting to be held at 8 o'clock tonight in his office at 77 West Washington street. He has invited motorists who park their cars in the streets at night to attend. Another repealer ordinance also will be drafted, he said.

BURGLARS LOOT APARTMENT OF PAUL SCHULZE

Burglars ransacked the apartment of Paul Schulze, head of the Paul Schulze Biscuit company, at 2305 Commonwealth avenue yesterday, and took an oriental rug valued at $1,700 and other loot valued at $7,000 to $10,000.

They tore pictures from walls, upturned bed mattresses and rugs, and opened dresser drawers in a search for valuables. Every room was ransacked. Most of the loot taken consisted of jewelry and clothing. The rug and several gems were especially prized by the Schulzes.

The burglary was discovered by Victor H. Schulze, a son. His father was visiting friends in Lake Villa at the time, and his mother, Mrs. Ida Schulze, was on a Chicago bound train from the east. She was met at the railroad station by another son, Paul Jr., and reached her home while police were investigating the crime.

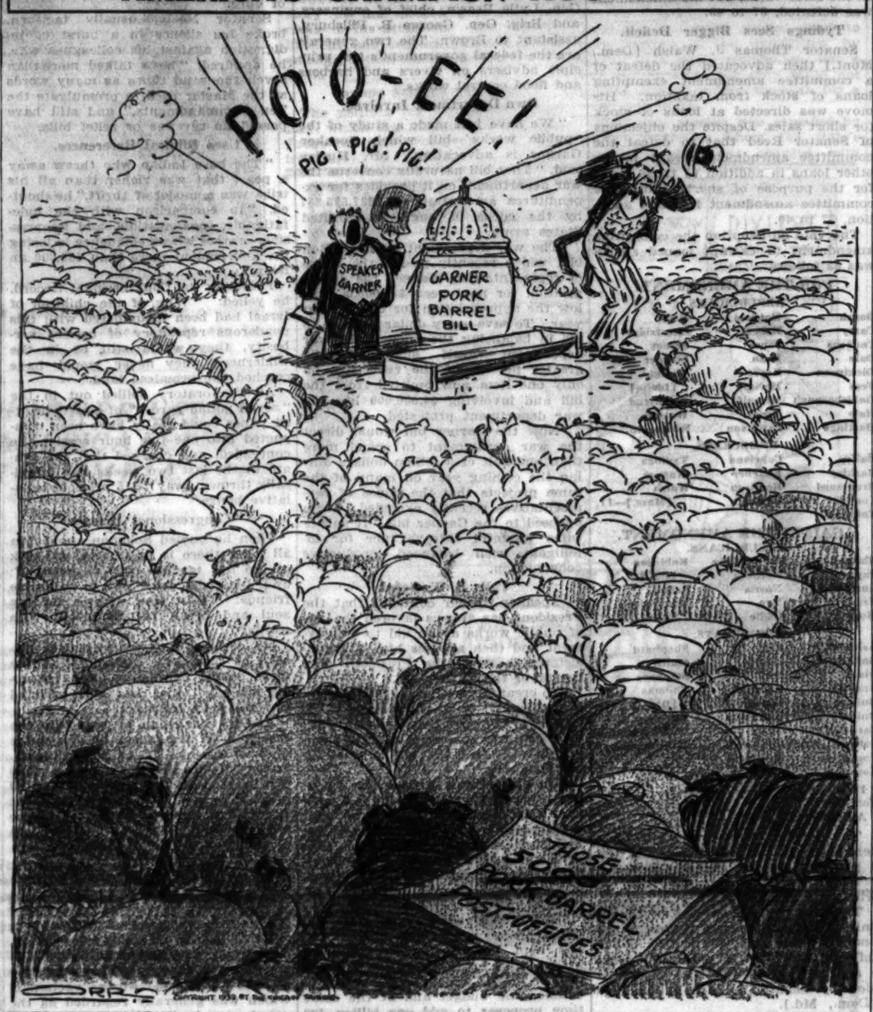
AMERICA'S CHAMPION HOG CALLER



Trap Slingshot Gang Breaking Shop Windows

Bart Flynn, 4538 West Van Buren street, a glazier, had a dandy plan for ending the depression, so far as it applied to his trade, and a very simple plan, too. He went out of nights and broke windows.

Early yesterday Flynn's alcoholic enthusiasm caused him to become careless. He and two companions, one his brother and the other a minor politician, were arrested. Police said their arrests were a promising lead toward solution of more than 1,000 window smashings which have occurred in the last eighteen months.

The salesrooms along Automobile row, on South Michigan avenue, with their big glass show windows, have been particularly hard hit by the window smashing campaign. At the Cadillac agency at 2301 South Michigan avenue the windows were smashed eight times. The Dashiel Motor company reported 28 window smashings in its various branches. Loop department stores were also victimized on a number of occasions.

Hurl Pebbles Through Glass.

The methods of the window smashers made them hard to catch. They used large pebbles, about the size of a golf ball, which made holes no bigger than a silver dollar in the big plates of glass, but which made replacement of the glass necessary.

The pebbles in many instances were shot at the windows with slingshots, wielded from passing automobiles. Although motorcycle police were detailed in the automobile sales district and in the loop for months in efforts to catch the vandals, they were unsuccessful. The clink of the stone as they smashed small holes in the glass was not loud enough to attract attention.

Police Arrest Trio.

Early yesterday, however, neighbors notified the police that windows had just been smashed at 200 South Kedzie avenue and 5205 5th avenue. A police squad, acting on a radio alarm, caught Flynn in an automobile in which they found a bag of large pebbles.

With him were his brother, Edward, who said he was a clerk employed by the Chicago Title and Trust company, and Frank Harrigan, 2750 Jackson boulevard. Harrigan told police that he was on the west parks pay roll as a laborer, and that he was a precinct captain under William M. Garrison, a member of the old city hall machine who is a Republican committeeman in the 27th ward. Bart Flynn said they had visited a speakeasy before starting their tour.

In Bart Flynn's pocket police found a membership card in the glaziers' union, and a check for $23 from the American Glass company, where Flynn said he had been employed for three years.

"I'm only working two days a week," Flynn told Chief of Detectives Schoemaker. "I wanted to stimulate business and help everybody get work."

President Once Arrested.

Benjamin Beris, president of the American Glass company, was arrested 12 years ago and charged with a window smashing conspiracy. With him police arrested Fred J. Galvin, who was an estimator for an insurance company insuring plate glass.

Galvin told police that Beris' company had a contract with the insurance company for replacing broken plate glass which it insured. He said that at Beris' direction he went about breaking windows in stores insured by his own company.

Galvin was fined $100 for malicious mischief in 1921. Police records show no disposition of the charge against Beris. Beris was indicted in the federal court in 1928, with George Meyers, business agent, and three other officials of the glaziers' union, on charges of conspiracy in restraint of trade.

The defendants were charged with extorting money from manufacturers in Ohio, Michigan and Indiana who shipped bathroom cabinets and other furniture containing glass into Chicago for installation in apartment buildings.

Meyers and the other union officials pleaded guilty and were fined $5,000 each. Beris pleaded not guilty. Information on the disposition of this charge also was not available.

A VICTIM DISCOVERS HOLDUP BUSINESS IS SHAKY THESE DAYS

C. Carr Sherman, 1001 Sheridan road, Evanston, reported yesterday that he had been held up and robbed by a bandit who was unable to say "Hands up."

They met at Sheridan road and Lee street, Evanston. The robber thrust a pistol against Mr. Sherman's chest, but said nothing. Mr. Sherman was unable to tell whether the man was a mute or was merely frightened out of voice.

"It is certain he was scared," said the victim. "So was I. His hand shook so much that I was afraid he would shoot me by accident. I told him that if he would put the pistol away he could have anything he wanted."

The robber, who seemed to hear and understand, seized Mr. Sherman's gold watch, valued at $150, stuck the pistol in a pocket, and fled.

Bomb Serbian Capital; City Is Terrified

BELGRADE, Jugo-Slavia, May 30.—(AP)—The palace of King Alexander and five other strategic spots in the capital were bombed today.

A short reign of terror gripped the city until police explained that the missiles were not extremely dangerous and were intended more as a demonstration of warning.

The king left "for several day's rest" at Niska Vanja, it was announced.

The bomb thrown at the palace injured a passerby. The others inflicted no injuries but caused slight property damage. They occurred in a railway station near the military academy, at the senate building, at the ministry of the interior, in front of the newspaper Politico and near the workmen's insurance office.

Four persons were arrested, including a Hungarian, a Croat and an unidentified woman. The fourth prisoner was a man named Jelisije Ljubicic. When arrested he was carrying a package which he said he found in front of the Danish legation. It proved to be a bomb.

King Alexander has been reported in disfavor in several quarters of late, and rumors have been spread repeatedly that he had been forced to abdicate or had fled the capital. All of them proved groundless.

Loses Own Auto Trying to Aid Fellow Motorist

Doing a good turn for a friend cost Joseph Massie of 1122 Victoria street, Waukegan, his automobile yesterday. His friend's car ran out of gasoline and Massie volunteered to aid. He purchased a five gallon can of gasoline, placed it in the rear of his automobile, and started back. On the way Massie flicked the ashes from his cigar. They ignited the gasoline. Massie escaped injury but his car was destroyed.

Sox Players Mob Umpire; Defend Action

BY EDWARD BURNS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Cleveland, O., May 30.—George Moriarty, American league umpire, former manager of the Detroit Tigers, and star third baseman for the Tigers during Ty Cobb's heydey, was severely beaten by Manager Lew Fonseca and a group of White Sox players immediately after the second game of the Cleveland-Chicago double header today.

Versions differ as to the aggressor in the assault, but the fact is clear that Moriarty was taken, badly bruised and lacerated, to the Cleveland Clinic hospital. Manager Fonseca admitted that he and several of his players had fought with Moriarty until Cleveland players, headed by Coach Howard Shanks and Catcher Luke Sewell, had pulled them off the umpire. Fonseca sought to justify the action by saying Moriarty had picked the fight.

Harridge Hurries to Scene.

Shanks and Sewell told General Manager Billy Evans of the Cleveland club that Fonseca, Pitcher Milton Gaston, and Catchers Charley Berry and Frank Grube were the men who had attacked the umpire. This report is expected to be presented to President William Harridge of the American league, who will arrive from New York tomorrow morning to take charge of the investigation.

Evans, for many years associated with Moriarty as a fellow umpire, was near the scene, and Alva Bradley, owner of the Indians, witnessed the fight and after first aid had been administered to the beaten baseball official, took him to the hospital.

At the hospital late tonight it was reported that Moriarty had suffered spike cuts, bruises, and a broken hand.

Fonseca Makes Statement.

Upon his return to the White Sox hotel headquarters, Fonseca early this evening phoned his version of the clash to Vice President Harry Grabiner, who is expected in Cleveland tomorrow morning. He then made the following statement to newspaper men with the White Sox:

"Moriarty was looking for a fight and it seems that he got it. Everyone in baseball knows many stories of Moriarty's brawling tendencies and his eagerness to start a fight at the slightest provocation. Moriarty has been 'on' the White Sox for some time and has frequently used the vilest kind of language in addressing the Chicago players. I did not suspect that he was in one of his bullying moods today, however, until he said: 'What a smart manager you are.' I said, 'You didn't last so long at Detroit either. That seemed to burn him up.

Banishes Sox Coach.

"A little later on, McKain [White Sox pitcher] asked if Berry could put dirt on the ball, inasmuch as McKain had a blister which he was afraid of infecting. Moriarty, with a burst of profanity, refused permission, abused Berry and McKain and chased Coach Butler off the bench.

"After the game Moriarty did not accompany his partner, Bill Dinneen, from the field, but went through the players' tunnel and came upon Berry, whom he challenged. Cleveland players, who apparently have taken a sud-

SEEKS TO BEAT 55 ENEMIES OF TAX UPON SALES

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 30.—[Special.]—President Hoover tonight called on the Democratic leaders of the senate to bring about at least 300 millions of governmental economy and to find an additional 200 to 400 millions of revenue.

This action was taken in an effort to meet a financial situation which administration spokesmen declared is threatening the balancing of next year's budget.

55 Sign to Block Sales Tax.

The administration program for a sales tax was knocked on the head by the revolt of 55 senators earlier in the day. There was a dramatic two hours on the senate floor, during which Senator David A. Reed [Rep., Pa.] replied to the presentation of the round robin in which the 55 senators pledged their opposition to the sales tax. He declared that a sales tax alone would balance the budget and that it must be passed.

The President held a night conference at the White House to which were hurriedly summoned the Democratic leader, Senator Joe T. Robinson [Ark.] and the Democratic members of the senate finance committee, the special economy committee, and the special relief committee.

Owen D. Young with Hoover.

The President had with him Owen D. Young, potential Democratic candidate for President; Secretary of the Treasury Mills; Gov. George L. Harrison of the New York Federal Reserve bank; Gen. Charles G. Dawes, head of the Reconstruction Finance corporation, and Henry M. Robinson, California banker and one of Mr. Hoover's advisers.

In addition to Senator Robinson the Democratic senators who attended the White House conference were Senators Harrison [Miss], Hull [Tenn.], Gore [Okla.], Barkley [Ky.], Connally [Tex.], King [Utah], George [Ga.], Costigan [Col.], Wagner [N. Y.], Bratton [N. M.], and Byrnes [S. C.].

The President did not seek to force the sales tax with its possible 325 millions of revenue upon the Democratic conferees. But he was described as stating bluntly that the revenue bill with the 963 millions now in it would fall between 200 and 400 millions short of the government's requirements next year, even granting that 300 millions are saved through economies.

Pass Sales Tax, Or?

It will be left up to the Democratic leaders, if they persist in refusing a sales tax, to find some other method of raising the required amount.

Their first act—and tonight it appeared a certainty—will be to swing the 35 Democrats, the 19 Republicans, and the single farmer-laborite who signed the anti-sales tax pledge into line behind the amendment of Senator Tom Connally [Dem., Tex.], to increase the individual income tax rates to approximately the 1922 level, and to raise approximately 100 million dollars.

A vote on the Connally amendment is scheduled for tomorrow morning. Its passage is virtually certain.

But the higher income taxes alone will not meet the deficit that aggravated conditions have made certain, as Senator Reed informed the senate during his startling speech on the senate floor.

Reed Races to White House.

The Pennsylvania senator rose to speak after a speedy departure from the senate debate to make a flying visit to the White House.

"The picture has changed for the worse during the last twelve hours," said Senator Reed. "The foreign exchange markets have combined against the United States. Gold is being withdrawn from this country as fast as the steamships can take it. Thank heavens, the number of vessels is comparatively limited."

Even with its final revenue raising provisions adopted today, making the tax bill a 963 million dollar measure, the bill will not balance the budget at the end of 1933, as it was expected to do, Senator Reed declared.

Even with the Connally amendment to raise individual income tax rates and so add approximately 100 millions to the bill, the amount will not be sufficient.

"And unless we balance the budget, at this session," he added, "this country will be subjected to a drain that will mean a gold embargo, and that means that this country will go off the gold standard."

With the Connally amendment rates insufficient to meet the need for revenue, and if the sales tax is to be disregarded, resort doubtless must be had to provisions of the original house bill which the senate finance committee struck out—largely because they were considered inequitable; or the present proposed excise taxes and special taxes must be increased and new ones introduced.

Among the house provisions stricken from the bill by the senate committee are the subjection of income from dividends to the normal tax, expected to raise $89,000,000; a penalty for consolidated returns to raise $8,000,000; various administrative changes to raise $39,000,000, and an increase tax on sales of produce for future delivery to raise $6,000,000.

Reed's Speech Causes Uproar.

Coming as it did after the announcement of the round robin by the sales tax opponents and on the heels of his consultation with the President Senator Reed caused an uproar in a senate already tense with animosity.

Senator J. Hamilton Lewis [Dem., Ill.] denounced the Pennsylvania senator's tactics and his desperate appeal for patriotic unity by concluding an impassioned speech by quoting Dr. Johnson's "Patriotism is the last refuge of a scoundrel."

Senator Joe T. Robinson [Dem., Ark.], minority leader, whose name appeared first among the Democrats to sign the anti-sales tax pledge, challenged Senator Reed to produce the facts to back up his assertions.

Senator Tom Connally [Dem., Tex.], author of the amendment to restore the 1923 income tax rates, charged that the Pennsylvanian's speech was part of an administration plot to work senate sentiment to such a pitch that the sales tax would be put across. He charged the pro-sales tax senators with working for time in order that White House pressure might be applied tonight and new treasury department schemes be "cooked up."

La Follette Catches Himself.

Senator Robert M. La Follette [Rad. Rep., Wis.], who handled the round robin pledge on the Republican side, skyrocketed into a fiery speech in which he declared that today's address by Senator Reed was the last one of three, all calculated "to create a domestic and foreign run on the American dollar." They were aimed, he said, at destroying the morale of the United States.

"Such a speech as that of the senator from Pennsylvania," shouted Senator La Follette, "is nothing short of ——."

He caught himself, swallowed the word that was about to spring out, and finished, "nothing short of striking a blow."

"The administration and the senator from Pennsylvania do not hesitate to strike a blow at the soundness of the American dollar in order to put the sales tax over," he declared. "The responsibility for delaying the tax bill and for enhancing the panic they have already done so much to further in the public mind rests squarely on the supporters of the sales tax."

It was with difficulty that the sales tax adherents staved off a vote this evening. The antisales tax group pressed for a decision, argued for an all night session to finish the tax bill and send it to the conference committee tomorrow. They renewed their charges that the sales tax adherents were playing for time in order to give the President a chance to put on the screws.

Fifty-five Signers Can Rule.

If the 55 signers hold together the Connally amendment is bound to go over. It will mean that instead of the already increased committee rates the individual income taxes will be 4 per cent on the first $4,000 of income and 8 per cent on the remainder; surtaxes will begin with 1 per cent between $6,000 and $10,000 and will rise to 5½ per cent on net income over one million dollars.

It was Senator Pat Harrison [Dem., Miss.], leader of the anti-sales tax forces on the Democratic side, who moved for the reconsideration of the Connally amendment. It was he who produced the round robin and precipitated an angry debate in which Senator David I. Walsh [Dem., Mass.], chief sponsor of the sales tax amendment, charged that such a procedure was un-American and tantamount to cloture.

Senator Harrison tossed in the pledge and the names of its 55 signers immediately after the adoption of the last three revenue raising provisions had shown that the tax bill, because of amendments made during its consideration would raise only 963 millions instead of the 1,009 millions of the bill as originally reported by the senate finance committee.

Dramatically, Senator Harrison pulled out the signatures of the 36 Democrats who had signed the pledge. The names of 19 Republicans and the single Farmer-Labor member were in the hands of Senator La Follette, across the aisle.

"In order to expedite the passage of a revenue bill to balance the budget and to prevent unnecessary prolongation of debate thereon, the undersigned now declare that they will at this time vote against any and every form of a general sales tax on the pending bill."

The following signed the pledges:

In addition, the exemption in the admissions tax would be increased from 40 to 45 cents; the stamp tax on bank checks would be lowered from 2 cents to 1 cent; local mail would be excluded from the first class increase; and there would be no increase in second class postage rates.

Add $33,000,000 Revenue.

During the day's session a final 33 million dollars were written into the bill by the adoption of the stock transfer tax, the tax on bond transfers, and the tax on oil transportation by pipe lines. The three are expected to raise $22,000,000, $5,000,000, and $6,000,000, respectively.

Two efforts, both aimed at curbing stock speculation, particularly short selling, were made to amend the stock transfer tax provision. The first failed; the second succeeded. As recommended by the finance committee, the tax calls for a rate of 4 cents per $100 of par value, or per share of no par value.

Senator C. C. Dill [Dem., Wash.] sought the adoption of an amendment to provide that the tax should not fall below a minimum of ½ per cent of the sales value, but his amendment was defeated, 37 to 45.

Tydings Sees Bigger Deficit.

Senator Thomas J. Walsh [Dem., Mont.] then advocated the defeat of a committee amendment exempting loans of stock from taxation. His move was directed at loans of stock for short sales. Despite the objections of Senator Reed that to defeat the committee amendment meant taxing other loans in addition to those made for the purpose of short selling, the committee amendment failed of adoption, 37 to 40.

The vote on adoption the committee amendment to exempt loaned stocks was as follows:

That the tax bill, instead of falling only $32,000,000 short of balancing the budget, would fall "400 or 500 or 600 millions short," was asserted during a debate which opened the day's session by Senator Millard E. Tydings [Dem., Md.].

HURLEY JOINS HOOVER IN FIGHT ON GARNER BILL

Unmoved by Half Billion to War Department.

Washington, D. C., May 30.—(AP)—Secretary of War P. J. Hurley tonight aligned himself alongside his chief in a slashing denunciation of Speaker Garner's public works bill as a "wasteful extravagance."

Secretary Hurley, as active director of army engineer projects, would be charged under the bill with expenditures of $537,525,257, in addition to moneys to be appropriated under the regular rivers and harbors program for the coming fiscal year.

His statement was prepared late in the day after a conference with Maj. Gen. Lytle Brown, chief of engineers, and Brig. Gen. George B. Pillsbury, assistant to Brown. The two generals are the federal government's two principle advisers on rivers and harbors and flood control works.

Own Department Involved.

"We have just made a study of the 'public works' bill which Speaker Garner is advocating," Mr. Hurley said. "That bill naturally concerns the war department, as it provides for expenditures amounting to $537,525,257 by the corps of engineers, United States army.

"The war department appropriation bill, which recently passed the house of representatives reduced the appropriation for next year $84,000,000 below the appropriation for the current year. To save every dollar possible to aid in balancing the budget, the war department itself suggested the greater portion of the reduction, on only one item now omitted from the bill and involving $4,000,000 has the war department protested.

"Now the Garner bill would direct the war department to spend more than one half of a billion dollars during the coming year on many of the same projects that the house of representatives recently excluded. I am opposed to the Garner bill. It substitutes wasteful extravagance for intelligent, well balanced, productive construction.

Calls It Wasteful.

"Speaker Garner contends that the President has always favored the use of public works as an aid to employment and then accuses him of inconsistency because the President does not favor the Garner bill.

"To create unproductive jobs beyond the capacity of the government to pay or to contract public works without legitimate returns to the American people who foot the bill is wasteful extravagance.

"In the present budget the President has recommended the expenditure of 570 millions during the next fiscal year on all public construction, including rivers and harbors. The projects speeded up under the President's program are of imminent necessity and without any taint of the pork barrel.

"The President is insistent upon the honest balancing of the budget and has kept his construction program within limits for that purpose. Speaker Garner makes impassioned appeals to balance the budget and at the same time proposes to add one billion 100 million expenditures to be paid by the taxpayers on an unnecessary and wasteful program that will prevent the balancing of the budget."

USUALLY SILENT NEELY REBUKES 'VERBOSE' SENATE

And He Takes Fifteen Minutes at It.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 30.—[Special.]—For fifteen minutes today Senator Neely [Dem., W. Va.] talked against the evils of talking.

M. M. NEELY.

By his own estimates of "almost two hundred dollars for every beat of the normal human heart," he spent $20,000 worth of government money orating on the expensive futility of orating. He diagnosed the senate as being sick with "virulent verbosity" and shouted out many sentences of cure.

Senator Neely, usually taciturn, broke his silence in a burst of indignation against his colleagues who, he declared, "have talked more than seven thousand times as many words as the Master used to promulgate the Ten Commandments," and still have passed no revenue or relief bills.

Uses Biblical References.

"The base Indian who threw away a pearl that was richer than all his tribe was a model of thrift," he shouted, "in comparison with the indefatigable, inexhaustible, and irrepressible orators whose eloquence is losing the government more than $83,000 an hour."

Pounding the Congressional Record, he yelled: "Why, if the children of Israel had been incumbered with this ponderous repository of useless verbosity, they would still be in the wilderness; they never would have reached the promised land."

All the oratory spilled out in the "seven pound parcel" of closely printed paper could really have been compacted into one five hour session, he contended, and charged that the senate in the last two weeks has practically thrown away "115 precious legislative hours."

"Congressional Disease."

Then he quoted Solomon about "in all labor there is profit, but the talk of the lips tendeth only to penury"; and Job, who cried out to talkative friends: "How long will ye vex my soul and break me in pieces with words?"

He declared the congressional disease of "virulent verbosity" is the most costly, contagious, and menacing malady" that has ever afflicted the American taxpayer.

And in conclusion he read into the record a 34 line poem on the value of terse speech. If, as he maintains, senatorial speech costs nearly $200 per heart beat, the rhyme he recited must have set Uncle Sam back about twenty-five hundred bucks. And the whole speech, based on his estimate of $83,000 per hour, cost $20,000.

2 Canadian Brokers Found Dead in Their Garages

MONTREAL, Que., May 30.—W. E. J. Luther, 52, who two weeks ago completed a year's term as chairman of the Montreal Stock exchange, which was generally regarded as the worst year in its history, was found dead today in his garage. Death was attributed to carbon monoxide poisoning. The engine of his automobile was still running. He was a partner in the brokerage firm of Craig, Luther & Co. Another Canadian broker, K. A. MacFayden, 35 year old head of a brokerage firm, was found dead under similar circumstances yesterday in Toronto.

Britain Strives to Lure U. S. Into Parley on Reparations

BY JOHN STEELE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, May 30.—Prime Minister MacDonald is working his hardest to widen the basis of the Lausanne conference on reparations, which opens June 16, so as to include not only war debts and reparations but the whole question of world trade conditions.

This is the explanation of the recent trans-Atlantic telephone conversation between MacDonald at Lossiemouth and Secretary of State Stimson at Washington, D. C., and was outlined in his statement at Lossiemouth, Scotland, yesterday.

The prime minister is seeking to make Lausanne a lever to revive world trade and he believes that in order to do so it is necessary to have America represented there either by full fledged delegates or observers of sufficient weight to discuss as equals with the statesmen present.

Will Try to Influence U. S.

There is no doubt that if war debts are discussed the European position that they are linked with reparations will be insisted upon and efforts will be made to commit the United States to the same view if Uncle Sam allows himself to be drawn into the discussion.

There is still, of course, a strong probability that the conference will be postponed either before the assembly is called to order or soon after the formalities have been disposed of. It is fully recognized here that no American administration on the verge of an election would dare abandon America's just claims for repayment of European debts.

The cabinet met today as a result of the resignation of Chancellor Bruening's government in Germany, which, it is felt, has introduced an entirely new situation in European politics. The cabinet will meet again tomorrow to discuss the German political crisis in relation to the Lausanne conferences.

U. S. to Stay Away.

Washington, D. C., May 30.—(AP)—Prime Minister MacDonald's plea that the Lausanne reparations conference on June 16 be turned into a general conference on world trade was said today by the state department to have left unshaken the determination of the United States to remain away from Lausanne.

The United States has never been asked to attend the Lausanne gathering, and if it were asked state department officials said, it would not send delegates. This government has held since President Wilson's time that the United States asked no reparations from Germany and is therefore not concerned about reparations. It expects to have European nations pay their obligations to the United States irrespective of whether Germany meets the reparations obligations imposed upon her by treaties and agreements settling the great war.

After the European powers have reached some agreement on reparations.

TRY TO IDENTIFY VICTIM SHOT TO DEATH BY GANG

The police yesterday were trying to identify a Mexican who was found shot to death early in the day at 139th street and Torrence avenue, Burnham. Lieut. Robert Seiter of the county highway police at Homewood said the man had been the victim of a firing squad. The body lay face down with four bullets in the back and another in the head. The bullets had been fired from different guns, examination showed, and police said the victim had been forced to stand in the street while the executioners shot him from behind.

The man was about 28 years old and had a dagger tattooed on his wrist. His hat carried a label from a New York store but his suit had been purchased in the loop. The pictures of a woman about 30 years old and a child about 10 years old were found in his pockets. The police were unable to identify him through finger prints at the detective bureau.

HOOVER WRITES G. O. P. PLATFORM; EDITS KEYNOTE

Relief and Wet Planks Closely Studied.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 30.—[Special.]—President Hoover, it was learned today, virtually has taken over supervision of the drafting of the Republican national platform which is to be adopted by the Chicago convention.

L. J. DICKINSON.

The President is giving special attention to the planks on prohibition and depression relief which will set forth the position of the Republican party on the two major issues of the presidential election.

Edits Keynote Speech.

Mr. Hoover also has begun editing the keynote address of Senator L. J. Dickinson of Iowa, who is to be the temporary chairman of the Republican national convention. Senator Dickinson submitted a rough draft of his speech to the President at his Rapidan camp yesterday. Mr. Hoover blue penciled parts of it and suggested additions, which the senator is now writing into the speech.

There is much speculation on what the party keynoter will have to say on the subject of prohibition. Mr. Dickinson is an outstanding dry and ordinarily would give the wets cold comfort. If his speech should open up any vistas of modification of the noble experiment it would be because of influence brought to bear by the President.

Discusses Dry Plans with Borah.

Mr. Hoover discussed the prohibition plank with Senator William E. Borah [rad. Rep., Idaho] this morning over the White House breakfast table. The President invited the conference after manifestations of alarm by the drys over Mr. Hoover's reported flirting with the advocates of resubmission. Mr. Borah is being relied upon by the drys to plead their cause with the President.

The breakfast table conference is said to have repaired to some extent a breach between the President and Mr. Borah growing out of a talk they had regarding the prohibition plank ten days ago. The senator is reputed to have been piqued by the failure of the President to ask for a recommendation of phraseology for the declaration, Mr. Borah having the draft of a plank in his pocket at the time.

Borah Threatens Dry Bolt.

The President outlined his own plank which squinted at resubmission. Mr. Borah said he could not agree to it and departed somewhat abruptly after informing the President that he would not attend the convention and would reserve the right to oppose a resubmission plank in the election campaign. By some this was interpreted as a threat to lead a dry bolt.

The President gave Mr. Borah an opportunity this morning to submit his plank which is understood to differ immaterially from the party declaration of 1928 which the senator drafted. It is based on the reasoning that the convention has no right to commit members of congress to any action on a constitutional question.

Hoover "Points with Pride."

James R. Garfield of Ohio, who is to be chairman of the resolutions committee, was here today to receive the President's instructions regarding the platform. He declined to give his own views on the prohibition plank, remarking that he is chiefly interested in getting the views of others. He said he would consult Senator Borah as well as those who favor repeal of the 18th amendment. He is a close friend of Postmaster General Walter F. Brown, at whose instance he was selected. Mr. Brown is a leading advocate of prohibition modification.

The corner stone of the platform, according to the conception of the President, is to be the depression relief planks which will point with pride to everything the administration has done in the effort to turn the tide toward economic recovery. On this question the President regards the issue already sharply drawn between the Republicans and the Democrats because of Democratic advocacy of what he has branded pork barrel public works construction for unemployment relief.

The President is being accused on all sides of advocating federal appropriations for relief that he opposed a few months ago. Senator Bronson Cutting [radical Rep., N. M.] took him to task on the subject in the senate today.

"Hoover Will Take Credit."

"Even as lately as the time when the La Follette-Costigan bill was before the senate every effort of the administration was put into play to prevent the enactment of such a program," said Mr. Cutting. "Now, however, in accordance with the usual practice of the administration, after opposing with the utmost vigor a particular program it surrenders, and before the end of the campaign we will see the administration taking credit for having pushed direct federal relief into legislation contrary to the wishes of some stubborn members of the house and senate."

Senator Cutting quoted from the report of the governors' conference in New Orleans Nov. 22, 1928, the proposal of Gov. Brewster for 3 billion dollars for a program of public works. The New Mexico senator said Herbert Hoover as President-elect had supported the project.

"And I have no doubt," added Mr. Cutting, "that in October, 1932, you will find President Hoover advocating the same policy of public works he advocated in 1928."

OPEN FIGHT ON ALL IN CONGRESS RACE WHO OPPOSE BEER

New York, May 30.—[Special.]—A fight on every congressional candidate opposed to the legalization of beer will be made throughout the country in the fall election by the newly organized Beer for Prosperity Campaign, Inc., with headquarters here.

Announcement of plans to combat opponents of beer who may be seeking election or reelection to congress was made by Edward H. Schulze, director of the new organization, which is incorporated under the laws of New York state.

2 LAKE COUNTY DEPUTIES SEIZE THREE GUNMEN

Three Chicagoans, alleged gangsters, were arrested by two Lake county deputy sheriffs who fired on them early yesterday as they drove along the Channel lake road several miles northwest of Antioch. Several farmers helped the deputies in the arrest.

The prisoners are Frank Nitti, 24 years old, 2537 Walton street; his brother, Anthony Nitti, 25 years old, 1938 South Trumbull avenue; and George Strom, 28 years old, 2842 Adams street. According to the deputies, John Sweeney and John De Smidt, the trio tossed two sawed off shotguns and a pistol into a ditch. The weapons were recovered.

The Lake county authorities have bee searching for a week for a car similar to that in which the Chicagoans rode, having been informed that one like it was used in several recent robberies in the vicinity of Antioch. The Nittis and Strom were taken to the Waukegan jail, as were Anthony's wife, her father, George Dunford, a farmer living near Antioch, and Dr. Charles Savage, chiropodist, 2769 Milwaukee avenue.

Dr. Savage declared he had only gone to the Dunford home on a fishing trip. The others are to be questioned about several crimes of violence. They also will be asked about a bullet riddled automobile found on the Dunford place.

HORNER URGES AMERICA RETURN TO SIMPLE LIFE

Sycamore, Ill., May 30.—[Special.]—A return to the traditional American standards of simplicity, unity, and economy is a debt the people of the state and nation owe the brave men of the past, Judge Henry Horner, Democratic nominee for governor, declared in a Memorial day speech here today.

"It behooves us," said Judge Horner, "to make earnest and increasing and unselfish efforts to restore profitable employment and economic freedom to the farmers, the wage earners, and the tradesmen of our state and nation. To ignore the problem is cowardice, unworthy of the brave men we today commemorate."

Speaking of economy as the only means of lifting the country out of its present plight, Judge Horner said:

"Surely, it cannot be said that any government, whether local or national, is a government for the people when it becomes a burden to the people. The tremendously increasing cost of government, as reflected in taxation, has become so burdensome that those who bear the costs can no longer endure it."

FOUR ARRESTED FOR 'AGING' FAKE HALF DOLLARS

New York, May 30.—[Special].—Three men and a woman were arrested in Bloomfield, N. J., today in a raid on what police described as a plant for "ageing" counterfeit half dollars, and federal agents are searching in Brooklyn for the plant where it is believed the bogus money was coined.

The prisoners are Peter De Salvo, 39, of Brooklyn; Angelo Simone, 32, and his wife, Nellie, of Bloomfield, and Antonio Occhino of Manhattan. The first three are being held in Newark, charged with possessing counterfeit money. Occhino is held as a material witness.

The arrests followed the frequent appearance in Newark of counterfeit half dollars. De Salvo's appearance there at the same time directed police attention to him, and yesterday he was trailed to the Simones home in Bloomfield, a suburb of Newark. He was carrying two packages which were later found to contain the fake coins.

DOUMER SLAYER IS IDENTIFIED AS EX-CHEKA AGENT

PARIS, May 30.—(AP)—Paul Gorgulov, assassin of President Doumer, was pointed out by a former cossack, Ivan Lazareff, today as a former chief of the cheka, Soviet Russian secret police. The assassin vigorously denied the identification.

The cossack told an examining magistrate that he recognized Gorgulov as a cheka at Lostov, on the Don, from October, 1920, to April, 1921. He declared Gorgulov once had tortured him to obtain information.

He said he recognized Gorgulov's voice from behind a partition and picked him out from among seven policemen of the same height and weight, wearing civilian clothes. The prisoner protested violently.

JURY TO PROBE TALE OF GUNPLAY IN G. O. P. SESSION

Story Widespread Among Politicians.

Reports that revolvers were flourished by a certain element at one of the meetings of the Cook county Republican central committee, which have been bandied about among the committeemen since that session, will be investigated, it was said yesterday, by the special grand jury impaneled by Chief Justice Harry M. Fisher of the Criminal court. The special jury will be specifically instructed by the chief justice on June 7.

Judge Fisher said it would be inappropriate for him to discuss now his probable charge to the special jury. However, he did not deny that the story of the alleged gun play had come to his attention. The reported incident has become common gossip among political leaders during the last week.

Capone Scheme Charged.

The petition for the special grand jury, which was originally filed before Judge Michael Feinberg and later transferred by the executive committee of the judges to the chief justice, contained the allegation that Al Capone, in order to retain his power, devised a scheme to elect a number of ward committeemen and thereby gain influence in one of the major political parties.

The charge of an alliance between crime and politics would give Judge Fisher ample opportunity to instruct the special jury concerning the gun play report, it is said by his associates with whom he has discussed his coming charge to the jury next week.

Under Illinois Supreme court decisions, no grand jury, regular or special, can be limited in its investigations. It is pointed out that the jurors, therefore, if the gun play story is placed before them, have the power to call all of the Republican committeemen and question them under oath as to the alleged occurrence.

Long Deadlock on Chairman.

The Republican committeemen held several sessions before William H. Weber, former assessor and former member of the board of review, was elected chairman. Weber was the first chairman ever chosen from the suburbs. His election was the only means of breaking the deadlock which for weeks had prevented the election of any Chicagoan to the office.

The first session of the committee on May 9 resulted in what politicians said was the "soundest trimming" ever administered to a group of Chicago politicians. The remnants of the old Republican city hall machine, including a former mayor, tried to seize control of the committee by means of a rump convention, but a roll call showed that they could not muster enough voting strength for a valid convention.

The rump session was attended by Daniel Serritella, whom the state's attorney's office has charged with being the Capone representative in politics. He had left his trial in the Criminal court to take his seat in the front row at the session. Serritella was subsequently convicted with Harry Hochstein, his former chief deputy in the city sealer's office, of short weight conspiracy. He is under sentence of one year in jail.

BARES FASCIST PLOT TO SET UP CZECH KINGDOM

PRAGUE, Czechoslovakia, May 30.—(AP)—The newspaper Ceske Slovo reported today the uncovering of an abortive Fascist plot to overthrow the republican regime in Czechoslovakia and proclaim Johann Gadja, Bohemian leader of the National Socialist [Fascist] party, king.

The newspaper said independent investigations revealed that the Fascists had the revolutionary plan ready when the National Socialist party in Czechoslovakia was ordered dissolved recently.

A list of proposed monarchist ministers also was found.

CHICAGO HONORS ITS HEROES, THE LIVING AND DEAD

Throngs Watch Parade and Decorate Graves.

BY KATHLEEN M'LAUGHLIN.

File on file, another Memorial day parade swept down Michigan boulevard yesterday afternoon in the city's annual pledge of remembrance to its warrior dead. Yet it was the living who touched to quick response the seal of patriotism—the survivors of those heroes of the past.

It was not the scarlet or gold or green of uniforms, the swaying tassel or tossing plumes that made the pageant grand. Not prancing horses or vivid banners. But the eighty year old swagger of a little fifer of '61, and the vigorous roll of drumsticks from his taller gray haired companion set the thousands lining the sidewalks to gulping back the tears in a salvo of cheers.

Behind them rolled their companions of that "thin blue line," rebellious but resigned, in a fleet of twenty-three motor cars. It was the first time the G. A. R. as a body had not marched.

Legion Post Escorts Marshal.

Board of Trade post of the American Legion, in natty uniforms of navy blue and white, acted as escort to the grand marshal of the parade, Capt. William P. Wright. Major General of Militia Roy D. Keehn commanded the detachment of the 33d division, Illinois National Guard, that accompanied the Grand Army men.

Just behind the escort of police marched the precisely drilled cadets from St. John's Military academy at Delafield, Wis., their white trousered legs moving as one.

Another unit of uniformed cadets who occupied a prominent place in the line comprised 140 boys from the Northwestern Military and Naval academy at Lake Geneva, Wis., who acted as honorary guard to the reviewing officers.

Lieut. Gov. Sterling represented Gov. Emmerson at the head of the reviewing group, which also included Maj. Gen. Frank Parker, Mayor A. J. Cermak, Lieutenant General of Militia Milton J. Foreman, and others. The Black Horse troop, under command of Capt. Paul Butler, with its mounted band, preceded the cars as escort to the reviewing stand before the Logan monument at 9th street.

Morgan Park Cadets March.

Cadets from the Morgan Park Military academy, in drill uniforms of olive drab, provided the escort to the colors. Their band comprised part of this unit.

The Spanish War division, the second of the parade, was surprisingly lengthy, including the auxiliaries and allied organizations of the veterans' groups. Well to the front of this part of the line of march was the juvenile band from St. Rita's school, with the struttingest drum major of the entire parade.

Veterans of foreign wars, in their various groups, followed the Spanish war veterans. Among them walked a blind veteran with one sleeve flapping empty, his hand on a comrade's shoulder, but marching resolutely in his khaki regimentals.

The drum and bugle corps of Square post swung down the boulevard to the rat-a-tat-tat of drums and bugles blaring away the old army refrain: "Got three years to do this in, and I don't give a darn if I never get it done——"

Disabled Veterans Ride By.

Then a strained silence crept over the watching crowds as a fleet of sixty-three automobiles glided down the street in a double file. Through the sedan windows, the generation that came after the world war glimpsed the pale faces of the men still paying the cost in three hospitals—the Edward Hines Jr. Memorial, the Great Lakes, and the North Chicago. No one ventured the irony of cheers for these.

Yet the occasion is always the event of the year for the disabled veterans, and their day was complete yesterday with the outing, the bland weather, and a dinner and entertainment afterward at the Steuben club.

Chicago Elevated post restored the lilting spirit with its drum and bugle corps rolling off the saucy "Hinky Dinkey Parley-Voo." Roseland corps, white trousered, blue coated, followed, one of the best trained units of the procession. Sario-Sharp post, not far behind, displayed a colorful new uniform—yellow shirts contrasting with lavender breeches, helmets and drums, effective for blocks away.

The marchers of Melin-Romer post wore yellow shirts and helmets and blue breeches. And as usual the Stockyards post, with its Scotch bagpipers and its drum major manipulating the longest baton in the line, skirled and squealed its marching way to the tune of much handclapping.

Marchers with Two Flags.

Then came those who marched behind two flags: the black and yellow and red of Belgium, the union jack of the British-Colonial veterans, the tricolor of France with a platoon of the gray-blue uniforms; green hats marking those who followed Italy's standard; more men in blue, Polish this time, with a few girls marching; and the vivid banner of Czechoslovakia, with the Stars and Stripes beside each foreign flag. A few marched unaffiliated.

Almost the last in line was an imposing feminine group, the Belgian Queen Elizabeth club, white capped and blue caped. A drum major who twirled a deft baton led the drum and bugle corps in stirring music, and the spectators made known they liked 'em.

Morning rituals in the cemeteries left every soldier's grave decorated with flowers and distinguished by a small bronze marker. An especially large observance was held in Rosehill, where the grave of Maj Gen. George Bell Jr., wartime commander of the 33d division, was decorated by Thomas Burns, president of the Veterans' association of the division.

Col. Samuel T. Lawton, the speaker of the occasion, declared that "the living can pay no higher honor to the military dead than to provide adequate defense for their country."

Adequate national defense was the keynote of several other speakers at the day's gatherings. City Controller M. S. Szymczak, at the Navy Pier auditorium, deplored especially the threats of further reduction in defense forces. The meeting was under direction of Chicago Flagship post of the Veterans of Foreign Wars.

"We are going through an era of economy in government," Mr. Szymczak told the audience. "We are hearing almost daily of cuts in national and local government administration. This is a wise policy, but it must be administered most judiciously so as to serve the best interests of our government. I refer particularly to threats of curtailing further the military forces of the United States."

Mayor Speaks at Services.

At the Bohemian National cemetery, a ceremony more than half a century old was renewed with Mayor Cermak as the main speaker.

"Those of us who came from foreign shores," he said, "or those whose forbears owed allegiance to a foreign country, find a special significance in the holding of these patriotic demonstrations in a cemetery dedicated to the dead of foreign extraction."

In Forest Home cemetery, Forest Park, Boy Scouts decorated graves of 1,040 veterans, following the parade in Oak Park. Col. Arthur D. Rehm was grand marshal of the day.

Memorial Day Services Abroad

PARIS, May 30.—(AP)—Frenchmen joined Americans today in observances of American Memorial day.

A wreath was laid at the tomb of Lafayette and Ambassador Walter E. Edge deposited a wreath at the tomb of the unknown soldier, after which he went to the American cemetery in Suresnes to give a Memorial day address, whose keynote was understanding between nations.

At Cherbourg Americans made a pilgrimage to the cemetery where lie the dead from battle between the Kearsarge and the confederate vessel Alabama in 1864.

Observe Day in London.

LONDON, May 30.—America's Memorial day was celebrated by ceremonies in London today. A wreath was placed at the foot of the cenotaph erected to Britain's world war dead by representatives of the American Legion and the Memorial Day association. At Westminster abbey the American consul general, Albert Halstead, placed a wreath on the grave of Britain's unknown soldier.

Honor Dead in Mexico City.

MEXICO CITY, May 30.—(AP)—Three hundred American residents of Mexico City, headed by Ambassador Clark, gathered at the American National cemetery here today for a memorial service in front of a huge grave in which are buried the bodies of 750 American soldiers killed in the Mexican war in 1847.

Poles Join in Tribute.

LVOV, Poland, May 30.—(AP)—Polish school children placed flowers and American flags on the graves of three American aviators who perished in 1920 while defending Poland against the Bolsheviks as members of the Kosciuszko escadrille. They were Capt. Arthur Kelly of Michigan and Capt. Arthur MacCullum and Lieut. Edmund Graves of Massachusetts.

Marines Parade in Nicaragua.

MANAGUA, Nicaragua, May 30.—(AP)—United States marines paraded to Managua cemetery today and passed in review before the American colony and President Moncada and his cabinet in honor of America's war dead. After Gen. Berkeley of the marines had read Lincoln's Gettysburg address, the graves of marines who had fallen in Nicaragua were decorated.

Honor Unknown Spanish Soldier.

MADRID, May 30.—(AP)—Most of the American colony and many diplomats today attended the placing of a wreath on the monument of the unknown soldier in the Cuban and Philippine campaigns. Walter G. Ross, president of the American luncheon club, explained that since no American war dead were buried in Spain the American citizens here wished to show that the differences of 1898 were forgotten.

PREPAREDNESS LACK COST THOUSANDS OF LIVES, SAYS GEN. ELY

Passaic, N. J., May 30.—[Special.]—Maj. Gen. Hanson Ely of Washington, D. C., issued a call for preparedness at the annual Memorial day services of the Allied Veterans of Passaic this morning. Tens of thousands of Americans perished in France needlessly because the United States was unprepared, the general declared.

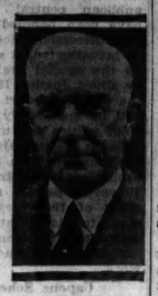
"We have been driven against our will to the unescapable conclusion that the nations continue to live by their capacity to defend themselves against aggression," he declared.

Gen. Ely urged reduction of warships by agreement only and not by example. To do the latter is to predict war, he said.

USES CIVIL WAR TO POINT LESSON ON DEPRESSION

Gettysburg Memorial Address by Fletcher.

Gettysburg, Pa., May 30.—(AP)—Henry P. Fletcher, former ambassador to Italy, today urged political, financial, and industrial leaders to profit by the experiences of the "dark days of the civil war" and not "take the easy way" out of the present economic situation.



H. P. FLETCHER. [A. P. Photo.]

Speaking at the annual Memorial day exercises at the National cemetery here, he said the exigencies of the present demand "the same courage to lead and the same courage to follow" which Lincoln and our forefathers displayed during their trials.

He advocated sharp reduction of governmental expenditures, elimination of the "too many useless jobs" and "too lavish distribution of government money to special groups and sections of our population" and avoidance of increased taxes and debt to finance "artificial stimulants" for business and industry.

Like Civil War Period.

"Now, as during the civil war," he said, "the nation is passing through a great crisis. . . . We have mental suffering and physical deprivations of disorganized peace. We are suffering the effects of bad management in business and finance and from government incompetency and extravagance.

"Waste and inefficiency abound in every department of the government, executive and legislative, and every member of the government and congress knows it, yet nothing is done about it. The department heads, cabinet officers, strenuously object to any important curtailment of their departments.

"Superfluous army posts and naval stations and navy yards cannot be abandoned because senators and congressmen of the localities affected band together and defeat these necessary economics.

No Relief in Borrowing.

"Part time employment and salary reductions in the exceptional circumstances now existing, with millions of people out of work and in all probability an even worse situation probable in the coming year, is perhaps the best the nation can hope for now," Mr. Fletcher said, "but government expenses have got to be cut down and useless and overlapping services abolished."

He advised against governmental attempts to revive industry by artificially providing work, asserting borrowing is the easiest road to bankruptcy for nations and individuals, and added:

"If we are to emerge from this crisis with our credit and our cherished institutions intact, we must make our representatives in congress realize that they hold in their hands not only the fate of this country, but the fate of the democratic system everywhere. These are stirring times, they call for the same quality of courage to lead and courage to follow as Lincoln and our forefathers showed. They did not take the easy way."

S. S. Fagg, 88 years old, a Virginian and member of Camp 8, United Confederate War Veterans, and Charles Oakley, 86, a Union veteran, were asked yesterday to pose for photographers in Oakwoods cemetery. Amiably they lined up, side by side.

"We should hold a flag," suggested veteran Oakley. Veteran Fagg agreed and took from his pocket a confederate emblem with faded stars and bars.

"We might hold this," he said. The smile faded from Oakley's face: "We will not," he said. "Put it away." Fagg folded the flag and put it in his pocket. The picture finished, he limped away.

"The man's somewhat formal," he said.

THREE IN GERMAN UNIFORMS PARADE AT NEW YORK

New York, May 30.—[Special.]—Three men in German uniforms, wearing the heavy steel trench helmets of war days and carrying an American ensign, colors of the German republic, and the emblem of the steel helmets, German organization of ex-service men, marched quietly up Riverside drive today in the annual Memorial day parade. They left some ripples of consternation and surprise in their wake.

Capt. Horace M. Graff, chief aid to the grand marshal of the parade, said he intended to investigate to dermine how and why the "steel melmeters" marched in the parade.

Blue, Gray and Khaki Join to Honor Georgia Dead

Marietta, Ga., May 30.—(AP)—Bitterness of the war between the states seemed far away today as old men who fought in the gray of the confederacy and those who followed Grant in the Union's blue marched together to the National cemetery and held memorial services for federal soldiers. A band from the 22d infantry of the regular army led the procession through the streets. Hundreds of Union soldiers killed in battles around Atlanta on Sherman's march to the sea are buried here.

WORLD'S FAIR TO OPEN ONE YEAR FROM TOMORROW

Schools, Clubs, and Civic Groups to Celebrate.

World's Fair day will be celebrated throughout the city tomorrow, exactly one year before the official opening of the exposition. The day was set aside for observance in a recent proclamation of Mayor A. J. Cermak.

Special programs will be held in the public schools, women's clubs, the Chicago Board of Trade and civic organizations. The Chicago Association of Commerce and the Illinois Manufacturers' association have issued statements calling upon their members to participate. John Burke, president of the Chicago Hotel association, announced yesterday that hotels will fly flags and banners.

Science Hall to Be Dedicated.

At the site of the exposition itself the celebration will center about the dedication of the hall of science. The program will start at 3 p. m. when the 25 tone carillon on the tower of the building will sound for the first time. Use of the chimes has been given by the J. C. Deagan company.

Following the carillon demonstration, the Rt. Rev. Bernard J. Sheil, bishop auxiliary of Chicago, will pronounce the invocation. The Roosevelt High school symphonic choir, Erhardt Bergstrasser conducting, will give the "Prayer of America." Then will come the introduction of Dr. Henry Crew, chief of the exposition's science division.

Fireworks on Program.

The dedicatory address wil be delivered by Dr. Frank B. Jewett of New York, chairman of the science advisory committee of the national research council, and vice president of the American Telegraph and Telephone company. This will be followed by the high school's presentation of "Ecce Sacerdos Magnus," Dr. J. Lewis Browne conducting.

At night there will be a carillon concert, a demonstration drill by the United States coast guard, and fireworks.

Memorial Day Floral Show Is Held in Garfield Park

A special Memorial day floral exhibit was held yesterday at the Garfield park conservatory. Among the flowers displayed were old-fashioned spikes of foxgloves, begonias, lilies, geraniums, petunias, and orchids.

PASCHEN TAKES WITNESS STAND IN OWN DEFENSE

Spends All Memorial Day Denying Tax Evasion.

Christian P. Paschen began his own defense against the charge of income tax evasion before a jury in Federal Judge Barnes' court yesterday. He spent the entire holiday upon the witness stand and testified that his large income in 1927 and 1928 was offset by expenses and business losses. He denied any connection with three concerns which the government alleges were "dummy" companies operated for Paschen's benefit.

The cross-examination of Paschen, which may start today, is expected to last two or three days. The prosecutors accuse the former city building commissioner of evading $114,000 in taxes for 1927 and 1928 and insist that his tax returns for the two years do not honestly reflect the $1,200,000 income they claim was his.

On the Stand All Day.

Paschen settled his bulky figure in the witness chair at 10:10 a. m. and remained there until 4:45 p. m., except for an hour's luncheon period and two brief recesses. He answered with readiness the questions of Cassius Poust, his lawyer, and the court, and spoke clearly and slowly, his big voice carrying to the far corners of the courtroom.

Poust led him quickly through the preliminary questions. Paschen lives at 5909 Kenmore avenue, is 47 years old, married, is the father of two children, and has one grandchild. His occupation, he said, is building cleaning, tuck-pointing, and—after a pause—"farmer." The government will probably make light of the latter description, claiming that Paschendale, the huge acreage developed by Paschen near Antioch, was far more a country estate than a farm operated for profit.

Tells of His Company.

The Chris Paschen company, headed by the defendant, was established in 1871 by his father, a native of Germany. He always helped in the business, said Paschen, doing errands even before he left school after finishing the eighth grade. There is no link between this concern and that of Paschen Brothers, building contractors, said the witness. He smiled at his brothers, Henry and Jacob, who, with two of the defendant's nephews, Frank and Herbert Paschen, sat with defense counsel. This testimony then followed:

Q.—When did you accumulate your first large sum of money? A.—When I married. I was 20 years old and my father presented me with $20,000 in gold.

Q.—When did you accumulate your next large sum? A.—In 1908 my father gave me $120,000 and his business. He retired.

Q.—From 1908 when you were given the business until the end of 1926, did you accumulate much wealth or property. A.—At the close of that years (1926) with stocks, bonds, mortgages, property, and cash in my safety deposit box, I was worth a little more than one million dollars.

Bonus Paid to Employés.

Continuing into 1927, Paschen said that he had branch offices in Cleveland and Detroit that year, employing on his over-all pay roll 100 men ordinarily and 175 during the busy season. Now he has 30 or 35 employés, he testified. He has always paid union wages plus a bonus during the good years, he said, for it helped his men's "efficiency." He left the impression that in 1927 and 1928 he did not keep close track of his business beyond examining a monthly report prepared by an employé.

Poust then showed Paschen canceled checks introduced by the government, made out to three concerns—the Commercial Building Cleaning company, Commonwealth Cleaning company, and the L. Kuhn company—for work done on city buildings. They were indorsed by Joe Sladek, Paschen's manager during 1927 and 1928, and the government has sought to show that identical sums reached Paschen's bank account. Paschen denied that he had indorsed the checks or gotten the money.

Denies Doing City Work for Pay.

"When I became building commissioner on April 9, 1927," Paschen said, "I told Sladek I would have nothing to do with city work. I was a public official and I didn't want to do public work. Sladek said, 'Would you object if I did it?' I told him to do as he pleased, but that I didn't want to be brought into it."

"Did you ever talk with Frank S. Wilder?" asked Poust, referring to a government witness, who said he had asked Paschen to sign indemnity bonds for work done by the alleged dummy companies.

"I never saw Wilder in my life until the morning he testified," answered Paschen.

At the close of court Paschen had almost concluded reading a record of his wage payments in 1927 and 1928, his purpose being to combat the government's charge that he padded his pay rolls. He will continue on direct examination this morning.

WOODCOCK SUSPENDS TWO AGENTS; CHARGE IS "DISOBEDIENCE"

Kansas City, Mo., May 30.—(AP)—Indefinite suspension of John B. Madden and Brice Armstrong, special federal dry agents, for "deliberate disobedience of orders" was announced tonight by Col. Amos W. W. Woodcock, director of prohibition enforcement.

Woodcock said the agents had failed to coöperate with S. M. Brewster, United States district attorney, in conducting an "important investigation" in western Kansas.

The director, who was here after a tour of inspection in the west, said Madden had declined to deliver documentary evidence to Brewster and Armstrong had refused to report to Kansas City for instructions. They are now in Hutchinson, Kas.

Madden's suspension is his second. He was suspended last fall for failure to report to a new post at Seattle, but was reinstated after he pleaded illness.

Woodcock declined to identify the case under investigation, but said a federal grand jury would convene in the case June 22. On May 15 Federal Judge Richard J. Hopkins announced at Wichita, Kas., that a grand jury would convene there June 22 to consider an alleged Reno county liquor conspiracy.

The association advocates the removal of state route 42 and U. S. route 41 to a location west of Sheridan road and the refusal of certificates for truck and bus routes along Sheridan road or through north shore towns. The location of state route 37 along the Skokie valley electric line from Chicago to the Wisconsin border and the prevention of further expenditures for widening and changing the grade of Sheridan road for the purpose of increasing speed and the density of traffic are other points in the association program.

Portuguese Workers Strike Against 2% Tax for Jobless

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LISBON, Portugal, May 30.—A twenty-four hour general strike was in progress today as a protest by workers against a 2 per cent tax for the unemployment fund. Slight disturbances occurred in Lisbon, but elsewhere no disorders were reported. At Oporto 20,000 persons stopped work. Bakeries and tramways were operated by civilians mobilized by military authorities.

EXPERT FINDS SCHOOL WASTE IN BUILDING COSTS

Will Give Figures in Report on Survey.

BY OSCAR HEWITT.

Dr. George D. Strayer of Columbia university said yesterday that the Chicago board of education could save money on its construction of school buildings. He is the director of survey of the Chicago schools, costing $100,000, which he will submit to the board in ten volumes at its special session tomorrow.

It is expected that Dr. Strayer and his staff will tell the school trustees where they are wasting the taxpayers' money on buildings, and how much they are throwing away.

Mayor Cermak and Gov. Emmerson's tax conference have told the board that it paid $1,515,391 in excess profits on the Parker, Kelvyn Park and Wright Junior High schools alone. This alleged excess amounts to more than 30 per cent.

Others have intimated that the board has wasted money on junior high schools by ordering unnecessary facilities. It is expected that Dr. Strayer will give his opinion on both kinds of wastefulness.

Rooms in School Listed.

The Wright Junior High school, costing $1,645,341—on which Mayor Cermak charges there was an excess profit of $611,597—has one swimming pool, one boys' gymnasium, one girls' gymnasium, with lockers and showers, a lunch room, a kitchen, a serving room, a library, an assembly hall, a music room, a band room and an orchestra room, a general metal shop, an electric shop, a wood working shop, a printing shop, two cooking rooms, four science rooms, a civics room, two mechanical drawing rooms, two sewing rooms, four art rooms, one typewriter room, two commercial rooms, and 27 class rooms.

The Kelvyn Park Junior High school cost $809,778. Mayor Cermak charges that the "excess profit on this school was $403,794." This building has only six class rooms, but it has 12 special rooms and shops, one chorus room, one band and orchestra room, a boys' gymnasium, a girls' gymnasium, a new cooking room, a lunch room, and a library.

Wiring Cost Is $87,750.

Mayor Cermak has charged that the electric wiring on the Kelvyn Park school cost $87,750, while in a suburban school of about the same size the electric wiring cost only $7,292. The heating in the Kelvyn Park school cost $141,257, while in the suburban school it was only $42,897. The painting of the Kelvyn Park cost $15,746, according to the mayor, while the suburban painting job cost $6,505.

LINDBERGHS BACK AT HOPEWELL HOME; IN TOUCH WITH POLICE

New York, May 30.—[Special.]—Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh were back at their Hopewell home today after spending the week-end at the home of Mrs. Dwight W. Morrow in Englewood, N. J.

Col. Lindbergh will keep in close touch with the police efforts to find the slayers of his only son. With that in view he expected to divide his time during the summer between his Hopewell home and the Morrow homes at Englewood and North Haven, Me.

With state police in new search headquarters at the police training school about five miles from Trentou, the police had nothing new to report on the progress of the case.

COUNTY REVENUE 100 MILLION SHY ON PENALTY DATE

Treasurer Expects Only 45% Collection.

BY OSCAR HEWITT.

The major local governments will probably be $100,000,000 short of the revenue needed to meet their 1930 obligations when the penalty deadline on tax delinquencies arrives at midnight tomorrow night.

The tax collections yesterday and Saturday totaled only $1,231,459. This brings the total collections for the entire county up to $122,868,079, which is approximately 42.3 per cent of the county's aggregate tax bill of $290,284,505. The payments today and tomorrow, County Treasurer Joseph B. McDonough expects, will bring the total collections to $130,000,000, or 45 per cent of the taxes assessed.

Too Optimistic on Losses.

Of the total county tax bill for 1930 the major local governments levied $240,495,842. These governmental agencies include the city, library, schools, county, forest preserve, municipal tuberculosis sanitarium, the pension funds, three large park boards, and the sanitary district.

These governments reckoned there would be a loss and cost of collection of 10 per cent, or $24,049,000. So they proceeded to spend $216,446,000 of the taxes they had levied. The tax payments so far indicate that they will have an aggregate tomorrow night of $114,872,000 with which to pay $216,446,000 of debts.

"I'm convinced that the people haven't the money," said Treasurer McDonough. "They can't pay the taxes assessed, especially the owners of real estate and small homes. Taxes are too high.

"We will get in as much money from railroads and personal property as has been collected annually in the three previous years. Personal property paid $26,800,000 on 1927 taxes, $25,958,000 on 1928 taxes, $25,859,000 on 1929 taxes. On 1930 taxes—now in collection—$26,401,000 has been paid.

$12,000,000 from Railways.

"Railroads have not done quite so well in the current taxes. They have paid $8,622,000, but I expect about $1,200,000 tomorrow from the North Western railroad, about $1,800,000 from the Rapid Transit company and smaller amounts from other railroads. The railroads probably will pay a total of $12,000,000 in comparison with $12,258,000 for 1929, $10,842,000 for 1928, and $11,019,000 for 1927.

"But owners of real estate are apparently in bad shape. So far they have paid $87,700,000 on 1930 taxes. They paid $140,285,000 on 1929 taxes, $144,614,000 on 1928 taxes, and $162,992,000 on 1927 taxes."

"What do you estimate will be the total collections on the 1930 taxes?" he was asked.

"We have done considerable calculating on that," replied McDonough. "The property owners have had since Feb. 23 in which to pay taxes. This is a longer period for payment than has been allowed for more than 30 years, and we have gotten in less than 42½ per cent of the taxes assessed. We expect to get in 45 per cent or about $130,000,000 before the penalty must be applied. We will get in still more through the sale of property for taxes, but it does not now look as if half of the tax bills would be paid before the 1930 books are closed."

Collections Are Tabulated.

Property—	Levied.	Paid.	Pct. paid.
Personal ..	55,492,239	26,401,150	47.7

Treasurer McDonough said more people are paying on account than in previous years.

"The part payers are owners of real estate, and especially of homes," he said. "Poor people write the office asking how they can put off payments, and whether they can pay a few dollars a month on account. The great mass of home owners are straining themselves, I believe, to pay their taxes. Yet tens of thousands have not paid, because they haven't the cash."

County Judge Jarecki, to whom the delinquent tax payers must appeal, emphasized again yesterday the necessity for action.

"If $100,000,000 has been spent and cannot be collected," he said, "we are headed for more serious trouble than the local governments have ever experienced. We cannot go on in that fashion."

Nearly 500 persons paid their taxes yesterday.

CERMAK SEEKS RELIEF

Mayor Cermak said yesterday that if another special session of the legislature is called this year he would seek legislation to extend tax penalty dates for property owners unable to pay their taxes.

"In normal times there are 1,550,000 persons employed in Chicago," said the mayor. "Now there are only 700,000 employés and 60 per cent of those are working only part time. Something should be done to keep those of the unemployed who own their homes from losing them because of nonpayment of taxes."

Such a bill was introduced in a recent special session by Senator Thomas J. Courtney, but was killed in committee. His bill, which was supported by the mayor, provided that the county judge could, on proper proof, extend the penalty date for the collection of taxes from distressed property owners.

Alky Truck Driver Seized in Mendota Is Held Here

George Lewis, 25 years old, of Burlington, Ia., was held yesterday at the detective bureau for the federal authorities following his arrest Sunday in Mendota, where he was seized with 450 gallons of alcohol on the truck he was driving. Lewis was on his way to Burlington from Milwaukee with the cargo, which was valued at $2,250. It was charged that he offered Government Agent Howard C. Beaudrie a bribe of $1,000 for freedom.

FOUR MOTORISTS LOSE LIVES IN HOLIDAY CRASHES

Brothers Killed When Car Skids and Overturns.

Four persons were killed in holiday automobile accidents yesterday in the metropolitan area. In an accident at 135th street and Keane avenue, Orland Park, last night two brothers were fatally injured. In another crash last night in Libertyville a woman was killed and her sister critically hurt. A girl was killed and two others critically injured in a third crash at Jackson boulevard and Michigan avenue early yesterday.

The south side victims were Wendelin Socher, 32 years old, and Nicholas Socher, 28, both of Glencoe. Wendelin was a gardener on the estate of Charles Sincere, 126 Beach avenue, Glencoe, investment broker. Nicholas was unemployed. They were driving north in Keane avenue when their car skidded and overturned. Nicholas, the driver, was dead when taken from the wreckage. Wendeline was taken to the Burnside hospital by Dr. W. R. Schussler and died there.

Miss Sylvia Shanks, 42 years old, of 450 Prairie avenue, secretary to Britton I. Budd, head of the Rapid Transit company, was the victim of the Libertyville accident. Her sister, Miss Dorothy Shanks, 35, president of the Libertyville Women's club, suffered a skull fracture.

The sisters' car collided with an auto driven by Byron A. Belland, 18 years old, a freshman at Lake Forest university. With him was his sister, Charlotte, 24, of Walworth, Wis. Both were slightly hurt. They told Chief Frank Druba the Shanks sisters failed to stop at a traffic signal.

Girl and Policeman Hurt.

Miss Jean Sable, 21 years old, of 5541 Everett avenue, a cashier in the Stevens restaurant, 17 North State street, was killed in the collision at Jackson boulevard and Michigan avenue.

Her sister, Bernice, 22, and Sergt. Walter McGloon, of the Warren avenue station, who was with them, were seriously hurt. They are in St. Luke's hospital. The three were en route to the Indianapolis races when their machine collided with a car containing Anthony Iesulauro, 28, of 1836 Calumet avenue, and Dave Levy, 40, of 3248 West 16th street, a doorman at Colosimo's café. They were technically held.

The deaths of the Socher brothers, Miss Sable and two others increased the Cook county automobile death toll for 1932 to 451. The victims:

Joseph Novak, 64, of 2114 South Albany avenue. Died yesterday at the county hospital. He was struck May 12 by an automobile driven by Mrs. Lucille Jensen, 22, 5044 Argyle street, at Kedzie avenue and Franklin boulevard.

Henry Schmidt, 9 years old, 465 North Peoria street. Died in Franklin Boulevard hospital last night shortly after he was struck by an automobile at Grand avenue and Peoria street. Nels Holter, 3038 Franklin boulevard, driver of the car, was ordered to attend the inquest.

BROTHERS KILLED

WENDELIN SOCHER NICHOLAS SOCHER.

SISTERS, LOST TO EACH OTHER 21 YEARS, REUNITED

Two sisters, separated for twenty-one years, were reunited in Chicago yesterday. They are Miss Mary Esther Angalladian, 25 years old, who lives in Tessville, and Mrs. Rose Angalladian Nazareth, 30, of Los Angeles.

They were brought together through a seven year search made by Attorney J. Edward Clancy. As a result of his efforts the sisters will each receive $3,500 from the estate of their father, George Angalladian, who died at Marseilles, France, in 1925.

According to Attorney Clancy, the sisters were separated in Chicago in 1911, two years after their mother, now living in Los Angeles, divorced Angalladian. Rose remained with her mother. Mary was shifted from one orphanage to another. With the death of Angalladian, a search for Mary was begun by Mr. Clancy. His efforts were futile until, last January, newspapers mentioned his search. He knew the missing heiress only as Mary Hacker. The story brought him the missing girl. Two days ago Rose arrived from California, and the meeting between her and her long lost sister took place.

HERRIOT VIEWS GERMAN CRISIS WITH ALARM

PARIS, May 30.—(AP)—The German political crisis was described today as "most disquieting" by Edouard Herriot, who is likely to be the next premier of France. In an article entitled "grave situation," published at Lyons, his home town, Herriot said Germany's military budget for 1932 and "anti-Polish agitation" by the followers of Adolf Hitler had especially to be watched by France.

Dissolution of the Reichstag and fresh gains for Adolf Hitler's National Socialist party in the ensuing German elections were suggested by the newspaper Le Temps as a likely aftermath to the resignation of Dr. Heinrich Bruening's cabinet.

Neither the former German chancellor, nor the center and left republic arties of Germany gained any political benefit for their recent efforts to reelect President Paul von Hindenburg, the newspaper remarked. Former Premier Herriot, whose designation as the head of a new French government was indicated by President Albert Lebrun last week, is known to be studying closely the German situation.

TEXTILE WORKERS CALL OFF STRIKE.

ferred an exceptional measure of confidence upon Bruening, followed yesterday's private audience between the two. It was learned today that the octogenarian president frankly revealed an altered attitude, chiefly towards Bruening's internal policies.

There were also personal influences at work. Bruening's plan for settling the unemployed on the estates of the junkers and his new emergency decrees calling for additional taxes to meet budgetary and other deficits displeased the president. On his recent vacation at Neudeck, East Prussia, the aristocratic land owners pleaded with Von Hindenburg to alter the decrees. Bruening held that the republic has been financing the East Prussian junkers for years, saving their estates for them through direct loans and exorbitant duties on foodstuffs which trebled the price of basic foods in Germany as compared with other countries.

Junkers Cry "Bolshevization."

Estates found in poor condition were to be foreclosed and turned over to the unemployed.

President von Hindenburg, it is known, would like to have Bruening continue as foreign minister, but the chancellor himself has refused to consider the post, announcing that a reactionary cabinet would make it impossible for him to conduct Germany's affairs satisfactorily at the Lausanne conference.

Von Hindenburg's supporters, on the contrary, are convinced that "a cabinet of new men, experts in their line," will facilitate negotiations.

The most prominently mentioned for the chancellorship are Otto Gessler, former minister of war; Baron Wilhelm von Gayl, East Prussian junker who organized the anti-bolshevik forces in 1919; Count Kuno von Westarp, leader of the People's Conservative party; Oscar von der Osten, formerly East Prussia's representative on the federal economic advisory council; Dr. Hjalmer Schacht, Hitler's financial adviser and former president of the reichsbank; Dr. Guenther Gereke, leader of the Farmers' party, and Gen. Paul Hasse.

SEA LORDS PLAN TO ARM BRITISH MERCHANT SHIPS

Would Place Guns on Commerce Vessels.

BY JOHN STEELE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, May 30.—The sea lords of the admiralty, it was learned today, have approved and forwarded to the imperial defense committee a plan to arm practically all British merchant ships, thus enormously increasing the strength of the British navy.

The plan is in answer to a demand from the cabinet for further cuts in naval strength in the interests of economy. The argument of the sea lords is that if the plan is adopted the merchantmen will be able to defend themselves and even undertake minor offensive operations, thus releasing the navy for offensive fighting.

Would Put Turrets on Ships.

The sea lords recommend that the board of trade order all ships of more than 3,000 tons fitted with turrets fore and aft which in peace could be used as deck houses.

All vessels of more than 10,000 tons under the plan are to carry the kind of guns described as "saluting batteries," but consisting of six, nine, and twelve inch guns, as perscribed by the admiralty.

All vessels, in peace or war, would carry naval reserve officers and men as deck crews, the percentage to the total crew being according to the size and the accommodations for passengers. The navy would also have the right to put a gunnery officer aboard any ship without notice.

Favor Anti-Aircraft Guns.

Regarding air defense, while the sea lords think all capital ships should carry anti-aircraft guns, it was recommended that the matter be referred to the air ministry for action.

All new ocean going ships would be compelled to be constructed with anti-mine and anti-submarine bilges like those now used on warships, and propellers would be protected as in the new warships.

The sea lords also recommend the creation of a new office, that of "admiral inspector of auxiliary marine."

If these recommendations are accepted, the sea lords will be able to reconsider the secret minimum for the fleet which was submitted to the imperial defense committee earlier in the year.

ITALY TO BURY GARIBALDI'S WIFE AT ROMAN SHAFT

Nation to Honor Memory of Patriot's Mate.

ROME, May 30.—(AP)—The body of Anita Garibaldi, whom her husband, the red shirted liberator, Gen. Giuseppe Garibaldi, called "the most perfect human creature known to mankind," will be brought here from Genoa Thursday for burial under her statue on Janiculum hill overlooking the Vatican.

GEN. EZIO GARIBALDI. (P. Thompson Photo.)

But Italy will begin six days' homage to the memory of Gen. Garibaldi and his martyred Brazilian wife tomorrow, the fiftieth anniversary of the patriot's death.

Will Unveil Monument.

All Italy will honor the memory of the emancipator's brave companion while her body is en route to its final burial ground, recalling in speeches and print how she shared his rude lot during ten years of campaigning and died in his arms during one of his most disastrous military reverses.

The monument to be unveiled here depicts her on horseback fleeing from the enemy.

A pilgrimage of hundreds of war veterans and government and diplomatic officials will be made to witness the burial and participate in memorial services for the general.

The body will leave Genoa aboard a special funeral train, escorted by veterans of Garibaldi's legions and of the world war.

Gen. Ezio Garibaldi, grandson of Anita, and his American wife, the former Hope McMichael of Philadelphia, also will accompany it.

It will arrive in Rome June 2 and lie in state in the royal salon of the Central railroad station, with an honor guard of troops and veterans, until the next day, when it will be taken to Janiculum hill so that the statue can be unveiled in its presence. A solemn funeral procession will escort the body to the top of the hill.

Matches Husband's Monument.

The monument, a massive stone affair made to match that of Gen. Garibaldi, which also stands atop the hill, will be unveiled June 4, sponsored by Queen Elena. Premier Mussolini and other high government officials are expected to be present.

Anita Garibaldi, although a foreigner by birth, is held in perhaps greater esteem than any other woman in Italian history. She was noted for her tender qualities as a wife and mother as well as for her fearlessness under fire.

She is said to have followed her husband often into the thick of the fray and she died in a peasant's hut while the enemy was pressing hard on the heels of Garibaldi's army, retreating from Rome. Garibaldi buried the body at Nice and a few months ago it was transferred to Genoa.

U.S.-TOKIO PLANE, LOADING FUEL IN AIR, FALLS IN BAY

Browne, Helper Saved, Not Greatly Hurt.

Seattle, Wash., May 30.—(AP)—A spectacular plunge into Elliott bay here today ended the trans-Pacific flight attempt of Nathan C. Browne, New York aviator, which interrupted an attempt to fuel in the air.

Browne and his volunteer assistant in the fueling operation, Frank Brooks, were fished out of the water by a pleasure party in a sea sled. Browne had a dislocated shoulder. Brooks was unhurt.

"We both left the plane at the same time," Brooks said. "We couldn't help it. When the wing tore off we were left sitting almost in the open air.

"It rained plane all around us as we settled in our parachutes to the water. We left the plane at an altitude of about 500 feet and the chutes opened about 100 feet before we struck."

Forced Down by Fuel Hose.

Brooks said the wing was torn off in a steep dive caused when the weighted nozzle of the gasoline hose dangling from the fueling plane above caught in the stabilizer of Browne's plane and lifted the tail and smashed the rudder assembly.

Browne was clinging to wreckage when he was picked up some distance from where the fuselage of the plane dropped into the deep water.

A total of 654 gallons of gasoline made Browne's plane weigh about four tons. He had planned to load 300 more gallons from the fueling plane and then make a dash for Tokio.

It was Browne's second narrow escape from death in two days. Yesterday an oil leak in his motor developed after he had flown several hundred miles toward his goal.

Blinded by hot oil, Browne managed to maneuver to a higher altitude until he could recover his vision. When he saw how much oil he was losing he dumped most of his gasoline and returned here.

Grazes Tree on Takeoff.

It was only upon his return here that he discovered that he had broken a stabilizer wire in grazing a tree on the takeoff. He had noticed the ship was vibrating slightly but had decided to take a chance and proceed.

Flyers here expressed the opinion the tail assembly would have shaken off before Browne could possibly have reached Tokio, making his plane unmanageable.

The perilous takeoff yesterday decided Browne in favor of midair fueling and a cabin plane was hurriedly fitted up with extra tank for the attempt today.

Due to Browne's failure to complete the flight, the $30,000 prize fund raised by Seattle aviation enthusiasts five years ago will be returned to its donors.

One condition of the prize fund stipulates that the flight must be completed by midnight on June 1. Browne had only a few hours to spare on his quest for the goal. Unfavorable winds had held him on the ground here for the last week.

Bromley Lands at Amarillo.

Amarillo, Tex., May 30.—(AP)—Harold Bromley, Texas flyer who set out from New York early today in an oil-burning monoplane on a projected nonstop flight to Burbank, Cal., landed at the airport here at 9:35 p. m. (C. S. T.) tonight. He said he would resume the flight to Burbank tomorrow.

Guizerson, president of the corporation backing Bromley's flight, said the company's chief engineer, C. C. Spangenberger, was in Los Angeles to check the plane. If Spangenberger approves the ship, he and Bromley will fly immediately to Seattle, where fuel and oil are in readiness. After a final inspection Bromley will take off alone.

Bromley planned to start for Tokio in order to be eligible for a $30,000 award which expires June 1. "I am not anxious for Bromley to try the Tokio flight," Guizerson said. "The human element is more important than the mechanical. I believe Bromley will land in Tokio if he does take off from Seattle. He has stayod awake frequently for 48 hours at a stretch to train so that sleep will not endanger his chances."

OCEAN FLYERS VISIT CITY OF "FIRST BIRDMAN"

FLORENCE, Italy, May 30.—(AP)—Fifty flyers who have conquered the Atlantic or Pacific arrived today in the city of "the forefather of modern aviation"—Leonardo da Vinci. The flyers recently concluded the first annual congress of trans-oceanic aviators at Rome.

Some of the aviators knew only that the name da Vinci meant a great sculptor and painter. They were informed by city officials that it was in this city that Leonardo made those studies by which he laid down the very principles of aviation that enabled today's visitors to fly the Atlatic or the Pacific.

It was here that the sixteeth century genius sketched and planned the balloon, the parachute and the modern heavier-than-air machine. The city fathers pointed out the hill overlooking Florence where Leonardo stood month after month and watched so attentively the flight of birds. That was more than four centuries ago, or about the year Columbus plowed the path across the Atlantic. Modern aeronautical engineers say da Vinci could have built and flown a glider if he had followed the principles he set down.

2 TONS DYNAMITE SEIZED BY CUBA IN RAID ON 'REBELS'

HAVANA, Cuba, May 30.—(AP)—Dispatches from Camaguey tonight said several men had been arrested there and a quantity of dynamite and hand grenades seized in connection with the recent sending of a bomb to Capt. Samaniego, military supervisor there.

Among those imprisoned in the Camaguey jail is a priest named Mendiola. The authorities seized 190 packages of dynamite, each containing 25 pounds, and fifty hand grenades.

Terrorism in Cuba was taken up for consideration by the house of representatives tonight. More than 250 persons have been imprisoned recently as suspects in what the government described as a terrorist campaign.

AIR FLEET ROARS ABOVE CARDINAL AT SCHOOL RITE

Institution Dedicated to Train Poor Boys.

BY THE REV. JOHN EVANS.

The roar of an airplane fleet was attuned to the ancient Latin liturgies of the Catholic church at the dedication yesterday of the Holy Name Technical school at Lockport. A crowd of 70,000 watched Cardinal Mundelein ascend the high open air altar for the ceremony while Holy Name choristers chanted ancient hymns and army planes circled and dipped in salute. The school will train poor boys in aviation mechanics.

FREDERICK H. MASSMAN.

According to the Rev. Timothy Rowan, editor of the New World, the dedication was unique in church history. He said that probably never before had an altar been erected on an airplane landing field and that for the first time a hangar with its completely equipped machine shop for the care of planes and motors had been blessed by a high church dignitary.

Massmann Made Knight.

One of the colorful events of the day was the investment of Frederick H. Massmann, president of the Holy Name society, as a knight of St. Gregory. Assisting in this ceremony were other papal knights in uniform. The honor of knighthood, it was announced, was granted to Mr. Massmann for his work in promoting the social, educational and religious advancement of Catholic boys of Chicago.

Cardinal Mundelein, in his address pointed to two dangers of the present time which threaten youth. The first, he said, was enforced idleness in which "youthful enthusiasm and ambition is evaporating." These idle youths will not be so anxious to return to work when employment becomes possible, said Cardinal Mundelein, for "idleness grows on its victims like the drug habit."

The second danger resulting from present economic conditions pointed out by Cardinal Mundelein is the fact that when the change for the better comes it will come slowly. "For a long time," he said, "there will be many applicants for each job. The trades will be crowded, I believe, for years to come. We have no intention to add to the number of these applicants. When these, our boys, go from here, they go to positions that are waiting for them."

Eagle Scouts Form Guard.

During the benediction pronounced by Rt. Rev. Msgr. Thomas P. Bona, Eagle scouts bearing American flags were grouped about the altar. More than 2,500 scouts, representing 200 troops of the entire archdiocese were present. Twelve Eagle scouts formed a special guard of honor for Cardinal Mundelein as he moved from point to point giving his blessing to the various departments of the school.

When completed the school will have 12 buildings on the 160 acre tract which was donated by Michael Fitzpatrick, Will county pioneer. It is expected that the first class will be organized during the summer. Already several thousand applications for admission have been received. From these about 500 worthy boys will be enrolled. They will be housed, fed, clothed and taught a trade. The age limit for admission is 14 years.

The school will be maintained by the Holy Name society and by revenue from the Catholic Salvage bureau.

Prison Gait Brings Arrest of Parole Law Violator

BOARDMAN WINS HOLMAN TROPHY AT PLANE RACES

Livingston Leads Winners for Meet.

Omaha, Neb., May 30.—(AP)—Russell Boardman, trans-Atlantic flyer, Springfield, Mass., was awarded the Charles "Speed" Holman aerobatics trophy here late today following a thrilling contest with Roy Wilson and Frank Clark, two Hollywood movie stunt fliers. The contest was the closing event of the second annual Omaha air races.

Boardman duplicated with his racing plane nearly every manoeuver made by Clark and Wilson in their special stunting ships and his work was so clean-cut that he was awarded the trophy. These three flyers were the only ones to compete for the award.

The trophy is in honor of "Speed" Holman, famous St. Paul, Min., speed pilot who was killed here last year when his ship crashed in front of the grand stand as he was attempting to fly upside down past the stand at a height of 25 feet.

Livingston Takes 4 Firsts.

The official totals for prize winners showed that Johnny "Fishtail" Livingston of Aurora, Ill., had duplicated his work of last year in winning the most first places at this year's meet. Livingston won four firsts and Art Davis of Lansing, Mich., won three. Both pilots took several second and third money prizes. Livingston passed the Lansing ace in the number of first places won by easily winning the "pony express" race today.

The feature race of today's closing program, the free-for-all, was won by Bennie Howard, Chicago mail pilot. Howard's closing spurt enabled him to edge out Russell Boardman of Springfield, Mass., by 90 yards. Livingston was third and Earl Ortman of San Francisco, was fourth.

Another Illinois pilot, Harold Neumann of Moline, won the A. T. C. race with Art Chester of Joliet, Ill. second, and Bill Reedholm of Boxholm, Iowa, third.

Six Inches from Mark.

G. R. Lockhart of Omaha won the dead stick landing contest when he set his ship down just two feet six inches from the mark. Reedholm took second by landing three feet, six inches from the line.

Roger Don Rae of Lansing, landed 377 feet from the ring in the parachute jump, but the high wind blew the other jumpers even further away and Roger took first money. Jerry Wessling, Toledo, was second and Dick Hunter, Minneapolis, third.

BEG YOUR PARDON!

Police denied yesterday that Frank J. Junker, 1043 Sedgwick street, who on Sunday appeared at the Chicago avenue station and surrendered a revolver which he had owned for 30 years, said that he was doing so because he feared he might take his own life.

ONE BALLOON DOWN

Omaha, Neb., May 31.—(AP)—Five of the six balloons that took off from the Omaha municipal airport last night in the national balloon race were believed still to be in the air early today.

The sixth balloon, the Omaha Junior Chamber of Commerce entry, was forced down late last night when a leak developed in the bag. The pilot, Pete Larsen, brought the balloon down on the banks of the Missouri river ten miles north of Omaha after tossing out all of his ballast.

Larsen had experienced difficulty in the takeoff from the airport and had managed to get the balloon into the air only after the bag had dragged the basket along the ground for a quarter of a mile. After smashing through a wire fence Larsen got into the air.

The Chevrolet balloon, with Tracy Southworth, member of the Michigan state legislature, as pilot, likewise had bumped its bag along the ground before crashing its way through a fence. By heaving overboard of ballast Southworth, and his aid, John E. Engle, cleared a row of trees and took the air.

In addition to the Chevrolet entry the balloons believed still up are the United States army entry No. 1, Capt. W. J. Flood, pilot; United States army entry No. 2, Lieut. W. J. Paul, pilot; City of Omaha, E. J. Hill, pilot, and Goodyear Zeppelin corporation balloon, Roland Blair, pilot.

ARM SHOT STOPS CONVICT FLEEING BASEBALL GAME

Ossining, N. Y., May 30.—[Special.]—John Finnegan, 28 years old, serving his second term in Sing Sing for robbery in Manhattan, was shot in the left arm this afternoon in an attempt to escape while the prison nine was playing a team from Jersey City. One bullet from a watch tower machine gun caught him as he went over the wall and he dropped fifteen feet to the railroad tracks, where he was captured.

Word of the attempt was flashed to Warden Lawes and guards in all the watch towers immediately trained their guns for action, but there was no attempt to make a general break among the 2,000 convicts who, together with 200 men and women visitors, were watching the baseball game on the prison diamond.

WOMAN TRAILS ASSAILANT AND CAUSES ARREST

The perseverance of Mrs. Florence Haske, 30 years old, of 2487 Clybourn avenue, mother of four children, in trailing a man who robbed and attempted to rape her May 13, led to his arrest last night. The prisoner is Matthew Meyer, 20 years old, of 1832 Oakdale avenue. He is six feet four inches tall.

On the night of the attack Mrs. Haske was trailed and halted on a lot at Nelson street and Ravenswood avenue by a man who took her purse containing some small change and then tried to attack her. She resisted.

Since then Mrs. Haske remained on the lookout. She saw Meyer Saturday night in the neighborhood of his home. Lieut. Stephen Barry and Detectives James Le Sevour and John Lazzatutte of the Sheffield avenue station took up the trail. For 48 hours they watched and last night seized Meyer in front of his home.

DO YOU INHALE?

Is this question too revealing for other cigarettes?

WE do not criticize others. We merely call your attention to the fact that the vital subject of inhaling has been generally avoided in cigarette advertising.

Why? What's there to be afraid of? Everybody inhales! Seven out of ten smokers inhale knowingly—the other three do so without realizing it. From your side—you want to be sure that the smoke you breathe in is pure and clean—free from certain impurities.

But from the manufacturer's side—he should be sure of giving you this protection. And if he is sure—he need not worry about the question: "Do you inhale?"

Lucky Strike has dared to raise this vital question . . . because certain impurities concealed in even the finest, mildest tobacco leaves are removed by Luckies' famous purifying process. Luckies created that process. Only Luckies have it!

LEWIS REBUKES VETERAN 'BONUS ARMY' IN CAPITAL

Warns Terrorist Tactics Peril Just Demands.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 30.—[Special.]—Brig. Gen. Pelham D. Glassford, chief of the Washington police force, served notice on the 1,500 members of the "bonus army" today that when funds for their support are exhausted he will request them to leave Washington.

SENATOR JAMES HAMILTON LEWIS.

Leaders of the jobless ex-service men who marched on Washington to influence congress to enact legislation for immediate cash redemption of the bonus certificates replied that they will stay here "till 1945" if necessary, that being the date of maturity of the bonus.

Fed by Private Charity.

Congress is to be asked for an appropriation to feed and lodge the "army" which is to be augmented by several thousand more en route to the capital. Those who arrived yesterday are being lodged in vacant barracks and fed by private charity.

By adopting a course based on threat and coercion, veterans are causing their fellow countrymen in this time of national distress to wonder whether their soldiers served for patriotism or merely for pay, Senator J. Hamilton Lewis of Illinois declared today in a Memorial day address. He spoke his warning to the veterans themselves, making his appearance as orator of the day at the soldiers' home.

While he spoke fresh quotas of veterans were arriving in the capital to swell the ranks of those already here, who say they will stay in Washington until congress gives them their bonus in full.

The senator, a soldier himself during the Spanish-American war, declared that the present period of national distress was one which demanded of the veteran service instead of criticism.

Seek to Threaten Congress.

Instead, he declared, the country is treated to the sight of veterans marching on Washington to threaten congress that it must grant them favors and money. By "taunt and terror," said Senator Lewis, the veterans counted on intimidating congress.

"I warn you as your fellow soldier and friend," Senator Lewis continued, "that you risk the defeat of the relief measures you now have a right to hope for, by placing yourselves where the charge can be made that you have come here to terrorize the public servants and force their surrender through weakness or cowardice."

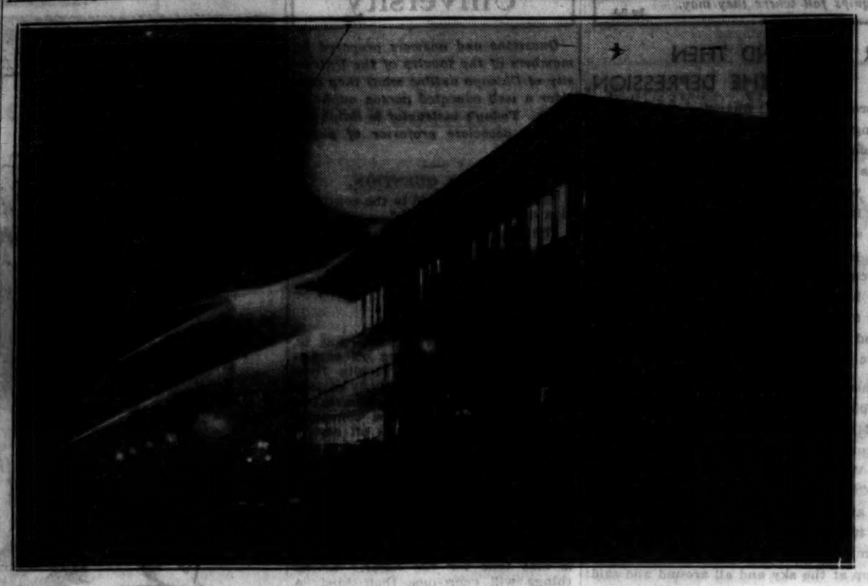
HOLDUP VICTIMS TO VIEW ROBBERS OF 310 POUNDER

Three boys who changed their plans to kidnap a victim on Sunday night when they examined him closely (he weighed 310 pounds) will be taken from the Juvenile Detention home this morning to the Summerdale police station. There they will be viewed by recent holdup victims.

The youths are: Robert Bray, 15 years old, of 6419 Greenview avenue, who weighs 95 pounds; James Luthmer, 16, of 837 Eastwood avenue, weighing 90 pounds, and Edward Damiani, 17, of 1615 Monroe street, who weighs 98 pounds. They total 283 pounds, coming short of their victim's weight by 27 pounds.

Armed with two guns, the boys confronted Zealouis Hirsch, the 310 pounder, as he drove his car into the garage in the rear of his home at 5008 Glenwood avenue. When he objected to their announced decision of moving him to the back seat they looked him over and agreed. He in turn agreed to get out of the car, which the boys drove to Francisco and Devon avenues, where they were sighted by police and arrested.

Mysterious Blaze Keeps Third of Fire Department Busy



Flames sweeping through the vacant building at 1701-21 South Wabash avenue, formerly occupied by the H. H. Kohlsaat Bakery company and later used as a storehouse by the Chicago Civic Opera company. Two firemen were injured and the firemen were kept busy playing streams of water upon nearby buildings to prevent the fire from spreading. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

G. O. P. JUDGES FIGHT PLAN FOR ELECTING CHIEF

Charge Rivals Seek to Retain Rule.

Republican judges in the Circuit and Superior courts expressed hostility yesterday to the plan to have the chief justice of the Criminal court chosen by the judges of that branch instead of by all of the judges.

The Republican judges charged that the proposal was an effort to perpetuate the Democratic control of the chief justiceship, which suddenly has become more powerful since the state Supreme court held recently that only those judges assigned to Criminal courts have power to act in Criminal court matters.

Power Rivals Prosecutor's.

They explained that the chief justice of the Criminal courts controls the grand jury and special grand juries, and his power is sufficient, practically speaking, to offset that of the state's attorney—who now is a Republican.

None of the judges was willing to state openly his attitude. All of them asked that their names be not used. All of them, however, charged that the move was purely political and indicated that they were girding for a battle when the election time for the new chief justice arrives early in June.

They pointed out that unless the election is carried on by all the judges and in accordance with the terms of the "gentlemen's agreement" among the judges, which provides that the office of chief justice shall be alternated each year between the Circuit and Superior courts and shall never be given to the same judge for two successive terms, the Democratic judges would claim the chief justiceship as their exclusive own.

Six Judges Democrats.

Out of seven sitting Criminal court judges only one is Republican, the Republican judges added. The present judges and their affiliations are: Republican, George Fred Rush; Democratic, Harry M. Fisher, the present chief justice, John Prystalski, Walter T. Stanton, Phillip L. Sullivan, Rudolph F. Desort, and James J. Kelly.

"If the election is not carried on as before," one of the judges said, "we cannot even be sure that the same Democratic judge might not be reelected to the post indefinitely. Certainly the office would be a power to oppose, politically, the state's attorney."

State's Attorney Swanson could not be reached at his home yesterday, but it was learned that his attitude toward the innovation is much like that of other Republican officials.

Several Democratic judges praised the plan, saying: "We have always felt that it was a good thing to have a Democratic chief justice when there is a Republican state's attorney."

SOUTH HAVEN TREASURER DIES.

Benton Harbor, Mich., May 30.—[Special.]—W. F. Grady, 60, city treasurer of South Haven, Van Buren county, is dead following a stroke.

Order Inquiry

An investigation was ordered yesterday by Fire Attorney Thomas J. Sheehan into the causes of a spectacular fire which early yesterday caused damage estimated at $300,000 to the old Kohlsaat bakery building at 1701-21 South Wabash avenue. At St. Luke's hospital Firemen Edward O'Neill and Raymond Burke of Engine Company 17, who were injured by a live wire that fell on them during the fire, were reported out of danger. Fire Marshal Michael Corrigan was of the opinion that the fire was incendiary.

Dance Hall Burns; Firemen Helpless for Lack of Water

Fire of unknown origin destroyed the Colonial Park dance pavilion, near the Des Plaines river north of Melrose Park, early yesterday. The hall stood in unincorporated territory and firemen from Melrose Park and Maywood, who responded to the alarm, were forced to stand by and watch it burn because there were no water mains near by. Ernest W. Hoelterhoff, the owner, estimated the loss at $15,000. The place had been closed for several months.

STOVE GRATES TIED TO BODY.

Bay Shore, L. I., May 30.—[Special.]—With two stove grates tied to his shoulders, the body of John Norby, 36, was found in the waters off Bay Shore today. Norby, a painter, lived here on a house boat.

POLICE CLEARED OF FLOGGING NUDE WOMEN IN INDIA

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, May 30.—A sensational story by Indian revolutionists a few months ago that Indian policemen stripped and flogged Indian girls of good family at Benares was finally disposed of today by Sir Samuel Hoare, secretary for India, in the house of commons.

Sir Samuel said that the policemen mentioned had been tried by magistrates and were acquitted. The fact is, he said, that the girls were not of good family, but were low caste widows who had left the protection of their husbands' families and were tools in the hands of a seditious paper which had printed the story of the alleged outrage.

The magistrates reported that the entire case against the police was false.

Crazed Man Kills Doctor, Barricades Home to Police

Monroe, La., May 30.—(AP)—A deranged railroad worker called Dr. Baxter Porter to his home today, shot him to death, and held the body in his barricaded home for an hour, when police and neighbors attempted to enter. There was no intimation of impending danger in the summons the physician received from James Newson, 35, the crazed man. He finally agreed to admit a fellow worker, who persuaded Newson to surrender.

SEABURY WORKS ON NEW LEAD TO INVOLVE WALKER

Follows Trail of Money Paid Third Person.

[Copyright: 1932: By the New York Times.]

New York, May 30.—[Special.]—An attempt to show a close financial connection between Mayor Walker and Russell T. Sherwood, his missing accountant, through payments from the accounts of each to a mysterious person whose identity has not been disclosed, will be made by Samuel Seabury, counsel for the Hofstadter legislative committee when the public hearings are resumed tomorrow morning.

Will Call Accountant.

This person, understood to be a friend of the mayor, is believed by Mr. Seabury to have received considerable sums from Sherwood's brokerage accounts. Mr. Seabury will try to prove this by the testimony of James T. Ellis, one of the committee's accountants who testified that analysis of Sherwood's account in the Central Hanover bank showed that he had paid $15,500 to Mrs. Nan Walker Burke, the mayor's sister.

It is understood that it is Mr. Seabury's intention not to divulge the name of the person who, he hopes to prove, received payments from Sherwood's brokerage accounts. In questioning the mayor last Thursday Mr. Seabury asked the witness about his authorization of a payment of $7,500 from the Paul Block joint stock account, by which the mayor profited to the extent of $246,692.

Following Up $263,838.

Mr. Seabury's purpose in trying to link the accounts of the mayor and Sherwood is to get some explanation of the withdrawal by Sherwood of $263,838 from the investment trustee account with Hornblower & Weeks on Aug. 9, 1927, the day before the mayor left for Europe on a trip, the routine expenses of which, the mayor has testified, were paid by the late Rodman Wanamaker and for which in addition a letter of credit for $10,000 was purchased by J. Allan Smith, one of the promoters of the Equitable Coach company.

RACKETEERS OFFER PHILADELPHIA MAN BRIBE OF $50,000

Philadelphia, Pa., May 30.—[Special.]—Friends of Kern Dodge, director of public safety, revealed today that racketeers had offered him a $50,000 bribe to be permitted to open lavishly furnished gambling and liquor establishments. The disclosure came when Director Dodge, an avowed wet, announced plans for "clamping the lid down tighter than ever," and ridiculed reports of a rift between himself and Mayor J. Hampton Moore growing out of police liquor raiding activities.

The bribe offer to the director was made a few days before he assumed his present post early in the year. Three men called upon him and one of them told of plans for opening a "fancy restaurant," saying that a "liberal" like Mr. Dodge would have no trouble in making $50,000 for his part in the project.

Dodge never discovered what offer they intended to make, it is learned, for he ordered the delegation out of his office.

HE'LL TRAVEL 6 MONTHS BY DOG POWER TO FAIR

Behind a team of twenty-five young "huskies," George R. Goshaw, fur trader, will start "mushing" for Chicago from Cape Prince of Wales, Alaska, next October. Goshaw plans to arrive at the 1933 World's Fair after six months of daily travel by dog sled.

Exposition officials were appraised of Goshaw's plans yesterday in a letter from Shishmaref, Alaska. "From Cape Prince of Wales," said Goshaw in explaining his itinerary, "I will drive the dog team along the Arctic ocean shore to Point Barrow, the northernmost point of the continent, thence eastward to Mackenzie river and thence southerly across Canada to Chicago, arriving in time for the opening of the transportation building and to participate in the travel and transport pageants."

Goshaw's dogs will be under 4 years old and of the Siberian-Malamute breed. He will have a small portable radio broadcasting outfit and a moving picture machine with him. The pictures of animal and human life along the trail will be exhibited during the Fair.

"The newspaper is an institution developed by modern civilization to present the news of the day, to foster commerce and industry, to inform and mold public opinion, and to furnish that check upon government which no constitution has ever been able to provide."

MILWAUKEE FINDS OUT.

Milwaukee, which had grown a little smug with much praise over its financial position, has found out it is being taxed to death, just like other cities. It has been credulous of plausible politicians, and now its bills must be paid. It has had its dance, and now, like others, must pay the fiddler.

It has reached the limit of its bonded indebtedness and the extent of unpaid taxes is appalling.

Now Milwaukee finds out that it has a bonded indebtedness of nearly $47,000,000 of its own, plus $24,000,000 as the city's share of the indebtedness of the county and the metropolitan sewage district, making an obligation of $71,000,000.

Milwaukee finds out that if all its public employés from Mayor Hoan, through the fire and police departments, the school teachers, down to the poorest paid of them, were to give their services free, a tax rate of more than $6 per thousand still would be needed to pay the interest and the sinking fund. It learns that every one of the 525,000 residents of the city owes a public debt of $135, or $675 for the average family of five persons.

Milwaukee finds out it has no unincumbered cash balance to speak of and that its taxes are so burdensome that home owners are unable to pay them. The city council and the county board become feverishly active at the demands of semi-public organizations of business men and taxpayers. Meetings are held to balance the budgets by slashing expenditures, there are talks of economies, salary reductions, and what not.

Milwaukee finds out that $11,872,000 of its tax levy of $25,280,988 was unpaid on Jan. 31, 1932—being either delinquent or extended, 46 per cent of its levy unpaid when due. In 1921 only $1,723,757, or 11 per cent of the tax, was delinquent or extended.

Milwaukee finds out that as delinquency increases it is less able to finance the cost of city government. It finds it increasingly difficult to obtain cash on tax anticipation warrants and it finds its bonds not in so great demand.

Milwaukee finds out it has a costly, cumbersome government, imposed on it by politicians, which is so burdensome its citizens not only are unable to pay taxes but many are unable to pay interest on mortgages or even house rent. It learns there were from 200 to 300 mortgage foreclosures each month during 1931. Patrick McManus, county treasurer, has said this year there are 85,000 pieces of property in the county on which the taxes have not been paid.

Milwaukee finds out it must act heroically in slashing public expenditures to avoid the predicament that met Detroit, Philadelphia, Chicago, and New York.

The enormous burden of government which in Milwaukee as elsewhere has closed factories and stopped business has created an increasing number of unemployed and at the same time reduced the ability of citizens to pay their taxes.

The large percentage of all incomes which has gone to pay taxes in one form or another has not left money to buy enough from the farmers at fair prices to give them an income which would let them pay their taxes and enjoy a decent share of the comforts of life.

Public expenditures and tax collections are two points which must remain identical to insure solvency of the political and economic unit. They have grown far apart.

Milwaukee has found it out, and now with the rest of the thinking world must find ways to bring them together again or meet disaster.

CO-ORDINATION OF LOCAL POLICE.

More effective coöperation among the police authorities of the state has been a great need of Illinois ever since professional crime began to develop its present high organization, mobility and scope of action. The local constable is no longer all we need to protect us, for crime is no longer local. The state, in fact, as we have said and repeated before, has need of a coördinated system of police agencies and we think emphatically that it should have a state police force. But, waiving that question, it is beyond argument that there must be evolved, and as quickly as possible, a system of constant coöperation among the various local police agencies which will create a network over the state.

A welcome step in this direction is the plan proposed by Chief of Police Freeman of Evanston, approved and worked out in detail by the state's attorney's office and its chief investigator, Pat Roche. Fifty or more suburbs are coöperating. Under the new plan, certain members of each suburban police have been made agents of the state's attorney and their authority will be coterminous with Cook county. There will thus be a strategic reserve for use anywhere under the direction of Investigator Roche, who can mobilize them as needed anywhere within the county. This has become necessary because gangs have been using suburbs for hangouts and retreats from which to carry on their depredations. The new force will keep surveillance over these gangs and is strong enough to rout them and break them. It is, in fact, able to make use of all the police forces of the county under the state's attorney's authority.

By establishing constant communication between the local police authorities and the central direction under Investigator Roche, prompt investigation of suspicious conditions and adequate force for dealing with them are assured.

The plan should be considered for extension throughout the state, with such modification as may be necessary or advisable. Country districts are no longer immune from the invasion of organized crime and alone have not the facilities for defense from invasion or successful pursuit. Their representatives should wake up to this and coöperate for a better system of state-wide police coördination.

THE FABLE OF MR. GARNER.

(Obviously not by George Ade.)

A man Who Had Seen Better Days was sitting on an empty nail keg back of the wood shed. He was sitting there because he thought it would be the Last place his creditors would look for him. He knew he would not look for himself anywhere. He was nothing to look At or For. He was flat and he was going to Stay flat. He owed the bank, the butcher, the greengrocer, his wife's uncle, and the children's toy bank. They had stopped his credit at the cigar store and he couldn't get his Plug Cut. Things looked blue.

He sat on the nail keg and listened to a bullfrog down by the creek. He knew all about the bullfrog. He had read the biography of the bullfrog by the secretary of agriculture. Every time the bullfrog whooped it reminded him of congress. It was what he would call a Hollow sound, but there was a Lot of it. So far as he could see he would spend the Rest of His Days sitting on the nail keg and listening to the bullfrog. That was not a pleasant Prospect for a man who had once been in Affluent Circumstances.

Drat my hide, said the man, the trouble with me is that I lack Imagination. I'm so durned down I'd be afraid to answer that bullfrog back for fear he'd come over and lick me. I'm Licked, but I'm not going to stay Licked. Watch my Smoke. He went in and told his family to get ready to move out of this Dump. I'm tired of this Dump, he said. I'm going to build a house as big as the Old Soldiers' Home. Before you lost your Wad, said his wife, this house was big enough. If you have any Dough the family could do something to a loaf of bread. That's just it, said the man, you lack Imagination. I'm going to see a marble contractor about a fireplace which will be bigger than this whole dump. If you could pay the Gas Bill, said his wife, that would make the gas range all the fireplace we need.

That just shows how Small Minded people can be, said the man, and that's what's the matter with this country right now. I'm going to build this house and Bring back Prosperity. I'm going to put a park where the cornfield was and turn the barn into a Cozy Nook. I seem to have married into the Kukuukopf family, said the wife, and to think there was a time when I could Hold my Head up in this community. You'll see, said the man. What this country needs is Great Thinkers. Have you done any Great Thinking where the Mazuma for this kukuu house is coming from? That, said the man, is for some one else to think about.

Moral—Well, said the wife, there are two Big Houses already built which I guess we can use. I and the kids can go to the Poor House, but they'll need you over in the Nut House.

MR. MAC DONALD'S BROADER VIEW.

Mr. MacDonald suggests that the Lausanne conference on reparations and debts be broadened to cover the problem of world trade and economic recovery. The British prime minister in announcing his hope that this could be done said that the experiences of all nations in the last six months ought to induce each one to take broader views than some of them have done hitherto. The United States is supposed to have only an observer's seat in a neutral corner for the debt conference, but Mr. MacDonald's suggestion for wider range was regarded in Great Britain as inviting a closer association.

It would seem quite plain that Mr. MacDonald is thinking of American tariffs, principally if not exclusively. When European statesmen, economists, and politicians speak of the broader view it is nearly always with regard to the debts to America and the tariff in the United States. It has been the common thought of Europe that either the debts or the tariff must go. There may be a thought now that both can be disposed of. That does not invite the United States to a more intimate connection with the proposed negotiations at Lausanne. It has been inferred that the financial conference pointed to repudiation of the debts based upon the failure of German reparations. America knows of no way to prevent that decision if its debtors make it, but has felt that the consequences of it should not be removed as they would be by cancellation.

By broadening the view of the conference and by bringing in the United States to defend its tariffs against the attack of its debtors the base of the refusal to pay the debts might be enlarged sentimentally. There has yet to be proposed an international negotiation which the United States could approach without fearing the worst or depart from without disadvantage.

HE SHOULD WORRY.

[Boston Post.]

During the debates in the senate on economy measures Senator Brookhart of Iowa constantly denounced "graft" in politics and business. But it seems the senator knows a little about the practice himself.

During the time the senate was in special session to ratify the London naval treaty Senator Brookhart was off on a lecture tour at $200 per lecture. He was being paid to attend to his duties in the senate, but he never showed up. On the very last day of the session, a few hours before adjournment, he rushed in to take his seat. This was for the purpose of collecting $416 in mileage graft which he would have missed if he had not made that last minute appearance to legalize the mileage grab.

In all, the senators collected $45,000 for trips home they never made, since the special session was called directly after the regular session. It was necessary for the senators to vote themselves this mileage, and this they did, unanimously.

In addition to Senator Brookhart's salary his whole family, two sons and a daughter, are on the government pay rolls for a total of about $15,000.

Also the senator has succeeded in planting his two brothers in nice fat jobs in the federal courts in Iowa. He may have other relatives buried in the pay rolls somewhere.

And this is the belligerent statesman who says he will not vote for measures of economy, since the saving to the taxpayers will not amount to enough to worry about. Neither he nor his family has anything to worry about so long as the taxpayers carry them on their backs.

SHAW EATS CAKE AND KICKS.

As a part of an article favoring vaccination as a protective measure, Dr. Charles F. Pabst prints a letter written him in July, 1931, by G. Bernard Shaw, giving the latter's reasons for opposing smallpox vaccination. Since Shaw has been so vehement on the subject, we are interested in the reasons for his opposition. Hitherto, so far as I know, Shaw has confined his statements to opinions without giving any of the bases for them. This letter makes it possible to partially evaluate his opinions.

He wrote: "I was vaccinated in infancy and had good marks of it." Since he was born in 1856, when vaccine was not very good, and since he supplies no proof that the marks were good, he may have had only a pus infection and the marks may have indicated that. But because we have no proof we must accept what he tells us.

Let us say that he did not have smallpox between 1856 and 1881, for some reason or other. He goes on: "In the great epidemic of 1881 I caught smallpox." He was then 25 years old and apparently had not been vaccinated for 24 years. Vaccination that has fully protected for 24 years has done all that is claimed for it. Dr. Pabst indicates that there is evidence that, in a very violent epidemic in which many died, and a great many had extremely grave attacks, Shaw had a mild attack. I have never heard that Shaw is badly pock-marked, or that he gave any other evidence of having narrowly escaped with his life.

In so far as this is evidence, it indicates that Shaw's vaccination was still in some degree protective 24 years later. This is about in accord with the teaching. A partial protection 24 years afterward is expected. Shaw has reason to be grateful to vaccination. But he is not. We learn that he has been gunning for it since about 1900. He tells us that about that time he was a member of the health committee of the council of one of the London boroughs, and he then learned that there was some incorrect diagnosing of smallpox in his borough, and that the reports from the borough on smallpox and vaccination could not be accepted at their face value. He dug around and found a suppressed report of the metropolitan asylums board, which showed some harmful results from vaccinations—probably secondary infections.

What the opposition had to say about Shaw's strictures on them and their reports does not appear. He may or may not have given both sides a hearing.

He next adds: "Meanwhile, I had studied the literature and the statistics on the subject." He gives no detail. The men competent to weigh the literature and statistics of the subject have done so and their conclusions are accepted by those who know how to weigh that kind of evidence. That Shaw had his tongue in his cheek when he wrote the sentence just quoted, and did not intend it to be of weight, is evidenced by his next: "I even induced a celebrated bacteriologist to read Jenner." He does not say with what result. Just why he added that sente.e no one knows. This is all the evidence he offers. So far as we know it is all he knows about the question.

He then delivers his verdict in a closing sentence: "I have no doubt whatever that general infantile vaccination is an unscientific abomination and should be made a criminal practice." This probably means that he would have parliament enact a law making the vaccination of children a crime. If a mother undertook to protect her child against smallpox she would be a criminal and should be punished as such. This would be stretching the law a good ways. He advocates making criminals of mothers because of his opinion that vaccination is "an unscientific abomination," whatever that is. The basis for this lay opinion as to what constitutes "an unscientific abomination" appears to be pretty trifling stuff.

TUMOR AND CANCER.

Mrs. L. R. writes:

If a woman having a fibroid tumor neglects it, will it become a cancer?

REPLY.

Yes, that may happen.

THERE IS DANGER.

Mrs. E. S. writes:

Can a mother whose child is down with the measles carry the germ to another child whose mother she works for? Or must that child come in direct contact with the child who has the measles?

REPLY.

Much the most important method of spreading is by direct exposure. However, if the mother is taking care of her sick child, it is hazardous for her to leave the sickroom and come in contact with susceptible children. Furthermore, it is illegal.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

Hew to the Line, let the quips fall where they may.

ANSWER THIS AND THEN SOLVE THE DEPRESSION.

Every professor and financier and expert is now telling us one and all the exact cause of the depression and how it can be cured in thirty-five minutes by anybody's watch. And maybe they know; we're not saying they don't, understand that. But, stop 'em when they begin sounding off and ask them to give the answer to the simple little problem that is now floating around in our most cultured circles. If they haven't heard the story or been told the answer, let 'em work it out. If they find the right solution then tell 'em to go ahead and tell us how to settle the depression in thirty-five minutes.

It's like this: The Fishworm family lived under an old rock down behind the barn. There was Pa Fishworm, Ma Fishworm, and little Willie Fishworm. Of course, the little devil's name may not have been Willie at all. It might have been Sammy, or Cuthbert, or Bud. More likely it was Junior, but, anyhow, for the sake of the story, we will assume it was Willie. Well, one morning old Pa Fishworm wriggled out from under the rock and looked up at the sky and all around and said: "I hear thunder; it's going to rain. Well, well, a nice sloppy rain will certainly be jake for this family." He crawled back under the rock and out comes Ma Fishworm. She looked all around and said: "My, how it's clouding up. There's certainly going to be rain and that'll be swell doings for this family."

Back goes Ma Fishworm to wash the family socks. Anyhow, that's the way the story goes, but fishworms not having any feet it's hard to see how they could wear socks. Maybe Ma Fishworm took in washing from the Centipede family that lived next door. But that point doesn't make any difference, and if we are going to keep on arguing over every little detail of the story we'll never get anywhere. So let's push right ahead.

After a while little Willie Fishworm crawled out—oh, all right, Cuthbert Fishworm or Junior, have it your own way—but, anyhow, the Fishworms' little boy came out and looked around, and a couple of big rain drops hit him in the back of the neck and he said: "Oh, joy, we're going to have rain, and that'll be dandy for all five of our family."

Now, why did the little Fishworms' boy say "all five of our family?" Come, come, speak right up. And after that you can give us the lowdown on the depression and tell us how to make the darn thing sit up and say uncle.

TOWARDS CONTENTMENT.

(For Grace Stone Coates.)

Books have I had, and faithful friends a few;
Old wine and sunsets, shelter of friendly trees.
So dreams, errant hopes, desire—ambition, too:
And how have I kept faith with all of these!
Laughter's been mine; music has gladdened the days:
Music and laughter and sunlight of tremulant seas.
Leisure for much, achievement—youth's venturous ways;
Beauty, enchantment, repletion—I have had these.

Thirst have I known, and Dark Earth's bitter taste:
I have bled, and died, and lived again, long nights;
Found beauty in hand turned dust of desert waste:
Yet I have kept faith with dimming of the lights.

God wills—the celestial hurdy-gurdy plays:
We time our step and go the several ways.

KARLOV.

NOW THAT IT'S NEARING graduation time, when the eager collegiate goes out to make the world better and nobler and show what there is in the higher education, let us give three rousing cheers for Jack Robbins, a youngster who was formerly a student at the Uni. of Penn. And why should we cheer for Mr. Robbins? Because at the unofficial indoor Olympic games at Harry's Bar in Paris last Saturday Mr. Robbins drank two quarts of beer from a bottle in thirteen seconds, four seconds better than the previous record. Say what you will, there's a lot in a college education.

THE GONDOLAS, or so we are informed, that are to be placed in the south parks are going to make those delightful spots just exactly like Venice. Our gondolas are going to be motor driven instead of being propelled by a picturesque pirate who sings Italian love songs, and, more than that, they're going to be equipped with radios. Nestled down in a south park gondola, with the motor chugging like a machine gun and the radio saying: "And if you want something that will make your kitchen work a perfect delight and transform your parlor or your office into a bower of beauty, buy a small package of African Jekuka seeds and watch them burst into luxurious bloom in five minutes." Ah, yes, it will be just like Venice. That is if Venice has changed a good deal from what it used to be.

TODAY'S QUESTION.

How do bacteria aid in the continuation of life on the earth?

YESTERDAY'S QUESTION:

Is the "flame of life" simply a poetical expression?

ANSWER:

All living things respire, that is, take in oxygen and give off carbon dioxide. This change results from the burning in the living body of food stuffs, mainly sugars and fats. While a flame burns it likewise consumes oxygen and fat and gives off carbon dioxide. Living things are irritable and respond to changes in the world about them by changing their activity. So does a flame. Living things continuously take in substances and energy, which are changed in passing through them, while maintaining themselves essentially constant. This is also true for the flame. Living things will reproduce their kind. A flame also, by sparks, may generate other flames. It is, in fact, very difficult so to define life as to exclude a flame from the definition. This is because both are alike in their fundamental tendency to maintain an equilibrium, or steady state, while transforming matter or energy that passes through them.

NATIONAL CONVENTIONS

REPUBLICAN—1924.

Cleveland, O., June 12.—Calvin Coolidge of Massachusetts for President and Charles Gates Dawes of Illinois for Vice President. This is the ticket named by the Republican national convention in session in the splendid Municipal auditorium which is the special pride and joy of the citizens of Cleveland.

The nomination of Gen. Dawes came late tonight in the final scene in one of the most extraordinary and dramatic episodes in the history of the party. Gen. Dawes' selection was the second nomination for Vice President formally made by the convention. Two hours earlier the delegates, giving full reign to their natural preference and to their enthusiasm, had nominated Gov. Frank O. Lowden of Illinois, ignoring his reiterated assertions that he would not serve if chosen. He was selected by a vote of 779 out of the 1,103 cast.

Even before the first ballot was taken with an indecisive result, John G. Oglesby of Illinois had told the convention that Lowden's decision that he could not accept the honor was final and irrevocable. Following his nomination the convention telegraphed a final appeal to Mr. Lowden to accept and in a formal telegram he positively refused to serve.

When the convention reassembled the Coolidge forces had decided to concentrate on Secretary of Commerce Herbert Hoover and the Lowden following had agreed to get behind Gen. Dawes. The roll call was a neck and neck race for a time between Dawes and Hoover, but finally with the Illinois and other big delegations plumping for Dawes he came under the wire with 682½ votes to 234½ for Hoover. Others who received votes were William S. Kenyon of Iowa, 75; James E. Watson of Indiana, 45; and George W. Norris of Nebraska, 29.

LONDON. — The German steam roller has crushed the French at Verdun and the defenders have been forced to give up more than two miles of ground, extending from the southern slope of Dead Man hill to the Cumieres village.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Col. John Singleton Mosby, the most famous confederate raider of the civil war, died here after a long illness. He was a native of Virginia and was 82 years old. PUBLIC WORKS.

Chicago, May 27.—Concerning the differences between President Hoover and Alfred Smith, regarding public works and your comments:

A public work, such as the Rosenwald Industrial museum, is probably worth as much in revenue to the city of Chicago as any other building in it, perhaps any ten of them. The town hall of Stockholm did more for modern Sweden [one would believe in visiting there] than all their industries combined, and hundreds of people from all over the world are daily visitors.

The cathedrals of England, the châteaux of France, the ruined non-revenue bearing works of the past, such as the pyramids of Egypt and the Roman forum, have done much to sustain those countries with no disturbing rise and fall in the price of them.

But the time to have planned for public works and to have provided the money for that purpose was between 1920 and 1930. During those years the industries were insatiable in converting surplus into revenue yielding capital and they built themselves plants for production which no schoolboy imagination could have contemplated. If the money at that time spent for perfectly useless plants and equipment, which will be shambles before any possible demand can be found for them, could have been directed to public construction for cultural improvement of one sort or another, I submit we would not find ourselves in the fix we are today.

When the harvest is rich, and the bins are full, it is time to go into the valley and turn one's hand to things that give some decoration to life. Considering our erstwhile state of prosperity and not forgetting numberless contributions in the way of gifts to add to our cultural life, we have done very little in that direction. We have a countryside that by and large is the most God awful, unpainted, dilapidated countryside on the earth.

Estimated in terms of labor these needless factories which our competitive system has produced are waste. The Field museum, the Shedd aquarium can never be so considered, nor can a coat of paint for houses, fences, and barns be so considered. J. WENDELL CLARK.

WET METHODS ATTACKED.

Chicago, May 18.—The dishonest methods of another group of paid wet propagandists have come to light. An observer watched the methods of the so-called Crusaders. They got wet men to sign their names and then the names of their wives or supposed wives; they asked wet women to sign the names of their friends. We then read in the papers of their wondrous success. Probably they are being paid on the basis of the numbers of names they turn in. MARTHA H. COVINGTON.

WHO GOT THE $3?

Chicago, May 26.—I supplanted my orthodox bootlegger [God bless him], who has been delivering me beer at seven dollars a case, with a Bohemian home brew artist, who excelled in his product at four dollars, but the home brewer phones me he is through. The orthodox dispensers threaten him with a ride if he does not quit, and he quits.

One lawbreaker takes it upon himself to put another lawbreaker out of business, and he has. He makes his own laws and enforces them and I, another lawbreaker, am penalized three dollars. Who gets the three? The law enforcers no doubt, while I would much sooner pay the government, get it back in reduced taxes, but the exponent of the noble experiment won't let me. B. F. R.

FISHING IN JACKSON PARK.

Chicago, May 22.—Before the two piers in Jackson park were all but destroyed there was a place for any one who wanted to fish, either for sport or for a free meal, but the only places available now are the sea wall, the gravel or sand banks in the lagoon, and the cement walk below the coast guard station, but this place is no good. From all these three places the fishermen are chased away for the reason that they damage the park property. I defy the man who asserts that fishermen are causing any damage. It would take a breaking plow to damage the bare banks on the lagoon and to do any harm to cement sea wall or the cement walk a person would have to use dynamite. If any mischief is done it is done by boys, and nobody knows this any better than the park police. I am convinced that if the park commissioners would make a personal investigation they would invite people to fish in these places instead of having them chased away. AN OLD FISHERMAN.

MR. SONNENSCHEIN'S CANDIDACY.

Chicago, May 19.—I read with considerable disgust that Mr. Henry Sonnenschein is a candidate for alderman of the 22d ward to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Alderman Cepak. No doubt it is Mr. Sonnenschein's capacity for work and a desire to represent the people of the ward which is causing him to seek the office. However, it seems to me that a man who is personal secretary to the mayor, state representative from the Ninth senatorial district, and who is exercising the functions of ward committeeman for the mayor should be content with two salaried positions and not seek a third. I may add that I have no political interest in the coming aldermanic election here. J. P.

PANHANDLERS.

Chicago, May 25.—To the stranger in Chicago this city's much advertised elimination of the ubiquitous panhandler is a fallacy. I was accosted on Madison street between State and Clark at 8:30 p. m. by four of these gentry who were evidently professionals. K. P. Q.

Active Sports Costumes Are Things of Joy

Tennis and Golf Outfits Low in Price.

BY RHEA SEEGER.

WHETHER you plan to spend your summer lounging around umbrella topped tables, exerting yourself only to reach for long, tall, icy drinks and the usual thin sandwiches that flank them, or bound back and forth on tennis courts, or walk millions of miles among eighteen holes of golf and sand traps and any other natural or un-natural hazard, or sail on inland lakes, or drift in boats with one eye glued tight in slumber and the other aslant for the thrilling bobble of the cork on your fishing pole . . . your greatest joy and possibly greatest grief will be the clothes you buy for your summer vacation bags and cases . . . distressing grief if they are unsuitable, and a grand and glorious joy when they are fittingly perfect!

You can wham a tennis ball straight down the line and inside . . . a beautiful humming drive, do it over and over again, if you don't have to park the best and most feminine section of the brain outside, fretting about the fit of the frock you are not sure about. If sleeves hinder your brilliant serving, the new sleeveless, backless, and faultless tennis togs are just what you will collect . . . swanky new, sporting things made of nonwrinkling and very cool piqué in all colors and white . . . most of the armholes are huge, with a nice perky effect achieved with the blouse tabs tied like butterfly wings on each capable shoulder.

The additional smartness of these tennis dresses is achieved by the separate but most proper brief little jacket of contrasting color which you shrug yourself into after the smoke of battle clears the horizon. Quantities of fine rib cottons and piqué dresses good for all other kinds of active summer exertions, are yours for the well advertised song . . . a trifling small sum that will make you sing a gleeful, cheerful, and very musical ditty of shopping approval.

Then, if you are one of those walking fiends who even play to walk or walk to play . . . these white ball hunters whom you see swarming over grassy green hills and the rough side acreage of undergrowth and forests of trees, in fruitless search of the same unstained white balls that they drove so confidently away into the blue, then you will buy the new golf trappings according to the sort of a calm or violent tempered person that you know yourself to be.

For instance if your driving is studied and true, but your putting a flop, then for your own cool comfort, when your fever rises madly over the score, select the new wide open hole-d mesh cottons, or the loosely, almost abandoned large holes for direct ventilation that is possible only with cotton lace dresses . . . cotton lace sport frocks, beautifully tailored, with short or long sleeves, models in one or two pieces and available in all pastel confection tints and the clear almost sparkling whites.

Wash crêpes with an always lasting suedelike texture after repeated trips to the washtubs are priced so reasonably that you may have three or four . . . in unusual lovely colors, such as shell pink, maize, seafoam, sky blue and that new and creamy tone of beige. Perfect two piece costumes of this fabric have a slip-on blouse with a square neck and a colorful belt in two colors. Another golf dress that is faultless is the model of white crêpe with deep inverted plaits in front and back, with four capacious pockets and wide wide cuffs that can be shoved north or south of the working elbows, a super golf costume, designed by a golf expert.

Tour Europe to Get Ideas for Apartment

Junior Wilsons to Study Decoration.

BY JUDITH CASS.

NOT in some time have I heard anything more interesting than the plans of the Junior John P. Wilsons—they expect to leave for a trip to Stockholm, Berlin, and Paris soon after he finishes his law studies at the University of Michigan this June, and while there they will get ideas for the furnishings for an apartment they will take in Chicago when they return in the early autumn.

They have been living in Ann Arbor since their marriage in December, 1927 [they went abroad on their honeymoon, by the way, and this summer's trip is their first European jaunt since then], in a very attractive house furnished in a sort of combination early American and English style, but now they have decided to get rid of all the furniture of that period and to have a "modern" apartment.

Sweden, Germany, and France are the centers where the modern movement in the decorative arts is predominant and so the young Wilsons expect to come home from their trip full of "swell" new ideas for making their Chicago residence the last word in modernistic decoration. The only things from their Ann Arbor house which they do not plan to discard are their wedding presents, of course, their really fine collection of prints, and the pieces of Georgian silver they have collected.

It isn't as extravagant a plan as it may appear to be on the surface, for the young couple never bought any furniture when they went to housekeeping in Ann Arbor—they have been using things that their respective parents contributed from their own households—and so now that Mr. Wilson has finished his school days and is to start to work in his father's law office it is a good time for them to buy their own things. Mrs. Wilson is the former Romayne Warren of Detroit.

Mrs. Robert R. McCormick has invited her friends to tea from 3 to 6 o'clock today at the Chester H. Johnson galleries in the Fine Arts building for a private view of her portraits and paintings.

Social Events at Horse Show.

Publish Book of Editorials by Whitman

Views Are Related to Problems Today.

"I Sit and Look Out," by Walt Whitman, selected by Emory Holloway and Vernolian Schwarz [Columbia University Press]. Published today.

ONLY in the last few years has there been any sort of systematic investigation of the journalistic career of Walt Whitman, one of America's greatest poets. Though his career with newspapers was somewhat erratic because of his outspoken ideas which often did not agree with the policies of the paper for which he wrote [in 1848, for instance, he was the cause of a bitter controversy between two Brooklyn papers], his newspaper work serves nevertheless as an illuminating episode in the great poet's development.

WALT WHITMAN.

For two years he was the editor of the Brooklyn Times. He broke with that paper or the paper broke with him, whichever way you look at it [he resigned], because of the criticism of various ministers and church people. His editorials, though they seem conservative to the modern reader, obviously aroused the ire of conventional people who regarded as taboo all discussions of religion, marriage, and sex. "I Sit and Look Out" contains many of the important editorials by Whitman's pen during those two years.

The title of the book is taken from a poem in "Leaves of Grass," where he writes:

> I sit and look out upon all the sorrows of the world, and upon all oppression and shame
> All these—all the meanness and agony without end I, sitting, look out upon,
> See, hear, and am silent.

The editorials, however, are evidence that Whitman did not remain silent.

Whitman's attitude toward slavery was the attitude that most enlightened men of his day held. His main quarrel with politics lay in the dishonesty and selfishness of public men, "The curse of American politics—especially in municipal and state affairs—is that men love their party better than their country," a cry that is certainly not unfamiliar to the contemporary critics of American public life. Whitman was a loyal citizen. He made worthy efforts in the direction of sanitation, health, parks, and all sorts of philanthropic enterprises. He was a liberal, opposed to fanatic reform, temperate and for the most part just in his intellectual attitudes.

Whitman was never a great political thinker, and his editorials are obvious proof of that. Nevertheless his comments on the happenings of the time are interesting for two reasons, the light they throw on the poet's intellectual capacities and limitations, and the documentary value they have for literary and social historians who are ever searching for new materials.

The editorials which enraged clergymen and orthodox church people of his time seem to us extraordinarily mild. Whitman reveals himself as a brave defender of love, marriage, and family life. Unusual for his time, however, was his attitude toward people who for some reason or other were denied wedded bliss, and his general interpretation of sexual problems.

As a student of foreign affairs, Whitman was not notably acute. His imperialistic idea found expression in such paragraphs as this: "Let us imitate the example of England, chastise these republics [speaking of Spanish-America] into obedience. First teach them to respect us, and when they have learned what the first principles of a republican form of government are, it will be time enough to think of annexation . . ."

When Whitman observes the literary temperament he says: "We suspect that the reason why so many literary men make bad husbands and do not properly appreciate the softer sex arises from the infection of 'Bohemianism' by which most authors become tainted in their introduction into the literary guild; and which creates a restless craving for mental excitement unsuiting them to breathe the clear and tranquil atmosphere of home enjoyment."

On the whole, these editorials will not be absorbing to the average reader. A few of his observations, however, are extremely timely and it seems rather ironic that Whitman, in 1857, was deploring the decline in marriage, the economic distress and the chaos of the modern world. His distress over gunmen and crime was as acute as that of the present day. However, except for rare instances, the editorials deal with subjects that do not stimulate the interest of the 1932 reader.

Though his ideas were expressed vigorously and clearly, without great stylistic or intellectual distinction, they are ideas that are definitely dated. For students of history and literature, this book, with its remarkably able and complete appendices, is valuable. To the rest of us remains the incomparable "Leaves of Grass," which will be remembered long after all Whitman editorials are forgotten. M. D.

By Mae Tinée.

Good morning!

What with the Sez-You's-Sez-Me's [Victor McLaglen and Edmund Lowe, assisted by Fifi D'Orsay and Charles Judels] on the stage, and Jackie Cooper, aided and abetted by Charles "Chic" Sale on the screen, the Oriental's management feel that they have a generally enticing show this week.

Certainly the lusty minded and easy laughing will have a good time while the former are rampant in their little play written for them by the author of "The Cock-Eyed World," albeit this skit is decidedly rough in spots and not the happiest companion piece to a picture whose main appeal is to children.

"Limpy" is the name of the story by William Johnson from which "When a Feller Needs a Friend" was adapted. It is the tale of a little crippled fellow whose parents coddle him into a pitiful inferiority complex, but who is turned into a doughty little soldier by his wise old Uncle Jones.

A small cousin comes to live with "Limpy," his parents and Uncle Jonas. His nickname is Froggie and he is a mean, sneaky and obstreperous kid of the variety usually portrayed by Jackie Searles. Froggie has no pity on Little-Fellow-With-His-Leg-in-a-Cast, BUT—Uncle Jonas is always on the job, teaching "Limpy" to fish and fight and take knocks with his chin up. The boy's parents so greatly resent what they feel is Uncle's harmful influence on their unfortunate darling that at last they turn the old man out. . . .

The poorhouse looms, and there comes a terrible moment when a feller other than "Limpy" needs a friend . . . and, well—want to see a good fight?

Mean little cousin certainly gets his! ". . . But he isn't mean, really!" Jackie told me earnestly the day he came to call. "He's one of the nicest kids in Hollywood and he felt terrible when he had to kick me around. He was always stopping the picture to make sure that he hadn't really hurt me and to tell me how sorry he was for what he had to do. . . ."

While "When a Feller Needs a Friend" isn't in the same class with "Skippy" or "The Champ" and IS pretty much exaggerated, it still registers as a good, clean little human interest production in which Jackie again proves a credit to his profession.

Mr. Sale does old Jonas as Mr. Sale would—you know him, "Chic"—and other members of the cast are adequate to the story, which is fairly fruitful in laughs as well as pathos.

See you tomorrow!

Stimson May Lose Soldier as Social Aid

Fights to Use Officer on Army Pay Roll.

By GENEVIEVE FORBES HERRICK.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 30.—[Special.]—Washington is at war over Capt. Eugene Regnier, the soldier who turned into a social secretary.

CAPT. REGNIER.

Officially Capt. Regnier as assistant editor of the Cavalry Journal draws his pay from the war department and takes orders from Secretary of War Hurley.

Actually Gene Regnier is military aid to the civilian secretary of state, Henry L. Stimson, manages the garden parties at Woodley, the Stimson estate, and even, it is rumored, dares to tell the state department's own protocol division how to run formal functions.

"What presumption," complains the protocol division, "for a member of the mere military to give us suggestions about etiquette."

For more than two years now, ever since Mr. Stimson, retiring as governor-general of the Philippines, brought back his military aid to this country, the handsome Capt. Regnier has stood in this uncomfortable position, a patent leather dancing pump on one foot, a muddy military boot on the other.

Then something happened. The house of representatives in the interest of economy slashed from the army supply bill all apropriations for military aids to civilians. That sent Capt. Regnier back to the army.

But Secretary Stimson put up a fight for his aid. He dispatched Assistant Secretary of State Wilbur J. Carr to talk with Representative Collins [Dem., Miss.] in charge of the bill. Representative Collins was unmoved. No more appropriations for military aids to civilians.

Then Secretary Stimson invited Secretary Hurley over to luncheon at Woodley. Over mock turtle soup they discussed the status of Capt. Regnier. Later neither would discuss their discussion. Secretary Hurley, it is understood, holds firmly to his original theory that any army man is not a social arbiter; that if Mr. Regnier wants to run state department ceremonies, then he ought to get out of the army and into the state department.

But the state department boys do not want him among them, it is reported. In fact, they are said to have been considerably miffed at the way he, not they, managed the details of Laval's visit to Woodley last year.

At Woodley garden parties it is "Gene," not a state depatment protocol officer, who escorts the guests from the green grass to the red carpet and presents them to the Stimsons.

It's turned into quite a cabinet crisis. The next, and perhaps the final, stage of the controversy rests with the United States senate. When the senate gets through its tariff-tax troubles then it will turn to appropriations. It will then be compelled to decide whether Uncle Sam is to buy dancing pumps or riding boots for Capt. Eugene Regnier, the soldier who knows his society.

Sudden Love

By ELISABETH SANXAY HOLDING

SYNOPSIS.

Esmee Sully spends her forlorn young life between the office, where she is an inefficient typist, and a dismal home. Mrs. Sully loves her three children blindly, but doesn't know how to direct their spiritual or physical needs. Cynthia, the oldest, has been deserted by her husband. Lew, a year older than Esmee, is mingling in bad company. Esmee can barely remember the days before her father's death when they had had a cheerful home. Jimmy Consadine forces Lew to introduce him to Esmee. Lew warns her she'll make trouble unless she keeps away from Jimmy. She is fascinated by Jimmy's grand manner, but finds him an unmanageable lover. Lew gets in a jam. Esmee promises to get him money. She's afraid to ask Jimmy. She meets Arthur Twining at the home of a former woman employer. He is attentive to Esmee, impressed by her beauty and guilelessness. In her anguish she tells him her troubles and he offers to help. Arthur's roommate is Michael Marriott, a dissipated young playwright, imbued with the futility of life. When Esmee meets him it's love at first sight and she feels his need of her is real. Esmee is late keeping a dinner engagement with Michael, because of Jimmy, who threatens trouble. When she gets to Michael's apartment she is met by Twining and Michael's sister, Mrs. Cowley, but no Michael. Returning home she finds Michael waiting for her. He'd been drinking heavily. Esmee takes him home in a cab, but he has no key and can't get in. In desperation she takes him to a hotel and registers as his wife. When she calls the hotel next morning she learns that Michael has checked out.

INSTALLMENT XIV.

FAMILY INTERFERENCE.

"It's not right for mother not to understand anything!" Esmee thought, in a sudden mutiny. "She ought to see . . ."

"Pet," said Mrs. Sully in a whisper, "I—wish you'd telephoned me."

"Mother! O, mother! Are you crying?"

"It's all right now, my pet, now that you're home again. But, you see—all night and all day—I wish you'd let me know, pet."

"Mother, darling, I didn't mean to worry you so."

"There's a telegram for you, Esmee, my lambie."

Not before in her life had Esmee had a telegram, and it alarmed her. She tore open the yellow envelope.

"Can you dine with us this evening seven-thirty? Please telephone Hotel Mandeville. CLAIRE COWLEY."

"Esmee! What is it, dearie? Bad news?"

"I—well, it's an invitation to dinner, mother."

She glanced at her mother, and in that instant she had a revelation of what that other woman endured. She had to see her husband, her children, go their strange, unhappy ways. She could not follow them, she could not comfort them. She knew nothing to do but to love them, blindly, without measure, and to wait and wait until they came back to her.

"I know he's attractive, but he's engaged."

"It's with an awfully nice girl," Esmee said, and that was as far as she could go toward explaining. Her hands were like ice, her heart felt so heavy.

"It's like 'Camille,'" she thought. "They're going to ask me to give Michael up because I'm doing him harm."

She went to the telephone, rang up the hotel, and asked for Mrs. Cowley.

"I'm Esmee Sully."

"O! You'll dine with us, won't you?"

There was no warmth in that invitation, only politeness.

"Well—" said Esmee.

"Please do, if you can. I want so much to talk to you. Don't bother to dress."

"Well, thank you," said Esmee. "Yes, thank you."

Like Camille, like all the outcasts of the world who loved and whose love was a menace. She tried to imagine Claire Cowley here in this flat; imagined her still polite, but secretly disgusted and amazed.

"Michael didn't mind," she thought forlornly.

Then for the first time she wondered what Michael really had thought, what he had said to her mother, what Mrs. Sully had said to him. But she could ask her mother no questions. She could not endure to speak Michael's name.

"Perhaps he did mind," she thought. "After he—realized."

When Cynthia heard where her sister was going to dine she was seriously, even passionately concerned about clothes.

"But it doesn't matter, Cyn," Esmee assured her. "I mean Mrs. Cowley saw me before, when I didn't look nice. And she said 'Don't bother to dress.'"

"You never know whom you're going to meet," said Cynthia. "And you're such a sweet, pretty little thing . . . Lord! I wish you could meet a decent man and get married, Es. And get out of this."

Esmee thought of Jimmy's opinion of Cynthia, and tears came to her eyes. Poor Cynthia, with her dainty ways, her elegance, her charming little drawings that no one would buy.

"Cynthia!" she cried, and hugged her sister.

But Cynthia was too preoccupied to respond.

"Let's see," she said. "I think that black lace of mine——"

"No, Cyn! I don't want to dress up!"

The black lace was a little too short for the tall Esmee. Mrs. Sully was set to work lengthening it while Cynthia worked over her sister's hair and her slender, fragile hands, as carelessly tended as a schoolgirl's. The result surprised them all.

Esmee was beautiful, and beautiful in some strange way all her own. In that black dress, with a string of pearl beads about her neck, her hair in soft waves, her lips reddened, she had a pathetic, formal loveliness, like a child in masquerade.

"You'll have to take a taxi," said Cynthia.

"I haven't any money."

Mrs. Sully and Cynthia found enough money between them. They both kissed her, and it seemed to Esmee that their kisses were strange, fatal, as if they knew she were going to her doom.

Yet as she went down the stairs, holding up the long skirt, she began to feel happy.

"I do look nice!" she thought. "And if she sees I'm not a horrible person—. She was awfully kind that other time."

In the taxi she leaned back and lit a cigaret, conscious of her manicured fingers, of the fragrance of Cynthia's bath salts and powder. She felt elegant, nonchalant, sophisticated. She forgot all her miseries, her crushing anxieties. For, after all, she was eighteen.

The Hotel Mandeville impressed her. She felt less elegant in that subdued and austere lounge. Miss Sully was calling on Mrs. Cowley. Miss Sully was to go up—and Miss Sully was frightened.

Claire Cowley opened the door of the suite herself, with a pleasant smile, her hand outstretched. But she was wearing a dark skirt and a plain white satin blouse, and without a word she made Esmee feel tawdry, overdressed, preposterous.

"This is my husband," she said. "Penbrooke, Miss Sully."

Her husband was a tall, dark young fellow with an ugly, singularly attractive face. And he, too, had that air. He, too, was polite. They tried to talk to Esmee, but she had nothing to say.

The suite overwhelmed her. She had expected a sort of grandeur, something opulent. And she found only this simplicity—a pretty little sitting room, with shaded lamps, and flowers everywhere, books, a piano, that air . . .

Cowley proposed a cocktail, and we went off to shake it up, leaving his wife, in her quiet, superior simplicity, facing Esmee in her borrowed black lace dress.

"This is awfully hard," said Claire. "Hard for both of us. But I think you'll understand—about Michael."

Esmee sat very still, with her trembling hands tightly clasped. There was a look on Claire's face that filled her with sick terror, a look of distress and honest kindliness worse to her than any arrogance.

"You see," Claire went on, "Michael's very—temperamental. He dramatizes things. He can't help it, I suppose. It's a little hard for me to understand him, because I'm—just practical. And he's so different. His play was marvelous, you know. Every one said he was extraordinarily talented."

She paused.

"I don't know how to tell you this," she said. "It sounds so cruel. The only comfort is that you can't—that it can't matter very much to you. You've only seen him twice, haven't you? I know he's attractive, but—you see, he's engaged."

"I knew that was coming," Esmee said to herself. "I knew it!"

"He's engaged to my best friend," Claire continued. "That wouldn't make any difference—at least I hope it wouldn't—if I thought this was—real. But I'm afraid it—isn't. He came to me this morning. He was simply—desperate. He said he'd done you a dreadful wrong. But I—that isn't so, is it?"

"No," Esmee answered, unsteadily. "Michael's never done me any harm."

"He's made himself think he has. He wanted to rush off there and then to Linnet and break his engagement. I begged him not to. It wasn't because I didn't like you, Esmee. Please believe that. Please believe that I'm not against you."

Baking Powder May Substitute for Egg Whites

BY MARY MEADE.

Here's to answer a few questions. The first is from Mrs. L. D. who asks, "Is it true that angel food can be made with baking powder substituted for some of the eggs?"

Yes, Mrs. L. D., angel food may be made according to the following reduced egg recipe if it seems desirable to save on the egg bill. This cake has a slightly different texture from the one made by the all-egg method. Of course, right now we're in the egg season, and if ever, now's the time when we may make our many-egg angel foods with a clear conscience. However, if any of you would like to slip this one into your files for the season when prices soar, you will find it a satisfactory substitute for the more egg-ful variety.

MOCK ANGEL CAKE.

1 cup sugar.
3 teaspoons baking powder.
2 egg whites.
1 teaspoon vanilla.

Sift together the flour, sugar, and baking powder three times and stir in the milk. Beat for one minute. Fold in the egg whites beaten stiff, but do not beat. Add the flavoring, turn into a tube pan, and bake in a slow oven [300 degrees F.] fifty to sixty minutes. Let cool upside down in the pan.

But since this is still the season when we can afford angel foods at their lightest and airiest, and since I frequently have calls for feathery angel foods made with the full allotment of eggs, here is a scientifically worked out recipe with especial emphasis on the method of mixing and the baking—two factors which are fully as important in the behavior of angel food as the ingredients themselves.

SPRING ANGEL FOOD.

1 1-3 cup fine sugar.
1 cup egg whites [8 to 10 eggs].
½ teaspoon vanilla extract.

Add half the sugar to the flour, which has been sifted twice. Sift flour and sugar mixture again twice. Beat the egg whites till frothy, add the water and sift in the salt and cream of tartar. Continue beating until the eggs are stiff enough to hold their shape. Do not beat them dry. Sift one tablespoon of sugar over the whites, fold in with one motion of the spatula. Continue, folding in one tablespoon at a time. Repeat this process for the sugar and flour mixture. Add the flavorings and continue folding for one minute. Pour gently into an ungreased tube pan and bake in a slow oven [300 degrees F.] one to one and one-half hours. The cake is done when it cracks from the pan sides and springs back when touched. Invert the pan and let the cake hang till cool.

Reeling Romeo Fails to Charm Unhappy Mate

BY DORIS BLAKE.

"The people we mix with are considered very nice. We have get together parties quite often. But these parties hurt me. They make me feel so disgusted with life at times. There are highballs and cocktails and a general exchanging of husbands and wives, which revolts me.

"They all consider me a poor sport because I do not drink and I will not fool around with another woman's husband. My husband seems to enjoy these affairs very much. In fact, I have found him and some woman kissing in the dark in some corner so many times that I don't think I can stand much more of it.

"Am I really a poor sport or am I too old fashioned? If I refuse to go to the parties, it would do no good. My husband would go without me. Before I go every time I resolve to be what they call a good sport, but when I get there the sight sickens me and I am miserable all evening. I do not see how a man can love his wife and go around mauling other women. Every one tells me I'm silly, that it does not mean a thing. It is only fun. Fun! If that's fun, I'd rather be dead.

"If it doesn't mean a thing, why do they do it? I feel my love for my husband cooling. I cannot respect him any more. Am I, after all, only a jealous wife? How can women watch their husbands making love to other women and never seem to care? . . .

"At other times my husband is very sweet to me. Before we married he wasn't that way at all. He was rather shy with women. I've thought maybe it was the crowd we went with. Yet, visiting other couples considered right in everything, I have accidentally walked into a room and found a woman guest in the arms of the host.

"Is everybody acting that way today? I feel as if I belonged in some other age. . . . I want, above everything else, to love and honor my husband, but how can I? . . . Is it my fault? Be truthful with me. Tell me, what should I do?"

Just another regrettable angle on our prohibition curse! But, how do you like it, gentlemen? How do you like a decent woman's slant on your highball pecadilloes? As a Reeling Romeo you may be cutting quite a dash—but as a home inspiration you're wet—all, all wet!

Church Is 90 Years Old; to Mark Event

BY RUTH DE YOUNG.

TENS of thousands of shop and office workers pass the intersection of Michigan avenue and 19th street daily. Ask any one to name the buildings planted there and, I'll warrant, he will start with the house of worship on the northwest corner. Perhaps he will even explain that it is the Second Presbyterian church celebrating ninety birthdays next Sunday.

For among all of Chicago's churches, and they are many and fine, few, if any, are more deeply ingrained in the life of the city than the Second Presbyterian—by reason of its architectural beauties, also because of its founders, hardy pioneers who held more liberal sentiments toward slavery than the First Presbyterian church allowed.

Pass through the sacred portals and the imagination takes a backward fling to those men and their neighborhood, once the gold coast of a sprouting city. There is the pew occupied for several decades by the William Blairs. Directly in front is that of the Pullman family and still nearer the chancel the place of the T. B. Blackstones. A little to the right sat the Albert Keeps and in still other parts of the auditorium the McBirney and Norman Williams families.

On the walls of adjoining rooms are pictures that recall fond memories—portraits of Dr. R. W. Patterson, pastor of the church when it was organized in 1842; Dr. Simon J. McPherson, the third minister and uncle of the McPherson Holts of Lake Forest, and Edward L. Bradley, sexton for 52 years. Then there is a picture of the "spotted" church, second edifice of the Second Presbyterian congregation, located at what is now the northeast corner of Wabash and Washington. The stones of that building destroyed in the Chicago fire have since gone to make the Lake Forest Presbyterian church.

More interesting than these pictures, however—at least to the patron of art—are the splendid stained glass windows and the murals of the present sanctuary designed by the late Howard Van Doren Shaw. A particularly lovely window is the one Mrs. T. B. Blackstone gave in memory of John Crerar, whose endowment insures the future of the church. Then there are the two small panes designed by Sir Edward Burne-Jones and executed by William Morris. But let us look at the murals in particular.

Chicago's well known artist, Frederick Clay Bartlett, did them and they are noteworthy among mural paintings in the city. Son of one of the founders of Hibbard, Spencer & Bartlett, Mr. Bartlett grew up in the church neighborhood at 29th and Prairie — in what was frequently termed "the most remarkable house in Chicago." Inspired, no doubt, by the works of art and the antiques his father had gathered from far and near, he chose to be an artist rather than a business man.

So it is that he has beautified the Bartlett gymnasium at the University of Chicago, the George Howland Memorial hall in McKinley High school, a panel in the Highland Park Episcopal church, and the deep recesses of the windows and the vault over the organ in the Second Presbyterian church with his mural painting. The latter work deserves especial attention because it has been treated so in sympathy with that of Architect Shaw, who adopted a free English Gothic style, going back to the medieval use of the vine, rose, and thistle of the Scripture for his ornament.

There is distinctly an old world flavor in both the color and line of these murals by Mr. Bartlett, so much so it would seem he adopted the principle of the early Italian mural painters whose figures were designed to enrich the surface without destroying the function of the walls. Mural painting reached its highest development among the Italians, enlisting the genius of Michelangelo, Giotto, Raphael, and Titian. The word "mural," derived from the Latin "mura," meaning "wall," refers to wall painting, you have already deduced, especially that involving systematic decorative design. It had its beginning in the prehistoric cave paintings, and, in spite of several declines, has never been a "lost" art.

Among the prominent Chicagoans who will attend the anniversary celebration at the Second Presbyterian church next Sunday are the Requas, Theodore A. Shaw, Wilton B. Martin, Miss Anna M. Giles, and Miss Lucy Belle Dunham.

Paris Sponsors Checked Coats for Midsummer

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS.—[Special.]—Fashion, the contrary old creature, finds, always, a way to make our last season's clothes out of style. This summer it is to be the reversal of the usual summer ensemble procedure of a printed frock with the plain coat. Printed coats are all the rage, and they usually top plain dresses. Separate coats of printed stuff are found right on top of the style heap, too.

The printed crêpe de chine coat is one of the star wraps for afternoon wear, and some ultra smart ladies are wearing printed cotton and linen coats for sports and country wear.

A coat of black and white checked necktie silk is about the most practical wrap I have seen in this category. It comes from Miranda, and is shown in our sketch today. The silk in this coat has a dull and wool-like surface, and it makes a stunning wrap for many different occasions.

This coat would be a life saver to the hot weather traveler.

Mrs. Robert Burns to Visit Parents.

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph C. Otis are not making any plans for the early summer because they're hoping that their daughter, Mrs. Robert Burns, who's expected to arrive from California this week, will spend at least a month here with them.

The former Sarane Otis, one time president of the Junior league, is bringing her infant daughter with her, and her husband hopes to be able to get away from his business in Los Angeles a week or so later.

This is the second visit Mrs. Burns has made to her girlhood home since her marriage a few years ago—she came to Chicago, you remember, for the debut of her younger sister, Miss Florence Otis, in the autumn of 1929.

Mrs. Ralph M. Shaw returned a few days ago from a visit in Cleveland with her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Steinwedell, and her twin grandsons, Billy and Peter, who celebrated their first birthday a few weeks ago.

All the friends of Mrs. Steinwedell [the former Louise Tyler] are glad to know that she and her husband will be in Chicago for the Democratic convention. Mr. and Mrs. Shaw and Mrs. Shaw's son, Thomas S. Tyler, are planning to go to Santa Barbara in late July.

Miss Anita Blair, who departed in early May to make a few visits in New York and Boston, must be having a pleasant time, for she is still in the east and hasn't yet decided just when she will return to the apartment which she and her mother occupy at 209 Lake Shore drive.

Travel News, Summer Plans.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Burdett Woodruff of 220 East Walton place left last Friday to open their residence at Harbor Springs, Mich. Their daughter, Miss Lyla Woodruff, and their son, Wilson, will join them later in the season.

Mrs. Henry Field is planning to depart in June to spend a quiet summer with her mother and father, Mr. and Mrs. Hollister Sturges at Ridgely Manor, their estate at Stone Ridge, N. Y. Just before Mrs. Field goes east her mother will come to Chicago for the conventions. Mrs. Sturges will stay in the Fields' new apartment at 70 East Cedar street.

David J. Molloy and his daughter, Miss Catherine Molloy, are moving this week to their summer residence in Lake Forest. Next fall they will occupy the 9 room apartment in the Lake Shore Drive hotel which Mr. Molloy has leased for an indefinite period.

Miss Anna Fitziu and her niece, Miss Edna Kellogg, spent the Memorial day week-end with Miss Kellogg's mother, Mrs. Laflin Fitziu, at Riverside, Mich.

"Inflation as an International Problem" will be discussed by Jacob Viner at a luncheon meeting of the Chicago Council of Foreign Relations on Thursday at the Palmer House. Dr. Viner is professor of economics at the University of Chicago. A short business meeting to elect new officers will be held before the address.

From London comes the word that Lord Borodale, the 27 year old son of Admiral and Lady Beatty [Ethel Field] has just received his "A" flying license, and shows signs of becoming a first class pilot. The young man passed another milestone in his career recently when he made his maiden speech in the house of commons. Our correspondent writes that there is a great resemblance between him and his distinguished father. They apparently have the same mannerisms, the same poise, and the same direct, forceful manner of speaking, all of which may indicate an interesting and important carrerr for Lord Borodale.

Bridal Array Ideal Garb for Every Woman

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

A discussion was on one day recently at an informal gathering as to what was the most beautiful occasion of a woman's life. As a matter of fact, the theme started out with her most beautiful sight. One suggested a baby risen from its sleep with its head just coming over the crib. But that was ruled out as too much involved with mamma sentiment for the moment, though the picture was agreed to be one of great appeal.

The bridal occasion eventually won the vote. As if there need have been discussion! In what other life event does a woman achieve the same impressive beauty as veiled and robed in white, carrying the proverbial floral bouquet? A girl has to be extraordinarily plain not to get in under the beauty banner in this rôle. The setting, the attendants and the dressed up guests, of course, lend somewhat of a stage glamour to the scene. Still, it is the leading lady to whom the honors go for wedding loveliness.

It's too bad from the purely pictorial standpoint that the informal wedding is becoming so popularized. It's the one chance when a girl has the opportunity to look her loveliest.

Watch Your Tarzan After He Sees Film

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

A new disease, Tarzanitis, has hit the town. The appearance of the picture "Tarzan" seems to be followed by a veritable epidemic of broken bones. On every side I hear of children swinging on grapevines, leaping, jumping, climbing, and generally indulging in feats of skill and valor à la Tarzan.

One man whose son met with one of these accidents was telling me about it. This boy, it's worth mentioning, was not a scatterbrained youngster—he had, in fact, just been elected by his class as one of its five most self-reliant members.

The first doctor he called in said: "Have you been playing Tarzan?" "Yes," said the boy.

The second doctor asked: "Have you been playing Tarzan?" "Yes," he replied.

And, last, the specialist asked: "Have you been playing Tarzan?" "Yes," he answered.

So I talked with a physician about it.

"Yes, it's true," said this orthopedic surgeon. "There's been a regular wave of broken bones—a sort of epidemic. It follows on the heels of the moving picture 'Tarzan.' The children try to do what Tarzan does, leap from branch to branch, or rock to rock, or attempt some impossible feat, and they break a bone. One Tarzan patient was a little girl who broke her shoulder.

"That's nothing against the picture," he said, "but it is a warning to mothers to see that their children don't take too great risks."

Lots of primitive man is left in boys and sometimes in girls. It needs to find a way out, as all parents know. Exploits like those of Tarzan strike a spark in the kindred soul of a boy—and we're glad they do. Such things give variety to their outdoor life and a gain in zest and skill. Boys will be boys—and that's that.

But we parents must strike a medium of reasonable safety for the children, among which might be a campaign against the dangerous cry of "sissy!" We don't want to make them timid, but neither do we want to let them court danger and injury. Until this disease wears itself out we will need to keep a weather eye on our young Tarzans.

BRITISH COLONY READY TO SECEDE IN SOUTH AFRICA

Natal Seeks to Break Away from Union.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

DURBAN, South Africa, May 30.—In addition to the economic crisis and racial imbroglio, the Union of South Africa is threatened with secession. From the viewpoint of internal politics the outlook rarely has been worse. What America went through in 1859-1860 South Africa is going through today. Her very principle of existence is at stake.

Instead of spreading further northward and absorbing all the British territories between the cape and Cairo, the union apparently is in danger of growing smaller and breaking up into its component parts.

Natal's Attitude the Cause.

The attitude of Natal, with its 200,000 white inhabitants, has brought matters to a head. Natal wishes to withdraw from association with the Transvaal, the Orange Free State, and the Cape of Good Hope, to dissolve the bond of union to which it voluntarily subscribed in 1909-1910. It is a question of constitutional procedure. There is fierce controversy over the right to secede.

The Union of South Africa was formed in 1910. There are four component parts, two conquered Boer republics, one mixed self-governing domain and the purely English colony of Natal. The latter insists that it joined only on condition that the union would never attempt to emancipate itself from the British crown. If this proviso should be violated, it would have the right to withdraw. In any case, it would have the privilege of petitioning the head of the state for secession [and perhaps beyond that the privy council in London].

Likewise, Natal claims it wished a federal state like Australia, and agreed only with the greatest reluctance to a unified form of government, in which its influence necessarily would be small. From a federalized union the process of secession might have been easier. In such a case local self-government would have been absolute.

League Fosters Secession.

The Devolution league is fostering secession in Natal. The league seems to be a representative nonpolitical body, consisting of all classes of citizens. It has held two mass meetings, one in Durban and another in Pietermaritzburg. Secession resolutions were passed by large majorities. Other mass meetings are planned. It has arranged for the convocation of a so-called national convention and has announced the intention of spreading propaganda until its object is achieved.

Not all of the leading men in Natal are in favor of secession. Most of the provincial delegates to parliament are opposed to it. An occasional banker and newspaper editor has also ventured to voice disapproval. There is evidence, however, that the great mass of the people are behind the movement.

What the rest of South Africa thinks is not yet clear. Both the big political parties have expressed their disapproval. Gen. Jan Smuts, leader of the opposition and the English loyalists, also disapproves, because he is against the idea of a federalized state and because he himself is none too popular in Natal. Government ministers and nationalist leaders are hostile, because it is against them that devolution activities are aimed.

Boers Hostile to Move.

In general it can be said that the whole Afrikaaner or Boer element is also hostile. Certain English speaking regions, on the other hand, have been sympathizing with Natal. Agitators in Port Elizabeth and Capetown urge these two cities to join the secession move.

Compulsory bilingualism has aroused Natal's chief antagonism. Natal parents object strenuously to their children learning Afrikaan or Dutch. An overwhelming majority of Natal's population is English. There are few Dutch speaking residents.

After bilingualism comes local self-government. In South Africa this is exercised largely through provincial councils. It has been one of the main points of the nationalist government policy to abolish the provincial councils and to centralize the administration more than ever. Natal and certain other regions violently oppose this abolition, while the Orange Free State vehemently urges it.

Yields to Natal.

At first the government was adamant. Later, however, it agreed to make an exception for Natal and allow that province to keep its council. But this concession was only temporary and insincere, argued Natalians, and would be revoked as soon as the government felt strong enough to do so. Sincere coöperation between nationalism and loyalism they regarded as impossible.

The third cause of Natal's movement is the complex issue of loyalism versus independence. The Nationalist party, which now rules South Africa, makes no secret of the fact that it wishes and always has wished for the greatest possible amount of independence, political, economic, financial and social.

Whether independence be absolute, "de facto," qualified or theoretical makes no difference to Natal. Its leaders are against independence in any form, manner or description.

"I am a Natalian by birth and a British subject by birth and I intend to remain one," said Col. E. M. Greene, at the recent Pietermaritzburg mass-meeting amid great applause.

Numerous acts of the government's policy in pursuing the "bogey" of independence, have been pointed out as steps offensive to Natal. Among them are the removal of the king's head from stamps, the institution of a union flag, the making of the German trade treaty, and the introduction of a new coinage bill.

No Isolation Policy.

Should its independence be restored, Natal would not pursue a policy of isolation, according to the Devolution league. It would be disposed to discuss new principles of association, but this time strictly on a federal basis. Natal does not object to the principle of a union, but only to the possibility of oppression through centralization, it is claimed.

So far the secession movement has not passed the stage of propaganda.

POPE PIUS XI.

VATICAN CITY, May 30.—(AP)—The oldest sovereign in Europe, Pope Pius XI., will be three-quarters of a century old tomorrow.

He will celebrate his diamond anniversary with a special mass of thanksgiving in his private chapel. His sister, Donna Camilla Ratti, his niece and his nephew by marirage, Marquise and Marquis Persichetti-Ugolini, and a few prelates of the papal household will comprise his congregation.

The papal flag of yellow and white, with the tiara and crossed golden keys upon it, will be hoisted over vantage points in Vatican City. The Swiss guards and papal gendarmes will wear full dress uniforms. The band of the Palatine guards will give a concert.

The 10,000 inhabitants of the little Lombard town of Desio, near Milan, will celebrate the 75th birthday of the son of the manager of the local silk factory, who later was to become Pope Pius XI.

In the third floor room where the youngster was born on the morning of May 31, 1857, a mass will be said by the parish priest. This room, with its rustic beams and red bricked floor still preserved, has been converted into a little chapel.

SOVIETS CHARGE JAPANESE PLAN TO INVADE SIBERIA

Warns That Such Action Will Result in War.

MOSCOW, May 30.—(AP)—The government organ Isvestia today charged certain Japanese elements with seeking an invasion of eastern Siberia to "facilitate Japan's preparations for war against the United States by making available for the Japanese military machine the rich natural resources of Asiatic Russia."

In a sharp warning to Japan not to try to lay her hands on Siberia, the vigorous editorial pronouncement called attention to "recent demands in certain sections of the Japanese press for war against soviet Russia."

"Can't Frighten Us."

Declaring that the resources of Manchuria first were sought, Isvestia said that intelligent Japanese public opinion could not be relieved of responsibility for the silence in the face of such a campaign "which might lead to the sending of millions of people to a bloody slaughter."

"The soviet union does not demand anything of Japan except esteem of its borders," the editorial went on. "It wants to continue peaceful and friendly relations and to increase economic intercourse mutually beneficial to both countries.

"The extent of our strength is recognized even by some Japanese politicians, because the menace of that strength is shouted by the Japanese press. This won't frighten us.

Recalls Former War.

"Japanese imperialism has already been in Siberia at a cost of a billion rubles and much blood. This happened when the Red army was only in process of formation, when the soviet union did not produce three times more coal and iron than Japan.

"If Japanese imperialism seeks now to entangle its population in a new adventure, they will break their own teeth. Siberia is not a street on which imperialist robbers may walk in safety.

"Not only the imperialists but the masses of both countries would suffer from any such intervention. That is why soviet public opinion is calling on the serious elements of Japan to put an end to this unprecedented bloody propaganda."

Japs Set Fire to Hailun.

HARBIN, Manchuria, May 30.—(AP)—Japanese forces struck out north and south of Harbin today to break an encircling movement of Chinese troops. The Japanese were reported to have set fire to Hailun, 150 miles north of here, during an air bombing raid.

To the southwest, Maj. Gen. Hideo Hiramatsu's Japanese Twenty-Seventh River brigade had occupied Chaochow, 80 miles from Harbin on the Sungari river.

Meet Stiff Resistance.

A Japanese column proceeding north of Suihua, midway between Harbin and Hailun, encountered a strong counter attacking force of Chinese cavalry. At last reports a fierce battle was under way.

Gen. Li Hai-tsing, the Chinese leader, who is alleged to be the successor to Gen. Ma Chan-shan, apparently working in concert with other Chinese troops, has been putting an encircling line of soldiers around Harbin for several weeks, and the Japanese have been hard put to get their war machinery in place to meet the various thrusts of the lightly armed Chinese.

HURT IN $175,000 FIRE.

Pittsburgh, Pa., May 30.—(AP)—A fire which swept through a storage garage, doing damage estimated at $175,000, injured eight firemen and a watchman yesterday.

RENEW SPANISH RIOTS; MOB FIRES ON STREET CARS

Police Fight Radicals in Three Cities.

MADRID, Spain, May 30.—(AP)—Despite an announcement from the ministry of interior today that order had been reëstablished throughout the nation after yesterday's extremist outbreaks, clashes occurred today at Cadiz, Seville, and Algeciras.

Six were killed yesterday as government forces broke the back of a nation wide extremist strike.

Four strikers were slightly injured in clashes with the police at Cadiz. When the authorities got the upper hand they padlocked extremist headquarters and jailed leaders in the movement. Strikers stoned a street car and wounded a woman passenger. Service was suspended.

Shipyards and airplane factories were not operating there, and there was no taxi service.

At Seville unidentified men, believed to be strike sympathizers, tried to set fire to three churches, but the blazes were extinguishd before they did much damage.

Most of Seville's industries were shut down by the strike, and rioters shot at street cars without inflicting any injuries. Soldiers manned the bakeries.

Strike Against Arrests.

At Algeciras a strike was declared in protest against the arrests yesterday of several syndicalist railroad workers. From Gibraltar it was reported that firing had broken out in the streets of Algeciras. Trains were unable to leave and ferryboat service was suspended. Mails to be transferred to Gibraltar were sent by sea.

IDENTIFIES WOMAN, 70.

Mrs. Bridget Sheevers, 70 years old, 738 West 25th place, was found by her grandson, Raymond Iseman, yesterday at the Racine avenue police station, where she had been sheltered since she suffered a loss of memory on Sunday.

FRAME WINS AUTO DERBY WITH RECORD SPEED

45,000 WATCH CUBS, CARDINALS SPLIT TWO GAMES

Hornsby Smacks a Home Run.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

The Cubs and Cardinals did the usual fifty-fifty act yesterday afternoon in their Memorial day exercises. The world champions, aided slightly by a mistake on the part of Gabby Hartnett, gathered in a 6-4 victory in the first battle. But in the second game the bat of Rogers Hornsby talked in loud tones and the depression into which an overflow gathering of 45,000 had slumped after the opening loss was removed with a dashing 6 to 2 triumph. Now the Cubs are leading the league by two and one half games.

What the cool Hornsby accomplished was a blow for those of the crowd who appeared inclined to hand him the raspberry. In the first struggle he gave them ample opportunity to exploit their talents. He was up five times for nothing better than one pass. But he wasn't that way later. He started the ball rolling with a homer when the Cubs were behind in the second game. He walked to inaugurate a winning three run splurge in the sixth. He ripped loose a double to precipitate a two run rally which made victory doubly sure in the seventh.

Cards Defeat Grimes.

To gather in their half of the day's plunder, the Cardinals stepped on their old buddy, Burleigh Grimes, who a few days ago handed them a stinging defeat. The veteran spitballer sailed along smoothly for quite a stretch, and his teammates, by hitting Paul Derringer in spots, had presented him with a 3 to 1 lead. But the titleholders suddenly cut loose with a few hits in the seventh. And this was where Hartnett inserted his costly blunder. He dropped a throw at the plate. Five men scored before the uprising stopped, whereas there might have been only one if Gabby hadn't miscued.

Guy Bush, usually a jinx for the champs, lived up to his reputation in the second game, but nevertheless wasn't in on the finish. For six innings he gave up only five hits, but was behind, 2 to 1, going into the home sixth. Then he fell by the wayside when a swarm of pinch men arrived to contribute to the decisive three run rally started by Hornsby's pass from Tex Carleton and completed by a needed single off Johnny Moore's bat. After that Charley Root handled the visitors and there was no trouble.

FIRST GAME

It wasn't because of any cunning on the part of Derringer that the Cubs were unable to start the day's run getting in the third inning. The Kentuckian's support came to his rescue. Grimes ripped off a single to open the inning. Moore fanned and Herman doubled close to the line in left. The infield drew in and English whacked one solidly between short and third, but Gelbert leaped over, stabbed the ball with his bare hand, and tossed to first ahead of the runner. Grimes played safe by hugging third. Then Hornsby clipped one on a line toward right, but Collins grabbed it.

Jurges tossed off a chance for a double play in the fourth and the champions picked up one run as the result. Martin, the first man up, walked, and Hendrick bounced to Grimm, who pegged to Jurges to force Martin at second. Jurges whipped the ball back to Grimm, but the ball went wild and Hendrick took second. Collins was given a walk, after which Watkins singled to right, Hendrick scoring, Collins going to third, and Watkins taking second on the throw-in. English came up with Wilson's grounder and nailed Collins at the plate. Then a double steal was attempted and Hartnett, after bluffing a peg to second, picked Watkins off third.

Jurges Fills Hero Rôle.

The Cubs took the lead in their half of the fourth. Stephenson singled to left. Grimm's bounding drive was grabbed by Delker back on the grass, but he didn't have time to set himself for a good throw, so Grimm beat it for a single. To get away from Hartnett's weakness for bouncing into double plays, the hit and run sign was flashed. He grounded to Gelbert and was thrown out. Then Jurges carved a hero niche for himself by riding the two runners home on a single through short.

Not another Cub hit appeared until the sixth, when the generosity of the Cards enabled Jurges to respond to opportunity. After two had been set down Hartnett hoisted to short right. Delker, Collins, and Watkins assembled for a hasty conference, but were still talking it over when the ball plunked to the ground. After Gabby arrived at second one of them decided the ball should be picked up. Jurges then shot a single straight into center and Hartnett scored.

That Unlucky Seventh.

70,000 Cheer as Gains Wins from Carnera

LONDON, May 30.—(AP)—Larry Gains, Toronto Negro, holder of the British empire heavyweight championship, outpointed Primo Carnera, Italian giant, in ten rounds at the White City stadium here tonight.

A crowd of 70,000, setting a new all time British record for boxing attendance, saw the Canadian outbox Primo all the way and win the referee's decision. Gains gave away sixty pounds in weight.

In only two rounds did Carnera look like a possible winner. In the seventh a hard left sent Gains back on his heels just before the bell, and in the tenth the Canadian nearly went down when Primo connected with a right swing to the jaw.

Otherwise Larry, fighting coolly, gave an excellent demonstration of boxing skill, making Carnera miss repeatedly. Much the faster, Gains darted in close to land damaging left hooks to the body and was away again before Carnera could move into effective action.

Carnera appeared hurt, however, only once. In the sixth, Gains caught the Italian with two terrific rights to the jaw and the giant went back on his heels, a look of surprise on his face.

INDIANS GO ON WARPATH; BEAT SOX, 12-6, 12-11

BY EDWARD BURNS.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Cleveland, O., May 30.—The Chicago White Sox, veterans of many and many a sad blowup, this afternoon probably reached a new high in their record of baseball inefficiency in taking a two ply licking from the Cleveland Indians, 12 to 6, in the first game and, 12 to 11, in the second.

In both spectacles the Indians did all they could do to help the Sox to accomplish their first win of the year in Cleveland, but the Sox in each instance were without heart or talent to play anything that would pass in a class D league.

Oh, That Second Game!

The first game was a sorry affair in the extreme, but an artistic Chicago triumph as compared with the collapse in the second game. The Sox in the second game were leading 6 to 1 at the end of their half of the third; but only 6 to 5 at the end of the third. Then they were spotted enough runs so that at the end of the Sox seventh they were leading 11 to 5. The Indians made two runs in the seventh and then Manager Peckinpaugh began to take the game seriously. The Indians were only four runs behind and two innings to go. So he sent Ferrell to hold the Sox and gave the win sign to his batsmen. They got one run in the eighth and four in the ninth.

The rough and tumble afternoon included homers by Averill, Morgan, Porter and Sewell for Cleveland and one for Chicago by Funk, who also celebrated with a pair of doubles, one in each game.

Parade of Pitchers.

Thirteen pitchers and gents claiming to be pitchers wandered on the scene during the dreary span. Sarge Connally, who went clear through the first game, was the only pitcher to work a full chore, and he was no wizard. In fact, the relief work of McKain in the seventh inning was the only pitching worth mentioning, excepting, of course, Ferrell's performance at the tail end of the second game.

More than 17,000 patient souls seemed to think they had been well entertained.

FIRST GAME

Funk started the game with a double to right and reached third on a wild pitch. He paused while Selph fouled out to Kamm. Blue then grounded to Morgan, but no one covered first and Blue was credited with a single, Funk scoring. Blue stole second and went to third when Cissell permitted Myatt's throw to go into center field. Kress got credit for a double when his pop fell among Montague, Cissell, Averill and Porter, Blue scoring.

The 2 to 0 lead was wiped out in a hurry. Porter launched the Indians' three run offensive with a single to left and stopped at third on Cissell's double to right center. Averill singled off the right field wall, Porter scoring and Cissell stopping at third. Then Jones filled the bases by hitting Vosmik with a pitched ball. Morgan forced Vosmik, Cissell scoring and Averill reaching third, whence he scored on Myatt's fly.

The Sox tied the score in the second without the aid of a hit or a walk. Hodapp was safe on Kamm's high throw. Grube grounded to Cissell and with an easy double play in sight Montague failed to catch Bill's throw. The runners moved up on Jones' sacrifice and Hodapp scored on Funk's out.

Sox Tie it Again.

In the third the Indians scored two runs after the side should have been out. Averill singled with two out; then Blue made a cold muff of Vosmik's foul, for which he was not charged with an error. Vosmik walked, after which Morgan doubled, scoring Averill and Vosmik.

The score was tied in the fourth on a great burst of Cleveland generosity. Appling and Hodapp led off with singles and, after Grube flied out, Jones walked, filling the bases. Ap-

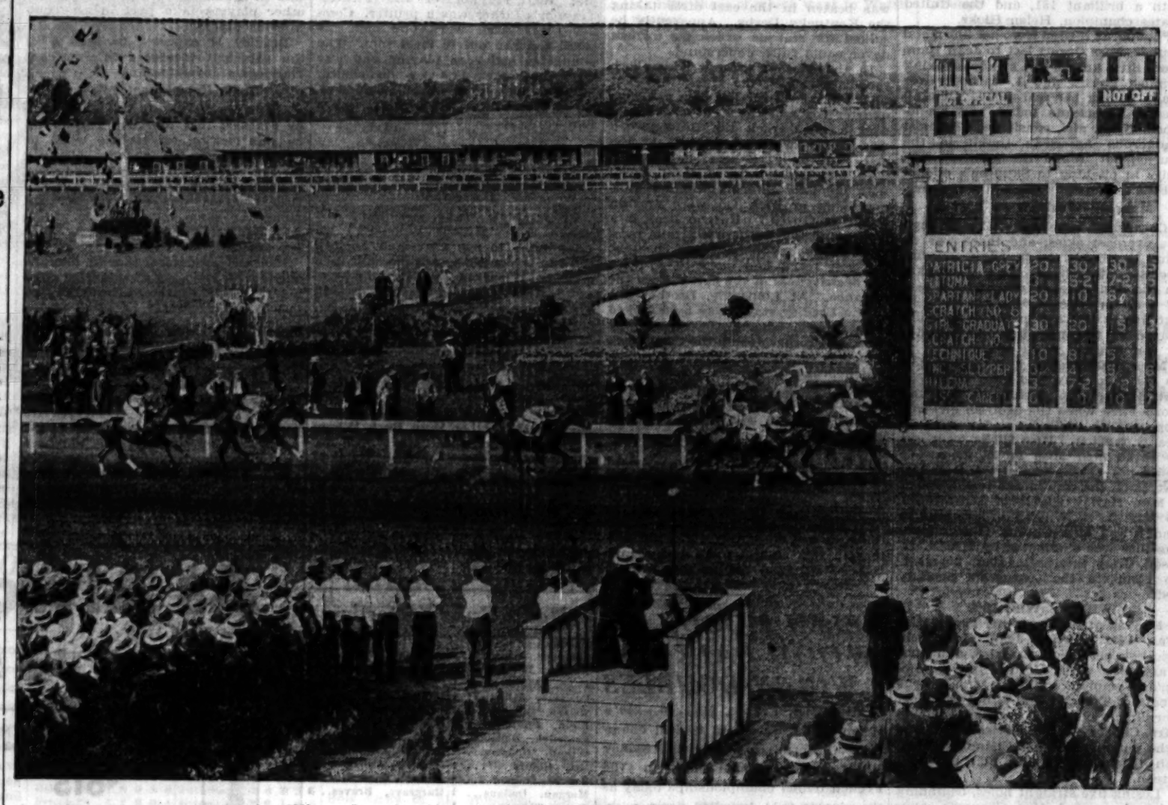
A DEBUTANTE SCORES A SOCIAL TRIUMPH



It was coming out day for Hilena, fleet daughter of High Cloud-Felina II., at Washington Park yesterday, and she made her bow gracefully before 25,000 as she led Nituma across the finish line in the Debutante stakes by half a length, for a purse worth $7,500. A neck behind Nituma is shown Spartan Lady who took third money. Hilena's flying hoofs were out in front early and kept her well ahead in the stretch drive.

Griffith Puts Away Roper in 41 Seconds

BY WILFRID SMITH.

Thirteen hundred paid admission to the first outdoor show of the season. The receipts were estimated at $2,000.

The knockout was the result of Griffith's first right hand punch in the center of the ring. To the crowd, most of which did not see the short blow, Roper apparently slipped. Momentarily Griffith may have thought the same, for as he stood astride Roper, he seemed prepared to pick him up.

Commissioner Says O. K.

Referee Oscar Richman waved Tuffy to a corner. At the count of eight Roper tried to rise, but he still was wiggling on all fours at the final count. He had no trouble getting to his corner, however, and from his motions, Jack indicated that Tuffy's punch had landed on the left ear.

Pantaleo Whips Young.

Paul Pantaleo, south side heavyweight, won a six round decision over Charlie Young of Logan Square. Paul knocked Young down with a left hook to the jaw just as the bell rang at the end of the second round. Paul broke two bones in his hand with the punch and in the succeeding rounds he fought entirely with his right hand. Aided by Pantaleo's misfortune, Young rallied and had the better of the exchanges until the final round. Pantaleo's aggressiveness and superior condition won the decision in that session.

Pat McLaughlin lost the decision to Buck Everett of Gary in six rounds, but escaped a knockout which seemed imminent every minute. Everett was unable to land the finishing blow, but was far superior in his punching.

DICKEY CLIMBS INTO THIRD PLACE WITH .383 TOTAL

Bill Dickey, the Yankees' hard hitting catcher, yesterday climbed into third place in the Big Six batting race, only one point behind Paul Waner of the Pirates. Five hits in nine times up sent Dickey's mark up to .383, while Waner was losing seven points. Jimmy Foxx of the Athletics dropped to .425 when he collected only two hits in seven attempts, but the A's slugger still was far ahead of the field. The leaders:

Hilena Shows 25,000 How Girl Can Run in Debutante

BY FRENCH LANE.

The sweetest girl of 'em all on the western turf is Hilena, a daughter of High Cloud-Felina II., which races for the Audley Farm stable.

She demonstrated it yesterday before a crowd of 25,000 in the Debutante stakes at Washington Park. She ran like a champion, outfooted her opponents in the early part of it, kept going down the stretch with plenty of pluck, and wound up the winner of the stake, which had a gross value of $7,450, by half a length from the Kentucky star Nituma.

Only a neck back in third place came Spartan Lady, another from Kentucky and strung out behind them were five other fillies which were bidding for fame.

Hilena Has Her Own Way.

But Hilena told 'em what to do and when to do it, and, with Jockey R. Jones in her saddle, to urge her along, the Debutante gradually became just a romp for Hilena despite the fact that she started from an extreme outside post position.

So Happy Gal, you champion from the east, come on out to Chicago and tackle our Hilena. You'll probably get outfooted but that is no fault of ours. But come on and try to trim our Hilena, Miss Happy Gal.

The Debutante was the feature of the holiday program at Washington Park. It topped one of the best cards ever arranged at the Homewood course. The crowd was one of the largest that ever has packed its way into the south side racing grounds. Most of those in the crowd liked the filly Hilena and they backed her so stoutly that she became the favorite right at post time.

After she had shaken her heels in the eyes of all her rivals and her number had been hung up as the winner, she paid $8.06 to win, $4.42 to place, and $3.06 to show. Nituma, the early favorite, was at $3.06 to place and $3.42 to show. And Spartan Lady paid $3.56 to show.

Takes Lead Early.

Patricia Grey was first to show in front, but an instant later Hilena, coming over from the outside, flew by her and, running the half mile in 47 seconds, was well out in the lead as they straightened out for the run down the stretch.

Jones let Hilena take it easy coming down the stretch, so she finished out the 5½ furlongs, running in better stride than all of them, in 1:07. It wasn't particularly fast time. The daughter of High Cloud seemed to have won on her class more than anything else.

Earlier in the afternoon the big crowd had been made happy when the heavily backed War Saint won the Memorial day handicap in a desperate stretch drive with Burning Up, and when Prose and Poetry captured the third race.

Both had been supported by most of the spectators and when they came up to the finish line in front there was cause for great hilarity. With Jockey C. E. Allen in the saddle, Prose and Poetry didn't have much trouble beating Patricia Marian by two lengths with the favorite Mad Career third, but hardly ever dangerous.

Nears Record for Track.

Prose and Poetry rewarded his loyal supporters at $6.10 for a two dollar ticket. He ran the mile in 1:38 2-5, which is flying in this day and age, the track record being only slightly more than a second lower. The track record for a mile at Washington Park is held by Gallant Knight.

War Saint ran his three quarters in 1:11 4-5, which also was within less than a second of the track record. He had all he could do to hold Burning Up safe in a furious run down the last furlong but he was game enough to do it and won by nearly a length. Burning Up was gaining at every stride, but Jockey Jones had made his move too late.

Supreme Sweet, which, as per custom, had been winging it out in front in the early stages, folded up and managed to save third money. Don Leon, Paul Bunyan, and Ervast, backed by a lot of old timers, didn't show much. Looks like these horses are has-beens.

Indianapolis, Ind., May 30.—Fred Frame of Los Angeles won the annual 500 automobile race here today in a Miller-Hartz Special. His time was 4:48:03.79, and his average speed of 104.144 miles an hour established a new track record, three miles an hour faster than the best previous average, 101.13, driven by Peter de Paolo in 1925.

The attendance was estimated at more than 150,000 by speedway officials. Frame won $20,000 as first prize and picked up nearly $20,000 more in lap prizes and special awards.

Wilcox Finishes Second.

The second, third, and fourth machines to finish also bettered De Paolo's record. Howdy Wilcox of Indianapolis, in a Lion Head Special, was forty-four seconds behind the winner. Trailing Wilcox was Cliff Bergere of Hollywood in a Studebaker Special, who finished with an average of 102.662 miles an hour. The fourth across the line was Bob Carey of Anderson, Ind., whose Meyer Special averaged 101.363 miles per hour, notwithstanding delays from a sprained shock absorber.

The record speed was maintained without fatalities. Two deaths had marred the practice spins last week. But there were many crackups as the hopped up cars swung around the two and a half mile brick oval faster than was ever intended for the saucer by its builders.

Former Winners Forced Out.

Arnold hit the wall in almost exactly the same spot where his car was wrecked a year ago after he had led the race for 405 miles and seemed certain of victory. That crash placed him in a hospital for six months. Before today's crackup Arnold had won $2,800 in lap prizes.

Two other former winners failed to finish. Louis Schneider of Indianapolis, who took first money last year, retired when the frame of his Bowes Special broke on the 126th lap. Louis Meyer of Los Angeles, the 1928 champion, bounced his Sampson Special into the outside wall of the northwest turn on his 50th lap, but didn't need an ambulance.

The expensive specially built racers sprinted away from the heavier semi-stock cars in the earlier laps, but when stamina became a deciding factor, later in the contest, factory entrants began to forge to the head. Two Studebakers and a Hupp finished in the money.

Frame Leads Last 100 Miles.

Frame drove a steady and consistent race, letting others pass to crash into a wall, throw a tire, or burn up a motor. He was in sixth place at 150 miles, tenth place at 200 miles, second place at 300 miles and was leading the last hundred miles. He is 37 years old and has been racing for ten years, finishing second in the 1931 event.

Bob Carey set the pace after Arnold went to the wall. He led the pack of roaring gas sprinters for 75 miles and then skidded into a concrete retainer on a turn. His car was repaired and he resumed the race to win fourth money. Ira Hall of Terre Haute, Ind., met a similar mishap in trying to set the pace, but returned to the contest and finished seventh.

The record pace took a heavy toll in automobiles. Wrecks and mechanical failures eliminated all but 22 of the 40 starters in the first 350 miles. Ten finished the 500 mile grind over rough bricks with 800 ninety degree turns. Four were flagged off the track after the money placers crossed the line.

Triplett, Cummings Out.

In the later laps, with only seconds separating cars from various money positions, the drivers were pressing. Ernie Triplett of Los Angeles dropped his Floating Power Special out of furth place, due to a broken clutch. Bill Cummings of Indianapolis went

REDS WIN FIRST, PIRATES SECOND IN DOUBLE HEADER

Pittsburgh, Pa., May 30.—(AP)—The Pirates and the Cincinnati Reds split a holiday double header today, Pittsburgh winning the afternoon game, 5 to 2, after dropping the morning encounter, 4 to 2. Bill Swift held a tight rein in the second contest, letting the Reds down with five scattered hits. Piet was the chief slugger with three safeties in four times at bat. Rixey nosed out Harris in the morning game.

DODGERS WIN TWICE.

Brooklyn, N. Y., May 30.—(AP)—Watson Clark and Van Mungo each pitched his fifth straight victory as the the Dodgers swept today's holiday bill with the Phillies, 13 to 4 and 5 to 3. Each allowed only four hits, and Mungo struck out 12 batters in the eight innings he worked of the nightcap. The first victory was an easy one, despite the fact that the Dodgers made seven errors behind Clark, but it required a four man rally in the last of the eighth to pull out the second game. Klein, with a single and triple, batted in all the runs off Mungo.

Orcutt Loses, Van Wie Wins in Golf Play

SAUNTON, England, May 30.—(AP)—Great Britain's women golfers turned back a wave of invaders in the first round of match play in the British championship tournament today, eliminating four of seven American qualifiers and all five French women.

Two Americans, Glenna Collett Vare and Virginia Van Wie, the latter of Chicago, won their matches in the most decisive figures of the day, while Mrs. Leona Pressler Cheney barely squeezed through. Unexpected casualties, however, were Maureen Orcutt, who won the qualifying medal with a brilliant 151, and the United States champion, Helen Hicks.

Playing as if tired from her fine metal rounds, Miss Orcutt lost to Jean Hamilton, little known but steady stroking English girl, 2 and 1, without ever really finding her real game. Like all of the Americans today, the Englewood, N. J., girl, considered the most dangerous American threat in the tournament, found the greatest difficulty in pitching to Saunton's midget greens and making the ball stay there.

Maureen Weakens on Last 9.

Occasional sunshine broke through the overcast skies, and there was no wind to trouble the invaders. Nevertheless, Miss Orcutt took 43 strokes on the first nine, turning with a lead of 1 up as Miss Hamilton shot a 44, but five 5s and a 6 in the eight holes played on the incoming nine left her at the English girl's mercy.

Miss Hicks played just as good golf as did Mrs. Vare and Miss Van Wie, but she had the misfortune to catch Doris Park when the Scottish girl was approaching perfectly and putting in deadly fashion. Miss Hicks went out in 38 to hold Miss Parks even, but could not match five straight 4s and two 5s on the way in and lost, 3 and 2.

Mrs. Harley Higbie of Detroit lost to Mrs. J. B. Watson of Scotland, 6 and 4, and Mrs. Opal S. Hill of Kansas City was eliminated by Mrs. J. H. Todd, Irish internationalist, 2 and 1, to complete the American casualty list.

Virginia Wins, 8-6.

Playing at the top of her game, Miss Van Wie crushed Jean McCulloch, Scottish champion, 8 and 6, and Mrs. Vare, five times United States women's champion, walloped Mrs. George Coats of Troon, 7 and 6, but the most thrilling victory of the day went to Mrs. Cheney, third American survivor, who conquered Doris Chambers, British titleholder in 1923, on the 18th green.

Losing five straight holes, beginning with the second, Mrs. Cheney's cause appeared hopeless as she came to the 14th green three down with only five to play. Miss Chambers, apparently believing her lead safe, went boldly for the pin with a long putt, missed again and lost the hole. Before she could recover, Mrs. Cheney won the 15th and 16th to square the match, halved the 17th and won out with a neat par 4 on the 18th.

While the entire French delegation, headed by Mrs. Rene Lacoste, wife of the tennis player, was defeated, Britain's only major loss was Diana Fishwick, 1930 champion, who was eliminated by the Australian titleholder, Susie Tolhurst, one up in 19 holes.

Enid Wilson, defending champion, defeated Lulu Esmond, 7 and 6, and then went on to play out the 18 holes in 72 strokes.

Miss Van Wie meets Miss Tolhurst in the second round tomorrow, and Mrs. Vare oppose. Mrs. John Challen of Blackwell, who beat Mrs. Hugh Percy, 3 and 1, today. Mrs. Cheney will play Jean Hamilton.

NOTRE DAME IS 2-1 VICTOR OVER WESTERN STATE

Kalamazoo, Mich., May 30.—[Special.]—Errors aided in paving the way for two runs today and gave Notre Dame a 2-1 victory over the Western State Teachers college baseball team. An error, sacrifice and a single allowed one in the third, and a double, error and a fielder's choice another in the ninth. The Hilltoppers rallied in the ninth, but the attack was nipped by the Irish with one run over and bases full.

In the Wake of the News

BURGOO KING'S DEFEAT.

BURGOO KING'S crushing defeat in the Withers Mile Saturday—sixth in a field of seven—did not clarify the 3 year old title problem to any extent. Perhaps it showed the son of Bubbling Over is not a super-colt. Few thought he was. Even Owner Bradley has expressed the opinion his Derby and Preakness winner was a good colt, but not the greatest which ever came from Idle Hour farm.

Even had conditions of the race not been all against Burgoo King, there is precedent for one bad race in the records of Man o' War, Reigh Count, and others estimated more highly than Burgoo King is at this time. Man o' War lost a race as a 2 year old which did not jibe with any other performance before or after. He was unbeaten as a 3 year old and then retired to the stud. Reigh Count was beaten in the east after taking the Kentucky Derby. Apparently he sulked for reasons which his owners never could fully understand.

In the case of Burgoo King, both the distance and the going were not to his liking. Over the mile and one-quarter route of the Kentucky Derby over a good track the Bradley colt was going away impressively at the end. In the Preakness, half a furlong shorter, it was a tight finish with opinions differing whether Burgoo King or Tick On were moving faster at the end. Burgoo King is a stayer and the Withers is a mile race.

It seems probable, however, that the soft track had more to do with the decisiveness of the defeat than the distance. At Louisville, Brother Joe of the Bradley stable was better liked than Burgoo King if the course was muddy. Brother Joe on the good track was last except for Liberty Limited, which broke down. As a 2 year old, Burgoo King ran three times on heavy or sloppy tracks. He was beaten from ten lengths up on those occasions.

There are turfmen who maintain a real champion should be able to travel over any kind of footing. The Wake would not go so far as to say this limitation bars Burgoo King from the 1932 title by any means—and sometimes horses upset their previous history in this respect. We still regard Burgoo King as far in the lead on performance to date. We had not thought he so far outclassed his rivals that defeat somewhere along the line was not impossible.

So far as competition is concerned, Burgoo King's reverse in the Withers lends even more interest to the American Derby at Washington Park June 18 and to the Arlington Classic in July.

Pi Traynor's Nickname.

We are indebted to the Cardinal News, a tabloid for fans published by the St. Louis club, for explanation of the nickname of Third Baseman Pi (not Pie) Traynor of the Pirates. Traynor's father was a printer. Coming home from work one day, his small son ran out to meet him. The youngster had been playing and was dirty and generally disheveled. "You're just a lot of pi," said dad. Pi, in compositors' vernacular, means jumbled type. The nickname stuck.

HELEN MOODY, WOOD PAIR TO WIN IN DOUBLES

AUTEUIL, France, May 30.—(AP)—Helen Wills Moody, in typical championship form, qualified with Sidney Wood for her second final in the French tennis championships today as the singles field dwindled down without an upset to a dozen men and 16 women.

Opening the second week of play, Mrs. Moody, who regained the women's doubles championship with Elizabeth Ryan last week after a year's absence from the tournament, paired with the New Yorker today to defeat Jean Borotra and Josane Sigart, 7-5, 6-2, in a semi-final match. In the final round they will meet the British team of Betty Nuthall and Fred Perry, who eliminated Henri Cochet and Mrs. Eileen Bennett Whittingstall, 2-6, 6-2, 6-3.

den change of heart about Moriarty since I was a member of the team, held Berry. Gaston came along and asked Moriarty 'Who he ever licked' and Moriarty shouted that he was 47 years old but that he could lick Gaston. He then knocked Gaston down and kicked him.

"It was at this point that I and several other team mates of Gaston took a part. The Cleveland players interfered before we could do a real good job."

Mr. Bradley, owner of the Indians, saw Gaston knocked down twice, he said in a statement, and watched the other players take part in an "outrageous manner."

Stern Punishment Likely.

Evans, in discussing the point made by Fonseca that Moriarty had shown he was looking for trouble when he came through the runway adjacent to the Cleveland dugout, said that Moriarty made the proper exit and that Dinneen was at fault for not going the same way, because of the rule against umpires mingling with spectators.

Baseball observers, though long familiar with Moriarty's belligerent character, tonight expressed the belief that baseball officials will be stern in the handling of the matter, even if it is found necessary to include the wounded umpire in the punishment.

While no official would discuss the attack, pending an investigation, a physical attack, even a single handed attack, long has been considered the gravest of baseball offenses. The evidence that Moriarty not only was beaten, but also ganged, is expected to get a thorough sifting, despite testimony regarding the umpire's widely reputed bullying and profane propensities.

It has been a matter of more or less common knowledge that Moriarty was unfriendly to the White Sox during the tenure of Donie Bush as manager. The feeling between the men dated back to the time Bush and Moriarty played on the Detroit team.

Bush, it was said, had a way of throwing Moriarty into a frenzy of anger by chiding him on an alleged instance in which Moriarty assaulted a vaudeville comedian named Cooper, after Moriarty had charged Cooper with stealing a ditty Moriarty had written.

On one occasion, while Bush was manager of the Sox, he had Moriarty engaged in an especially bitter quarrel, but the two were called to the league offices and requested to shake hands and forget the pointed language that had passed between them.

Men familiar with baseball procedure were inclined to look upon all narratives as beside the point. Baseball rule is supreme over players, and suspension for life for all the players involved in the brawl is possible under the jurisdiction of the league president or the baseball commissioner.

Whether tomorrow's game will be played depends upon the action of the league president. If the players under investigation are suspended pending decision as per custom, the Sox will be without a manager, a catcher, or Gaston, who was scheduled to do the pitching.

pling scored while Funk was forcing Jones, and Hodapp came in with the tying run while Connally, with the ball in his hand, was over by first challenging Funk to fisticuffs.

There were two out, two on, and two strikes on Cissell when the game went haywire for keeps, at the expense of Tommy Thomas, who had relieved Jones with one out in the last of the fourth. Cissell tripled, driving in two runs, and walked home on Averill's No. 6 homer.

In the fifth Morgan's homer and a two base muff by Fothergill were responsible for two more runs, and a single and another error by Fothergill led to another run in the sixth.

The Sox scored their last run in the sixth, when Hodapp doubled and ran home on Appling's single.

SECOND GAME

Funk started the second game with a double. Hayes singled to right, putting Funk on third. Hayes stole second, and when Sewell's throw was high Funk scored.

The Indians tied the score in the second when Morgan got around on a walk, Sewell's single and an infield out.

Gregory supplied two of the outs in the third, but the Sox didn't mind because they made five runs. After Paul had popped to Montague, Funk knocked a homer over the right field screen. Hayes walked and went to third on Selph's single to left. Kress walked, filling the bases. Blue singled to right, scoring Hayes and Selph and putting Kress on third. Pearson relieved Hildebrand, and Hodapp flied to Averill, Kress scoring. Fothergill doubled, scoring Blue, and Berry walked. Gregory fanned.

Four for Indians.

Porter opened the Indian third with a homer. Cissell struck out and Averill bounced out to Blue, but Vosmik doubled off the right field wall and Morgan was hit by a pitched ball. Sewell knocked a homer over Funk's head, scoring Vosmik and Morgan ahead of him. Kamm singled to center and Montague walked. Frasier then relieved Gregory and spiked the rally.

Jablonowski walked Funk to start the fourth, then Hayes flied to Vosmik. Selph was safe on Morgan's error. Kress singled to right, scoring Funk and putting Selph on third. Hudlin replaced Jablonowski. Blue's fly to Averill scored Selph. Kress stole second and scored on Hodapp's single. The Sox added a pair of runs in the seventh on Hodapp's and Fothergill's singles, a stolen base, an error and an infield out.

Indians Rout Frasier.

The Indians drove Frasier to cover in the seventh. With one down Morgan walked. Sewell grounded to Selph and both runners were safe when Selph kicked the ball. Kamm singled to center, scoring Morgan and putting Sewell on third. Burnett batted for Montague and doubled, scoring Sewell Jamieson batted for Hudlin and walked, filling the bases. McKain went in and Porter forced Kamm at the plate and Cissell popped to Kress.

In their eighth the Indians added a run on a walk, a single, and two outs, two fine plays by Hayes preventing things from being much worse.

In the ninth Burnett got another double and scored on Ferrell's single. Caraway replaced McKain. Cissell doubled over third. Ferrel stopping at third. Averill tripled to right center, scoring Ferrell and Cissell with the tying runs. Vosmik and Morgan were given intentional passes, filling the bases. Lyons replaced Caraway. Sewell forced Morgan, Averill scoring the winning run.

YANKS CAPTURE BOTH GAMES FROM RED SOX

New York, May 30.—(AP)—The Yankees walloped the Boston Red Sox twice today, 7 to 5 and 13 to 3, and increased their lead to five full games over the Washington Senators, who were dropping a pair to the Athletics.

Although he was hit hard, Herb Pennock lasted to win his third victory of the year in the first game. In the nightcap the Yankees pounded four Red Sox pitchers for 15 hits and scored in every inning but the sixth.

GABBY SPOILS A NICE HOMECOMING PARTY

The 45,000 folks who went to see the Cubs and Cardinals yesterday got up and cheered when Gabby Hartnett tagged out Jim Collins in fourth inning of first game. Collins tried to score from third on Wilson's grounder to English, but Woody slammed the ball back to Hartnett with disastrous results for the St. Louis runner. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

Warneke, Haines Picked to Pitch in Cubs-Cards Game

Managers Hornsby and Street will have no strain on their imagination to find a satisfactory pitcher for the third of the series this afternoon. The Cub's chief has hardly any choice except Lon Warneke, who started last Friday against the Reds. It will be Jess Haines for the champions.

Paul Derringer's start in the first game yesterday was his seventh of the season and the first of the seven in which he was credited with victory.

Herman and Grimm collaborated in a bare handed act in the eighth inning the first game. After Gelbert had walked, Stout bunted a slow one toward Herman, who tore in, picked up the ball with one hand and whipped it to Grimm. The throw was so far to Grimm's left that he had to grab it with his bare paw.

Stephenson put on a headlong dive to get a low drive by Mancuso in the fourth session of the second game and Umpire Magerkurth decided the batter was out. The overflow fans in left field promptly started to kid Stevie about the catch, so they probably saw something the umpire missed.

Cubs Lose, 6-4; Then Hornsby Leads 'Em to 6-2 Triumph

just out of Grimm's reach, Wilson scoring and Gelbert halting at third. Frisch batted for Derringer and bounced to Jurges. Jurges shot the ball to the plate and Gelbert scored because Hartnett muffed the throw. Singles by Orsatti and Martin drove in Bottomley and Frisch. May dashed to Grimes' rescue at this point and quelled the disturbance after Orsatti had registered the fifth run on Collins' double.

The Cubs stirred up a lot of false excitement in the ninth, but the hit so sorely needed never came. For a starter Stout fanned Moore. Herman walked and English beat out a scratch hit to Frisch. When Hornsby walked, filling the bases, Stout was excused. Lindsay brought the fun to a sudden halt when both Stephenson and Grimm bounced to Frisch.

SECOND GAME

Bush didn't have to wait long for trouble to greet him in the evening battle. Orsatti, the first man to face him, whipped a single to center and Martin beat out a slow roller to English. Hendrick hit a long fly to Moore and Orsatti hiked to third after the catch. Grimm picked up Collins' grounder and tossed to Jurges for a possible double play, but Jurges missed the bag. However, he returned the throw to Grimm in time to nab Collins. Meanwhile, Orsatti ran home. Hornsby took in Watkins' long fly to end the inning.

Two more hits made it 2 to 0 for the champions in the third. Martin thumped a single past English's left ear and promptly put on an exhibition of how he threw fear into the Athletics last fall. He stole second. Hendrick was put out of the way on a tap to Grimm, but Collins tripled against the screen in right center and Martin scored.

Hornsby Smacks One.

During the first three innings against Carleton the Cubs didn't do much in their own behalf. But after one was out in the fourth Hornsby, with cheers coming from one side and boos from the other, leaned into the first pitch and arched it into the right field seats for his first homer of the year. Stephenson and Grimm followed with singles, but Carleton wasn't quite ready to fold up. He sneaked out of the jam by getting Hemsley on a pop to short and Jurges on a roller to Gilbert.

Hornsby walked to start the sixth. Stephenson rammed a two bagger into the left field crowd. Grimm was tossed out and things then began to happen. Richbourg batted for Hemsley and was passed purposely. Gudat swung for Jurges and Carleton was so immersed in the habit of pitching wide that he couldn't get the ball over. Gudat walked and Hornsby was forced to score. Hartnett, batting for Bush, popped out, but Moore drilled a single to right, Stephenson and Richbourg scoring. Herman fanned.

Hornsby's third contribution to the cause came after English had hoisted to Orsatti in the seventh. The manager took hold of one of Sherdel's slow teasers and sailed it among the folks in front of the left bleacher wire for a double. Stephenson liked the two base idea so well that he hit one to right, Hornsby scoring. Grimm also lined safely to right, but a snappy pickup by Watkins held him to a single. Stevie went home unmolested.

Tick On, Rogue at Barrier, on Way to American Derby

Candidates for the American Derby will begin rolling in at Washington Park soon. Traveling back from Belmont Park with Gallant Knight will be seven horses in the care of Max Hirsch. The shipment will include Tick On, the rogue which has been running his race at the post. Hirsch also will have a candidate for the Illinois Oaks in his shipment, but last night it wasn't known what Illinois Oaks runner he was bringing here. Gallant Knight, Tick On, and the others are to arrive on Wednesday.

Later in the day will come the George D. Widener horses, including Evening, which will rule as a favorite in the Illinois Oaks against Suntica, I Say, and the other 3 year old fillies which are to strive for the $10,000 prize.

Burgoo King will be here about Thursday; so will Stepenfetchit, Over Time, and several other good eastern 3 year olds. Economic and Boatswain will stop over in Cleveland Saturday to run in the Ohio Derby. It appears as if the American Derby will be a great horse race. Try to pick the winner at this early date and get 5 or 6 to 1 for your money.

Jockey Charley Allen has quit riding for Herbert B. Woolf of Kansas City. The Woolf horses are not running well right now and Allen wants to be up on horses that can win.

Sewell S. Combs, president of the Kentucky Racing association and member of the Kentucky racing commission, saw his filly, Nituma, get trimmed by Helena in the Debutante stakes.

Hubbard Petty, sheriff of Jefferson county, Kentucky, was present, accompanied by Mrs. Petty. They returned last night to Louisville.

W. Garner, who was to have ridden Evergold, winner of the first race, Baggage Miss, and three other horses, preferred to spend the day at the Indianapolis Speedway motor races. Good jockeys are strange fellows.

Col. Matt J. Winn said the crowd at Washington Park yesterday surpassed the record breaking Memorial day throng of three years ago. He based his prediction on the fact that 2,000 more programs were sold. He said there were more than 30,000 people in yesterday's gathering. The betting was unofficially reported to have run well over $800,000.

Firemen Split Double Bill at Milwaukee

Milwaukee, Wis., May 30.—The Milwaukee Red Sox and the Chicago Firemen today divided a Wisconsin-Illinois league double header at Borchert field here. A big first inning during which they scored six runs enabled the Chicagoans to capture the opener, 11 to 4. Lefty Blatz's tight pitching was responsible for the Milwaukee victory in the nightcap, a seven inning game. The score was 10 to 1. Less than 700 saw the contests. Skurski's home run, which came with two on in the first inning of the inaugural, featured the winners' attack. Blatz allowed only six hits, three of which went to Walsh. Scores:

DAUCHY'S VARYA WINS IN YACHT RACE INAUGURAL

Changing Wind Adds Zest to Gala Program.

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

A fickle southwest wind greeted sailors yesterday as the Chicago yacht racing season opened off three ports and its flirting tendencies kept crews busy throughout the afternoon at the Chicago, Jackson Park, and Columbia Yacht clubs in their inaugural season races.

In the series A club races of the Chicago Yacht club off Belmont harbor the victors were Samuel Dauchy's R boat, Varya; George Getz Jr.'s eagle class Acquila, and Mrs. Haven Requa's pup boat, Ulysses. At Jackson park the boats sailed for the Skipper's cup, first raced for in 1903, and the Q boat Princess, owned by Ed Jedzry-Kowski and Carl Kallgren, was the winner. The Hansen-Lotz entry, Swanee, led the fleet home in the Columbia's club opener, sailed for the first time over the new club course, which runs from the Van Buren street gap to the World's Fair grounds.

Varya Wins in R Class.

In the R class Ned Sheridan's Ariel was first over the line, followed by the Railton-Kimball Nancy and Varya. They held these positions until the third leg of the twice around triangular course of about 12 miles, when Nancy and Varya went ahead of Ariel. The latter caught Varya again on the fourth leg, but Nancy clung to her lead. They maintained this order through the fifth leg, but on the sixth the trio changed positions three times, with Varya finally gaining the advantage for victory.

Hay Offered Agua Caliente Managership

Los Angeles, Cal., May 30.—C. W. Hay, who is general manager of the Washington Park race track in Chicago, is to be asked to take complete charge of the racing at the Agua Caliente track in Mexico next winter, it was reported here late today.

Control of the Auga Caliente track has recently passed into the hands of Baron Long, Joseph Schenck, and James Crofton. Long is reported to be carrying on the reorganization work and for several years has been a close friend of the Washington Park manager.

Announcement of Hay's appointment will be made within a day or so, according to the reports heard here tonight. He will not only succeed the late Francis Uelson, who had served as presiding steward here, but will also direct the business affairs and the policy of the Agua Caliente track, according to the reports brought here from the Mexican resort.

C. W. Hay, Washington Park's general manager, would make no comment last night on the reports that he was to take charge of the Agua Caliente race track.

"It's news to me," he said.

DICK TRACY—In Appreciation

All Are Guests on Same Footing.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, May 30.—[Special]—A new sort of adventure in charity in which the fellow-to-be-helped is not put on parade has been on trial here in theatrical circles for six months.

SELINA ROYLE.

It works. It also saves self-respect and it is not abused.

Today a lot of unemployed actors and actresses are dining regularly every night. They are sitting at tables with their friends and no one in the dining room has the slightest idea as to who is a paying guest and who is a nonpaying guest.

The Actors' Dinner club is just what its name signifies. It is the exact opposite of bread lines, soup kitchens and charitable coffee parlors in every respect except one—that everything is free to those who cannot pay.

Originated by Actors.

The idea originated with Selina Royle, actress and daughter of Edwin Milton Royle, the playwright, and now has the support of almost every spotlight personality in the theatrical world.

The first dining room was opened in the basement of the Union Methodist church just off Times Square, last December. Now the club has outgrown its quarters and has moved into the basement of Loew's State theater right smack in the middle of the white light belt.

More than 1,200 free dinners are being served each week in addition to several thousand dinners which are paid for. The club is becoming a meeting place for theatrical celebrities and is considered a fashionable place to dine or entertain parties. The paying guests are taxed $1 a meal. The food actually costs 80 cents. Some unemployed brother or sister dines on the other 50 cents and he or she dines right alongside at the next table. So far as the neighbor knows the person in the next chair is a paying guest.

A Nod Settles the Bill.

All persons in the "profession" who are out of work need do is nod to the "librarian," as the treasurer is called, and a complimentary meal ticket is supplied to them without any fuss or registration. The names of those who enjoy free dinners in the club are known only to the "librarian." The board of governors, of which Miss Royle is chairman, seldom inquires concerning its guests.

The free meal ticketholder is treated as a guest and enjoys all the social advantages of the dinner club and the social advantages are numerous. Last night the Actors' club held open house in its new quarters.

Five hundred dinners were served and considerably more than half were served to members of the profession "temporarily at liberty." Some of them played the piano, several sang, and leading men and leading ladies chatted pleasantly with ex-leading men and ex-leading ladies.

Since last December the dinner club has provided 50,000 free meals to unemployed members of the theater. Its money comes from charity performances, benefit concerts, donations, and from the paying guests. One actor from the paying guests.

CHURCH OF ENGLAND BODY RAPS BISHOPS' BIRTH CONTROL STAND

LONDON, May 30.—(AP)—Mixed regret and commendation for the stand that Church of England bishops took on marriage, divorce, and birth control at the Lambeth conference of 1930 are expressed in a report made public today by the lower house of the convocation of Canterbury. The committee's report will be presented to the convocation in London this week.

(The convocation of Canterbury is an ecclesiastical body, similar to a synod, with upper and lower houses.)

The report welcomes the emphasis given by the bishops' resolutions at the Lambeth conference to the statement that "the functions of sex as a God given factor in human life are essentially noble and creative."

Dealing with birth control, the report expresses regret that the majority of bishops stated that "other methods than abstinence may be used in some circumstances."

YANK HONORED BY NICARAGUA FOR 20 YEARS' SERVICE

MANAGUA, Nicaragua, May 30.—(AP)—Irving A. Lindberg, American high commissioner and collector general of customs in Nicaragua, was rewarded by the government today with a sum equivalent to three months' salary as a special token in recognition of his twenty years of service.

Mr. Lindberg, who is believed here to have the longest continual service record of all United States financial experts serving with foreign governments, also received a letter of congratulation from President Moncada and the minister of finance.

Lindberg first came to Nicaragua in 1912, on President Taft's economy and efficiency commission, to install an accounting system. Since then he also has served in the Nicaraguan secret service during the war, on various commissions and financial missions to the United States and Europe, and as inspector of Nicaraguan consulates in the United States.

SECRETARYSHIP OF LEAGUE MAY GO TO FRENCHMAN

GENEVA, May 30.—(AP)—France is expected by authorities here to supply the next secretary general of the league of nations to succeed Sir Eric Drummond, the retiring British secretary.

Promotion of Joseph Avenol, deputy secretary general, to head the secretariat is regarded as likely since the death of Albert Thomas, French director of the international labor office, left another important place to be filled.

Harold B. Butler, British deputy director of the labor office, now serving as acting head, is expected eventually to become director.

The names of two Americans, Newton D. Baker and Norman Davis, have also been mentioned as possibilities for the secretaryship.

3 BANK TRIALS ARE ON DOCKET FOR THIS WEEK

But Bains' Case May Be Again Delayed.

Three bank case trials are scheduled to start in the Criminal courts this week.

One of them involves charges growing out of the failure of the twelve Bain banks. John Bain, south park commissioner, his two sons, John H. and Robert Bain, and his son-in-law, W. Merle Fisher, are the main defendants. This case is on the trial docket for today, but it may be continued for another week so that an official order may be obtained from the Illinois Supreme court assigning Judge John M. O'Connor of the Appellate court to the Criminal court for this hearing. Judge O'Connor was agreed on by both sides to try the case without a jury.

Trial of Flowers on Today.

Trial of the Roosevelt-Bankers State bank case, which has been dragging through the courts for twenty months, is to start today before Judge Philip Sullivan. The defendants are Alexander Flower, chairman of the board of the closed bank; Sam Flower, president, and Louis W. Frank, cashier.

They were tried last fall by Judge Joseph Burke without a jury, but were acquitted when the judge held that the prosecution had failed to show any criminal intent. The prosecution countered with a new batch of indictments and Assistant State's Attorney Henry Ayers, who is in charge of the bank investigation bureau of State's Attorney Swanson's office, said he will keep trying the Flowers on all indictments if necessary.

Assistant State's Attorneys Wilkie Ham, Voyle Johnson and Bindley Cyrus, who will handle the prosecution of the Flowers, spent the holiday preparing for the trial. They said they are ready and will not consent to any continuances.

Third Case Set for Trial.

The third case set for trial this week is that of the Exchange State bank, which is on Judge John Prystalski's trial docket for Thursday morning. Lee A. King, former vice president of the bank, is the main defendant. Roscoe H. H. Luckenbill, president, has been a fugitive since the bank closed. The indictments in this case have been pending since October, 1930. Assistant State's Attorney Harry Busch and Leonard Rice are assigned to the prosecution.

Because of criticism resulting from delay in the trying of bank cases, Chief Justice Harry Fisher of the Criminal court held a meeting last week with his associates and Prosecutor Swanson and coöperation was promised for speedy trials.

Judges Sullivan, Prystalski, George Fred Rush, and Walter Stanton have agreed to give precedence to the trial of bank cases.

MANY GUN TOTERS ARE ILLITERATE, POLICE REPORT

Chicago gun toters and their excuses for violating the law were described yesterday in the monthly report of the gun section of the detective bureau of Chief of Detectives Schoemaker.

Since Jan. 1 the police have confiscated 513 pistols and revolvers. In doing so they made 601 arrests, since it is the practice to charge all the persons in a party with carrying concealed weapons, even though not all are armed. Of those arrested, 144 were found to have police records. The statistics by months, since the first of the year, follow:

	Arrests.	Guns.	Previous Offenders.
January	133	109	30
February	119	103	23
March	148	130	49
April	90	78	14
May [incomplete]	111	93	28

"The most general characteristic of gun toters is their lack of education," said Chief Schoemaker. "A sixth or seventh grade education is the average. Many never went to school, and a number were unable to write their own names. I asked a Negro recently how far he had gone in school. He replied, 'About a mile and a half.'

OFFICIAL LIST OF RECEIVERS IS SUGGESTED

Judge Sullivan Says It Might Help.

BY AL CHASE.

Following close on the heels of the suggestion made at a meeting of the renting and management division of the Chicago real estate board that an official board of plumbers, carpenters, painters, property managers, etc., will pass on all orders for work on buildings in receivership comes another suggested aid to receivership proceedings. This plan, outlined to Judge Denis E. Sullivan and tentatively approved by him, calls for the establishment of a list of official receivers from which the Circuit and Superior court chancellors could make their appointments.

This list would consist of individuals and trust companies whose records and organizations establish their high character and ability and equipment for receivership work. It is said that already there are more than a thousand different receivers now handling property in Cook county for the courts.

Calls It Worth Trying.

It is pointed out that it is manifestly impossible for the judges to have definite personal knowledge of the ability and fitness of each of these receivers. It also is impossible for the judges to have the same degree of centralized control of this army of administrators that it would have over a limited number of receivers of proved ability, with a record of honest and capable administration.

Judge Sullivan said he considered the suggestion well worth trying out, although there was the possibility that having a limited number of official receivers to draw on might result in the development of a political ring or combine that possibly could prove more harmful than helpful. He believed, however, that the idea might obviate many of the abuses and confusion which naturally arise when there's such a large number of receivers, and said he would be glad to see the suggestion given a test.

"We believe it would work out to the advantage of the courts, save money for thousands of investors, and speed up reorganizations, and thus prove a strong factor in restoring confidence, benefiting the entire real estate and mortgage situation," said a well known realtor.

Geneva Terrace Apartments.

Forty-three of the fifty-six suites in the Geneva Terrace apartments at Deming place and Geneva terrace are occupied, according to a report of T. E. Williams, secretary of the bondholders' protective committee. The Chicago Title and Trust company, receiver, announces $1,677 cash on hand on April 30, 1932.

This was a Cochran & McCluer 6½ per cent $285,000 first mortgage real estate bond issue, which has since been paid down to $270,000. At the time of issue the property was appraised at $464,500, and the net income was estimated at $37,830.

Receive $10,315,000 Bonds.

The Realty Investors trust, which acts for the holders of defaulted bonds sold by Baer, Eisendrath & Co., reports that it has now received for deposit bonds aggregating $10,315,000. Additional deposits have been made during the last three months at the rate of approximately half a million a month, it is stated. The trust is now directing the reorganization of 200 buildings.

Bonds for the following properties recently have been called for deposit: The Lincolnshire block, 4305 Lincoln avenue; Union Court apartments, 5404-08 South Union avenue; Delhi apartments, 1330 North Artesian avenue; Knollcrest apartments, 2123 Pierce avenue; Ithaca apartments, southeast corner of 56th street and Union avenue; Ottawa apartments, 4316 Flournoy street, and the Palmer Square apartments, northeast corner of Palmer street and Hancock avenue.

"Complete deposit of all bonds outstanding has been received in many instances and it appears that foreclosure can be avoided in a majority of the properties," said Clarence L. Coleman Jr., secretary of the trust.

WHITNEY DENIES HE TRIED TO DECEIVE CONGRESS ON TAXES

Washington, D. C., May 30.—(AP)—Richard Whitney, president of the New York Stock Exchange, denied today in a letter placed in the Congressional Record by Senator Copeland [Dem., N. Y.] a charge by Representative La Guardia [Rep., N. Y.] that he misrepresented facts before congressional committees in comparing American and British taxes on stock transfers.

Whitney said he compared the proposed stock transfer tax with the British stamp tax and not with the English transfer tax, because the latter is not comparable.

The letter from Whitney to Representative Chinblom [Rep., N. Y.] said in part:

"I am at a loss to understand how Congressman La Guardia can charge me with having made a willful misrepresentation and a deliberate and willful omission in order to deceive the senate."

"The exchange did not in any way misrepresent the facts. I cannot help feeling that Congressman La Guardia, in charging the exchange with having misrepresented the facts, is attempting to confuse the issue."

CITES KREUGER CASE IN BLOW AT WALL STREET

Untermyer Asks for Federal Control.

New York, May 30.—(AP)—In a new attack on the New York Stock exchange, Samuel Untermyer today stated that the Kreuger & Toll debacle "once again emphasizes the necessity for federal legislation regulating, supervising and curbing the uncontrolled power" of the exchange.

The attack is contained in a letter which the veteran lawyer addressed to the exchange as counsel for the independent protective committee for Kreuger & Toll Co. debenture bond holders. It is in reply to a recent communication from the exchange in which it refused to use its power in helping the independent protective committee gain access to a list of Kreuger & Toll bond holders.

Cities Floating of Issues.

"The only parties who have access to the lists of debenture holders are Lee, Higginson & Co. and their allied banking houses, underwriters and members of the selling syndicate by or through whom these debentures were issued and distributed to the public," Mr. Untermyer's letter states.

"All of these sales were based on a prospectus signed by Lee, Higginson & Co. and their co-syndicate members that was a mass of grossly false and fraudulent statements. I do not for a moment suggest that these gentlemen knew, or had reason to believe, that the representations were false. Although I have no evidence on the subject, I am satisfied that the contrary is the case, but insist that there was unbelievable negligence on their part, amounting to constructive fraud, which renders them liable to the tens of thousands of investors who have been defrauded.

"It is hardly likely that these victimized investors, if they had any alternative, would knowingly place their debentures in the hands of a committee organized by and representing the agencies through which they were deceived."

Sees Peril to Buyers.

"In none of these cases, so far as I know, where there has been a default in the payment of principal or interest, or in any other case of which I know, does the mortgage or agreement contain any provision whereby the bond holders can get into communication with one another for self-preservation, although you are, and rightly so, careful in exacting the inclusion of many other covenants in the public interest and protection.

"It would be a simple matter to require, as a condition of listing, that it be provided in these documents and that the company should stipulate hat the trustee through whom the coupons are paid must secure and keep a list of the names and addresses of the owners of the bonds to whom the coupons are paid."

Quotes Selling Pleas.

Mr. Untermyer furnishes samples of sales literature which he contends were used in furthering the sale of Kreuger & Toll securities to the public.

"If the exchange were under governmental supervision does any one imagine that it would be permitted to place upon its official list securities that are marketed by such methods or without evidence of the measures that had been taken to verify the representations made to the public? The government authorities would doubtless demand that the exchange require from all selling or distributing syndicates a copy of all literature on which investors are induced to reply."

Referring to the stock exchange's refusal to help the independent protective committee gain access to the desired bond holders' list, the lawyer expresses regret "that your exchange has again lost the opportunity to perform an important service in the public protection and that you have again emphasized the necessity for putting an end to a situation in which your great power is uncontrolled."

C. H. SWIFT ISSUES STATEMENT ABOUT SWIFT INTERNACIONAL

"We regret to announce the death on May 28 of Mr. Edward F. Swift, president of Compania Swift Internacional since its organization.

"We take this occasion to inform you that the death of Mr. Swift in no way affects the business or financial status of your company.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, May 30.—Holders of the Central West Public Service company's one billion dollars of three year 7 per cent gold notes, due on Aug. 1, which the company reports it will not be in a position to meet at their maturity through public financing of bank loans, and holders of a $200,000 demand loan, callable at any time, have received offers of a new issue of $1,200,000 of three year 7 per cent gold notes, to be dated Aug. 1, in exchange for their maturing securities. The new issue will rank equally with the debentures maturing on Nov. 1, 1936.

"Commitments for necessary loans, together with a helpful attitude on the part of certain large holders, have been obtained by the management, subject to the effective consummation of the exchange plan," Max McGraw, chairman, has written to the noteholders.

Life Insurance Stands Firmly as Stocks Fall

BY SCRUTATOR.

It is perhaps only natural that in a period of declining values when investors see corporations in whose soundness they had implicit faith crumbling around them, there should be generated some distrust and suspicion of all institutions.

That would explain the occasional attacks of life insurance jitters that disturb the minds of policyholders and the sporadic false rumors about life insurance companies that circulate freely until they are officially denied or wear themselves out.

Most of the rumors are ignored by company officers. Some take the position that gossip should not be dignified by their denials. Others feel that official contradiction might do more harm than undenied rumors.

When Views Diverge.

The situation is not particularly helped by the wide spread between the point of view of the company executive who has all the information about his company and knows that it is sound and the point of view of the small policyholder who has no figures and wouldn't know how to translate them anyway. There is lack of mutual understanding.

"Many of us have heard rumors, but this one which you so kindly relate to me in yours of the 20th takes first prize," writes the vice president of one of the large companies to a friend in Chicago. "You and I are not in the least disturbed by a comment of this kind. But we do wonder at the type of mind which starts such gossip."

Individual companies have hesitated to issue extraordinary reassurances to policyholders for fear they would be misunderstood, but word comes from the east that a number of companies have been considering uniting in a campaign of institutional advertising to combat false rumors.

Make Excellent Record.

Legal reserve life insurance companies on the whole have made an excellent record during an exceptionally trying period of falling values. There have been a few receiverships, but in each case other life insurance companies have offered to take over the business and pay claims in full. A large number of life companies have extra funds to invest and are looking for opportunities to purchase the business of companies that have gone into receivership. In that way they can acquire in one large block an amount of active business that it would take a long time to get through agents.

C. M. Cartwright, managing editor of the National Underwriter, says that the failures that have occurred have been due not to the times, but to mismanagement or juggling of securities.

"Trouble has developed only in cases where there has been the grossest mismanagement," he says. "These have been pretty well exposed. There is little danger where a company has been well managed.

"Even the companies that have been mismanaged and have failed have brought no loss to their policyholders. Stockholders have suffered, but the business has been reinsured and policyholders have been protected."

Policy Loans Large.

Steady demand for policy loans has been the thorn in the side of the life companies for two years. It has forced them to maintain an unusual degree of liquidity and has prevented the investment of income from premiums and securities in long term paper. Instead, they have had to keep large cash balances and invest in government bonds and other low yield, but readily marketable, paper.

This drain on assets, however, is no sudden development. Life companies have been adjusting themselves to it for two years. Much of it has been due to the need of policyholders for cash at a time when bank credit is closed to them.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON

NEW ORLEANS, La., May 30.—(AP)—Cotton was quiet today, owing to the Memorial holiday in all northern markets, the absence of the weather map, and the lack of influential news from Washington.

As Liverpool came in worse than due, prices here opened 4 points down. Although trading was sluggish, the market gradually rallied, due to some trade buying and the buying back of hedges, and near midsession July had advanced to 5.58c and October to 5.79c, up 6 to 9 points from the early lows and 4 to 5 points above the previous close.

WHEAT DECLINES AT LIVERPOOL; AT WINNIPEG, TOO

Heavy Rains Reported in Southwest.

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

Winnipeg and Liverpool grain markets were open yesterday, while Chicago and all American grain markets were closed. Liverpool wheat futures were weak, and closed ⅝@¾c lower, opening at the top and closing around the bottom. Expectations there were that the decline from Saturday would be ⅝@¾c lower. Winnipeg was ⅝@ ¾c lower, although the market remained quiet for thee hours, only to weaken and close around the bid prices.

Reports to Logan & Bryan said weather continued warm and dry in the Canadian west over the week-end, with only one point in southern Alberta reporting a shower. The soil is again becoming very dry in southern Saskatchewan and numeous complaints are being received of high winds and soil drifting, while the weather appears favorable for the development of the grasshopper pest and there are some complaints of damage from cutworms. Local showers or thunderstorms are forecast for today.

Advices from the southwest were of heavy rains at Dallas and Fort Worth, Tex.; a sprinkle at Wichita, Kas., over the week-end. The balance of the southwestern weather was generally favorable. Weather over the American northwest generally was clear and over most of the corn belt was favorable, although dry in Illinois, Indiana, and Ohio.

Mixed Views Expected.

Private experts, as well as grain traders, who were over the middle west and west during Sunday and Monday, are expected to bring in a mixed set of reports today, all depending upon the section visited, as the crop conditions show wide variance. Hessian fly is taking a heavy toll out of the wheat east of the Missouri river, and heavy rains are needed, not only to help the wheat but also the corn.

Oats in Winnipeg were ⅜@1c lower, May being off 1c and July, ½c, with October down ⅝c. Rye futures were ¼@⅝c lower and barley ⅛@⅝c lower on nearby deliveries and unchanged for October. The flour business was said to be light in Winnipeg and export business in wheat slow.

Buenos Aires July wheat at mid-day was 50⅝c, up¼c, and August, 51¼c, up ⅝c, after being closed for four days. July corn was 30⅝c and August 31¾c, unchanged from previous close. Oats for June were unchanged at 24¼c, flax off ¼c at 58⅝c for July, and August, 59⅜c, off ⅝c.

Canadian Wheat Crops.

Wheat is showing a good growth along the Prince Albert division of the Canadian National railway and over all Alberta, including the Peace river country. General rains during the week have made moisture and growth conditions excellent. Wheat seeding is completed at all points of the province and seeding of coarse grains is well advanced in most districts. Pastures and hay crops are expected to have a good start. In southern Alberta cutworm damage is evident, with prospects of further infestation, but rapid growth will reduce losses considerably. The Winnipeg Tribune's reports are more spotted than some of the others and say there can be no certainty of good crops, even with ample moisture, when soil drifting takes place with every high wind in the spring.

The Winnipeg Free Press says warm weather is now required and a good general rain would be welcome for the crops.

World Shipments.

World shipments of wheat and flour for the last week, as given by Broomhall, were 15,551,000 bu; corn, 6,522,000 bu; oats, 1,543,000 bu; barley, 1,280,000 bu. In the previous week wheat shipments were 15,550,000 bu; corn, 7,878,000 bu; oats, 2,132,000 bu, and barley, 1,044,000 bu.

Wheat acreage in France, both in winter and spring sowings, is 13,280,000 acres, and condition is 71, compared with 74 in February. Last year the acreage was 12,486,000 and condition 66. Three years ago the latter was 73.

Wheat and flour on ocean passage decreased 2,128,000 bu; corn decreased 1,860,000 bu; barley, 461,000 bu, and oats increased 460,000 bu, as wired to J. E. Bennett & Co.

Wisconsin Power and Light.

Those of us who have no means of making an investigation must rely on those in whom we have confidence and who have a way of investigating outside of the report made by salesmen. Therefore I would like a report on Wisconsin Power and Light first 6s, due 1952. Thank you for the many times you have given me valuable information.—C. B.

Wisconsin Power and Light company is controlled by Middle West company [in receivership] through North West Utilities company. It furnishes electricity at retail to 269 communities, including Beloit and Janesville, in Wisconsin. It also furnishes electricity at wholesale to 65 communities, and supplies miscellaneous public utility services to others.

For the twelve months to March 31, 1932, gross earnings were $9,176,000, against $9,506,000 for the preceding twelve months. Gross for 1931 was $9,545,000, against $10,275,000 for 1930 and $9,870,000 for 1929.

For the twelve months to March 31, 1932, net available for depreciation and interest was $3,990,000, against $4,205,000 for the preceding twelve months. Annual interest requirements, including charges on the $1,000,000 first 6s, due 1952, total $1,849,000.

Fixed charges were earned 2.09 times in 1931, 2.27 times in 1930, 2.41 times in 1929, and 2.42 times in 1928.

Giving effect to current financing, current assets as of March 31, 1932, totaled $2,470,000 and current and accrued liabilities were $1,415,000.

Affiliated companies owed $87,000 to Wisconsin Power and Light and the latter owed $30,000 to affiliated companies [noncurrent].

On April 23, 1932, a press dispatch quoted David Lilienthal, a member of the Wisconsin public service commission, as saying that the commission will not permit the receivers of Middle West company "to drain off the assets of subsidiary public utilities operating in Wisconsin for the benefit of the insolvent holding company."

The $1,000,000 first 6s, series H, offered in May, 1932, and due May 1, 1952, are equally secured with $22,575,000 other bonds by a first mortgage on all properties of the company subject to divisional liens totaling $12,336,300.

They are considered reasonably sound.

Feather River Consolidated Mining.

I have in my possession two certificates of Feather River Consolidated Mining company, each for one hundred shares. Will you tell me what, if any, value they have?—J. T. B.

Feather River Consolidated Mining company apparently is inactive. The stock has been carried at zero in inheritance tax proceedings. We find nothing which would indicate that the stock has any value.

Associated Gas Will Pay Dividends Semi-Annually

New York, May 30.—[Special.]—At the meeting of directors of the Associated Gas and Electric company resolutions were adopted providing for the payment of dividends semi-annually instead of quarterly, as heretofore, on the $7, $6.50, $6, $5.50, and $5 dividend series preferred stock and the $6 and $4 cumulative preference stocks. The purpose is to conserve cash resources to be in a position to assist, to such extent as may be found necessary, in the payment of the one year notes of subsidiaries maturing this summer.

'GUARD DEPOSITS' IS CALLED FIRST DUTY OF BANKS

New York, May 30.—(AP)—The first duty of the banks of the country is to protect the money of their depositors and the second duty is to "stimulate business by sound loans," says the Guaranty Trust company of New York.

"It is a popular but inaccurate assumption that the lending policy of banks generally has been and is unduly restrictive and that a more liberal policy on the part of the banks would immediately stimulate commercial and industrial activity and raise prices," says the bank.

"The truth of the matter is that the sound banks of the country are for the most part in a more liquid condition than they care to be; and that they are in that condition primarily, in a position to borrow and desirous because there are too few businesses of doing so under existing conditions.

"The banks on the whole would be very glad to make more commercial loans and to extend lines of credit to sound business organizations; but they must necessarily confine their extensions of credit to enterprises of assured soundness."

The trust company also observes that "the more liberal credit policy of the federal reserve banks has not resulted in any marked expansion of bank credit as a whole, and it is recognized that conditions in the money market cannot alone bring business recovery."

LONDON WOOL

LONDON, May 30.—(AP)—At the wool auction today 10,732 bales were offered, of which 8,732 were sold. A good selection was offered and competition was keen at full current rates. There was a number of withdrawals among scoured merinos due to the high lights. Puntas Arenas sold well

LEAGUE AGAIN HEARS AUSTRIA'S PLIGHT IS BAD

PARIS, May 30.—(AP)—A warning that only immediate aid to Austria would avert a transfer moratorium on its foreign obligations was delivered to a financial commission of the league of nations meeting here today.

Rost Van Tonningen, the league's representative at Vienna, reported that if help were delayed further a transfer moratorium would be inevitable.

He said it was impossible for the Austrian National bank to find foreign currencies to meet service on Austria's foreign loans without impairing the stability of the schilling.

Austria's financial stringency was reported by the league's financial representative at a meeting of the mixed commission appointed recently to consider means of relieving Austria, Greece, Hungary, and Bulgaria, with the aid of Great Britain, France and Italy.
